TUESDAY, OCTOBER 1st, 1864.

A PLEA FOR PEACE.—We hear a loud clamor from the Chicago Convention, originating probably from the secret traitorous lodges commanded by Vallandigham, the chief of the conspirators, in favor of an immediate armistice and treaty of peace with the rebels. We trust that all are in favor of a permanent peace, and we think we shall soon have it by force of arms.

But as the despotic rulers of the South, who do not allow the oppressed white population to have any voice in political affairs, most emphatically declare that they will never again come into the Federal Union, under the old Federal flag, of course they will enter into no treaty of peace, unless their Independence as a separate nation shall be acknowledged. The reason is evident. They know that they are guilty of high treason, and that the penalty for the crime is death. Do they not deserve it for having involved the whole nation in war, whereby several hundred thousands have lost their lives, and a far greater number will be cripples during life?

It requires two parties, two individuals at least, to make a bargain, and upon a large scale, it requires two separate nations to conclude an armistice or treaty of peace. How futile, therefore, is all the clamor on the part of the opponents of the Administration in respect to a peace, without agreeing to a disruption of the Union and acknowledging the nationality of the rebels! Where is the man of common intelligence, who would agree to a dissolution of the Union, and the nationality of the rebels, who are struggling to subvert the best, the freest, and the most beneficent government which human wisdom ever devised.

Fellow citizens, this alarming crisis of our national concerns imperiously demands that the people—the whole people, should cast party spirit to the dogs and unite in the manful support of the national authorities in speedily subduing the rebellion, and thereby securing a lasting peace, which the rebel rulers can have any day by laying down their arms. It behooves us all, therefore, to rally around the standard of our country, to go to the polls on the 8th day of November and support our own vital interests by upholding the government in the present arduous struggle to defend the life of the nation. X

The London Times thinks it not uncharitable to suppose that Federal accounts just now are made as favorable as possible to suit the political emergency.

The copperhead papers in New England say the same thing. It is remarkable that traitors at home and tories abroad agree exactly. And more remarkable still, that good news for the Union is bad news for the coppery patriots and rebels.

The London Times deplores the prospect of continued war as most melancholy and depressing,—especially, we suppose, because blockade running begins to be dangerous, and because the Union is likely to hold together and to be very strong.

☞ The absurd supposition that new oats and hay are injurious to the health of horses, has existed in the mind of man for centuries back, and is still transmitted from father to son, as an axiom never to be forgotten. A writer in the Country Gentleman states that new oats and hay have a far more injurious effect on the mind of the groom than that of the animals under his charge. In proof of the assertion, he states that experiments just made by the French Minister of War, have proved that new oats are not more dangerous to animals than new hay, but both are, on the contrary, sweeter and more stimulating than the old.

— The Democrats had a torchlight procession in Philadelphia on Saturday night, and there was much rioting. One man, not in the procession, was struck on the head by a stone and died almost instantly. Other citizens and many of the police were seriously injured. Nearly 100 persons were arrested.

— A rather more hopeful feeling pervaded English commercial circles Oct. 17th, but on the 18th and subsequent days there was renewed gloom and depression. The funds were well sustained, but speculative stocks continued to decline. Additional failures include twenty Liverpool firms in the American trade.

— Gov. Bradford of Maryland has issued a proclamation declaring that the new "Free State Constitution" has been adopted by a majority of the voters of the State, and that, in pursuance of the provision therein contained, the same will go into effect as the proper constitution and form of government of the State, superseding the one now existing, on the first day of November.

— The Berkshire Woolen Co., at Great Barrington, are manufacturing some cloth for A. T. Stewart, of New York, at the rate of $11 a yard.

— The great iron-clad Dictator is about ready for sea. There are hints of failure.

THE REBELLION.

Gen. Butler's reconnoissance was cut of Richmond, as far as Fair Oaks. He made no general attack. The rebels seem to be in large force in strong fortifications. On the extreme left flank they had a considerable cavalry force.

Maj. Hill, with 350 rebels of Imboden's command, attacked a detachment of Ohio Cavalry near Cumberland, West Virginia, on Saturday morning, and after two hours' hard fighting, was repulsed and routed, and retreated to the mountains, with considerable loss. Hill was mortally wounded, and is a prisoner in our hands. The N.Y. Herald' correspondent says all remains quiet in the Shenandoah Valley. A reconnoissance as far as Woodstock failed to find any rebels, notwithstanding it has been reported that Early is organizing his forces, and the mountains are full of stragglers who are picked up by our cavalry.

Hood attacked Decatur three times on the 29th and 30th, and was handsomely repulsed each time. Gen. Granger captured 134 prisoners and four guns, and spiked two others. The rebels retreated and are reported to have crossed the Tennessee river at the mouth of Cypress Creek.

Price left 300 killed and 1200 wounded on the field in one of his recent battles. He has now but two guns, and one of those is disabled. The country is full of his stragglers. Our wounded who have fallen into his hands have invariably been left naked, with their wounds uncared for.

15,000 or 20,000 rebels are reported to have crossed Sabine river, 25 miles from Little Rock, Ark., Oct. 18. Whether they intended to attack Little Rock, to co-operate with Price, or to fall upon Gen. Steele was unknown.

The rebel leaders have decided to arm the slaves, and expect to have 300,000 in the spring campaign. Their masters are to be compensated by the Government. The slaves are to have their freedom and 50 acres each.

☞ The venerable Benjamin Greenleaf of Bradford, Mass., a well-known mathematician, died on Friday last, at his residence in that town, at the ripe old age of 78 years. Mr. Greenleaf graduated from Dartmouth College in 1811. From 1820 to 1830 he was the honored and eminent Principal of Bradford Academy, where he fitted thousands of young men for college. He was probably still more widely known as the author of a series of mathematical works, which have had a wide popularity, and are found in public and private schools all over the country.

— The rebel Legislature of Arkansas met Sept. 2d. A. P. Garland was elected to the rebel Congress over Albert Pike, to fill a vacancy. The Little Rock Democrat regards this election of Garland, formerly a Unionist and never a very strong rebel, over Pike, a man of decided secession proclivities, as evidence of a lingering fondness for the Old Union.

— The flour mill of Ira Yeaton, Jr., 54 Greenwich street, New York, was burnt on Sunday evening. It is said to have contained 25,000 barrels of flour. The loss on the building and stock is $100,000. One man was fatally injured by the falling of a safe.

— Act. Vol. Lieut. W. K. Cressey, commanding U. S. gunboat Newbern, died at New York on Friday afternoon. Capt. Cressey entered the Navy from the merchant service early in the war. He had been a noted ship-master in the California and China trade.

— Dates from Mobile Bay to the 21st inst., state that Dr. Hutchinson, of the Lackawana, has been appointed Fleet Surgeon. Great activity prevails in the army. There is much sickness among the troops, but it is daily decreasing.

— A freight train on the Boston and Maine Railroad was thrown off the track Saturday noon, near Greenwood, blockading the road so as to prevent the passage of trains in either direction for several hours.

— It is said that a large class of readers in New York recognize in the person of Mortimer Lightwood, Esq., in "Our Mutual Friend," a gentleman of New York, of whom Mr. Dickens has made a striking silhouette.

— Richmond papers of the 28th announce that Gen. Duffie, who was captured by a party of guerrillas near Martinsburg, was subsequently killed. He was evidently murdered.

— The Soldiers' vote in Pennsylvania, so far as received, officially, stands: Union 17,888; Democratic 5232.

— The gunboat Mobile was spoken on Thursday in chase of the pirate Tallahassee.

— The quantity of maple sugar returned in Ohio this year amounts to 6,785,178 pounds.

—The President has issued a proclamation declaring Nevada a State of the Union.

— The Jews in San Francisco are building a new Synagogue of brick.

EDITORIAL JOTTINGS.

A VARIEGATED TRIP was that of ours, a few days since, to Wolfborough and vicinity. Having been rather overworked of late, we took and acted on the advice of our good friend Dr. H. of the Enrolling Board, who prescribed for us two or three days in the country—and this we did all the more willingly, from the fact that it was very agreeable to take, and those who heeded his recommendation last year, to put in substitutes instead of commuting or desiring to get off from the draft, are now rejoicing in his sagacity and their good luck.

Well, Saturday morning found us, a trio party, at the Eastern depot, waiting an hour or so for the late down train—which was so late as to lose us all chance to reach Dover in season for the steamboat train for Alton Bay. But, once started, we were determined to go ahead, and so waited; and were not sorry to gain variety in travelling one way over the Great Falls & Conway road. And as we had been in vain trying all summer to get up to Rochester and go trouting or gunning with Br. Place of the Courier, we were desirous at least of seeing him in passing through the depot where his printing office is located. So we telegraphed him that we were coming—or rather we should have done so if the lightning wire ran above "the Falls," which, on reaching Rochester and jumping out, we found not to be the case.

So leaving this place, where we didn't find our Place,—but from which we did find the B. & M. (or rather the B. & Winnipiseogee) train had, very accommodatingly, just before left for the boat we had designed to go in; we continued on to Union, the terminus of the Eastern's Conway branch. From here, we drove in wagons to Wolfborough—and though the day was rather cold, yet a more delightful ride could hardly be imagined. Our route was taken off the regular stage course—an old and untravelled path over the hills Copplecrown and Tumble-down-Dick, and along the shores of the Lakes and Ponds for miles.—Such a climbing up and down—and O such prospects! As we mounted some of the numerous eminences, a broad view of Lake Winnipiseogee opened at our feet, with its well-wooded isles now of flaming colors, and white-sanded shores; while hill upon hill stretched away in the distance,—carpeted in most instances with forests of gay colors interspersed with evergreens, but in a few cases white with snow—until the vision was hopelessly, but grandly terminated by the lofty, towering White Mountains themselves, almost dazzling in their snowy whiteness, in the background. As the slant sun threw his decling rays athwart the nearer snow-clad hills, lighting up the parti-colored valleys beyond, it seemed as though "one might almost think he gazed through opening vistas into heaven." Never did we enjoy so charming a scene before—and that three days' ramble convinced us in our previous opinion, that the Lake country is really more beautiful in Autumn than in Summer.

But a ride in open wagons for a dozen miles or more, sufficed to cool us if not our ardor a little; and we were in no wise loth to be set down at the door of Dr. H.'s fine residence in Wolfborough, and enjoy the hospitalities of his cheerful household for a little.

Next day was Sunday; and of course to church, etc., was the order of that day. To be sure, some folks did venture on a little walk, after service; but (as it came on to rain,) it was generally deemed more devotional to keep housed.

One thing we learned—that Dr. H. was and is a great favorite practitioner up in all that region; and his house is besieged on his short visits home—for his old patients will have his services, and somehow or other they manage to be sick just when they can procure his healing counsels.

Monday morning we took another wagon-ride, in the opposite direction, toward Centre Harbor and Red Hill—but it was only a different display of the same sort of loveliness. The endless array of autumn-tinted trees was equally beautiful,—and all those ravishing scenes can never be forgotten.

Then after dinner, that magnificent sail out from Wolfborough, in the good steamer Chocborua, across the Lake, and up into the little tunnel-nose to Alton Bay village; down over the B. & W. R. R. to Dover, the B. & M. to Newmarket Junction, and the C. & P. home. Beauty and glory enough for one trip—and it will almost last us through all the storms and drear of winter, till glad summer shall come again to cheer us all. Y.

— The U. S. steamer Teconderoga put into Grenada, Sept. 22d, for coal, which the authorities refused and ordered her from the port.

— Rio Janeiro letters confirm the severity of the panic there. The liabilities of the four suspended banks amount to eleven hundred thousand pounds sterling.

— The electoral ticket of Massachusetts contains the names of Edward Everett and John G Whittier.

— California now exports a considerable quantity of rosin and turpentine.

SINGULAR DEATH OF A HORSE.—The Poughkeepsie Journal states that a week or two ago, a horse belonging to J. S. Cromwell, of Fishkill village, dropped dead on the road while travelling. Upon opening the stomach of the animal, to ascertain if possible the cause of his death, a lizard about four inches in length crept forth. This reptile was no doubt swallowed by the horse when it was very small, and had remained alive, growing larger and larger, eventually causing death.

How can we expect a harvest of thought, who have not had a seed time of character?

— Soft soap mixed with a solution of potash or caustic soda, or pearlash and slaked lime, mixed with sufficient water to make a paste, is an excellent solvent for old putty and paint. Either of these laid on with an old brush or rag, and left for some hours, will render the putty or paint easily removable.

Geese, dull as they are, imitate men. Notice, that if one of the flock drinks, the rest will follow.

— Last year the Indians in Idaho raised upwards of 20,000 pounds of wheat in their little rudely-cultivated valley patches, entirely by squaw labor. Potatoes yield 500 bushels to the acre, and wheat, oats and barley 80 bushels.

Wealth bears heavier on talent than poverty: under gold-mountains and thrones, who knows how many a spiritual giant lies buried!

— The Brunswick Telegraph tells a story of an absent minded man who lost a barrel of flour from his wagon two miles from home, and did not miss it until he had backed up to his kitchen door to discharge his cargo.

The long head is never headlong.

"A Wonderful Discovery."

DR. TEBBETTS' "PHYSIOLOGICAL HAIR REGENERATOR" is compounded in strict accordance with the well known laws of Physiology and modern vegetable Chemistry. It is not a "DYE," and will not stain a particle. It will "RESTORE GRAY HAIR" in all cases to its original color. It promotes a luxuriant growth of new HAIR in all cases on BALD HEADS, when the glands or roots of the hair are not completely disorganized. It prevents the hair from falling off and removes all dandruff, heat, humors and itching from the scalp. It keeps the hair soft, moist and perfectly healthy, and gives it a glossy and beautiful appearance. It is highly perfumed, and as a Dressing it has no superior. The "REGENERATOR" is warranted to produce the above results in all cases, if not the money to be refunded. With it every "GRAY HEAD" in New England can be restored in less than sixty days.

☞ The new steamer designed to run between the Navy York and Portsmouth, arrived on Sunday last. She left Philadelphia thirteen days before, but was compelled to put into harbor frequently on account of rough weather. She is a beautiful little craft, accommodating about 50 persons, and will commence hourly trips across the river as soon as the landings on each side are re-arranged for her accommodation. We learn that the landing on the Navy Yard side is to be removed further up the river, near the battery.

☞ Acting Assistant Paymaster W. H. Gilman has been ordered to the receiving ship Vandalia, at this station.

Acting Assistant Paymaster Charles H. West has been detached from the Vandalia, and is awaiting orders.

Acting Volunteer Lieut. W. Budd has been ordered to temporary duty at the Portsmouth Navy Yard.

☞ They are to have a grand Union torch-light procession, illuminations, &c., in Newburyport, this, Tuesday, evening, Quite a delegation intend to go over from this city. An extra train for their accommodation will be run on the Eastern railroad, at half-fare.

☞ We learn that a boat-race is to take place on our river some time the present week, which will be of interest to lovers of the sport. A shell boat, weighing only 28 pounds, is matched against "The Gazelle," a sixteen-oared boat. The distance is five miles; the stake is $100 a side, we believe. The length of the shell is thirty feet; the length of "The Gazelle" 42 feet.

THE SAILORS' FAIR.

MESSRS. EDITORS:—

The ladies of this city who are interested in the Sailors' Fair, wish to call the attention of your readers again to the subject.—They have engaged to furnish a Portsmouth table at the fair, and are anxious that our city should be adequately represented. Almost all the large towns of New England are engaged to take part on the occasion, and some of them are making magnificent preparations. Our Portsmouth table must not stand lowest.

Our call has in many cases been handsomely responded to, but in order to complete success more aid is needed. We make use of your columns to invite further contributions of fancy articles, books, stationery, dry goods, pictures, objects of interest and curiosity, anything in short, which will meet with a ready sale or make our table attractive; and of money which will buy what we need.

We invite all who are interested in so excellent a cause, or in the credit of Portsmouth, to contribute something.

The Chapel on Court-street, will be open on Thursday, Nov. 4, from 10 A. M. until evening, and a Committee will be in attendance to receive donations.

On Friday, Nov. 5, it will be open from 2 P. M., until evening, for the exhibition of the articles prepared.

Admittance to the exhibition 15 cents.

NEW HAMPSHIRE ITEMS.

—— Col. Charles H. Ball, of the 18th N. H. regiment, has resigned his commission. In his letter of resignation he assigns as the reason of his decision that he ought no longer to quit his urgent private business for the contingency of the completion of the regiment.

—— The Mirror states that "on account of the pressure of the times, Rev. Henry C. Fay, of Northwood, has requested dismission from the pastorate of the Congregational Church there. As an expression of personal esteem, his friends met at the parsonage, Thursday afternoon and evening, Oct. 20th, and presented himself and lady a valuable service of silver, besides a roll of bills."

—— The Portland Press of Saturday gives, in relation to its report of the arrest of a man in Michigan, for the murder of Mr. Parker in Manchester, the following explanation:

Our information was derived from a mail agent on the Grand Trunk line, who informed us on Tuesday that such a report was current along the line, and that he heard it from a reliable man in Bethel. The same story was current at all the depots from Bethel up to Milan, and the particulars were stated as he gave them to us. He stated to us on Friday that he had not been able to obtain any thing definite in relation to the report, or to trace the story to its foundation. We think there must be some mistake about it.

—— The market house of Garland & Conner, in Exeter, was robbed on Friday night, of about $60 worth of salt pork, and a quantity of beef.

—Jeff Davis has issued a proclamation appointing the 16th day of November as a day of prayer and thanksgiving.

— Officers of the Navy are requested to send their photographs, with names attached to Mrs. H. A. Wise, 32 Summer street, Boston, to be placed in a Navy Photograph Book for the benefit of the Sailors' Fair.

BOLD OUTRAGES.—On Thursday night, one of the boldest outrages ever perpetrated upon a peaceable body of citizens was enacted on the passengers in the Cincinnati express train, which left Long Dock, Jersey City, at half-past four o'clock on Thursday afternoon, by a gang of desperadoes, principally from New York. The gang numbered nearly two hundred of the worst specimens of New York rowdies, who were on their way, as is alleged, for the purpose of taking part in a prize fight between a New York pugilist, known as Dooney Harris, and Peter Martin, of Philadelphia. The most of the gang were under the influence of liquor, and the time selected to commence their work of robbery was shortly after dark. They rushed into the various cars, and swearing in the most fearful manner, demanded of the passengers their money or their lives. Many of the passengers refused, and were seized by several of the gang, forcibly relieved of their wallets, watches, chains and breast pins and other articles of value.

On arriving at Middletown, N. Y., a truck of one of the cars gave out and the train was compelled to stop, when the robbers made a rush out of the cars. The Eastern New York Express happening to come along at the time, the gang entered that train and renewed their thieving operations, which created the greatest excitement among the lady passengers. Among the number of gentlemen who were hurt severely was a Mr. J. B. Wait, on his way to New York City from Kentucky, who was robbed of a large amount of money, and who subsequently died from apoplexy, brought on by excitement.

The facts were telegraphed to the Chief of Police of Jersey City, who repaired to the Long Dock with a force of men for the purpose of arresting the ruffians on their return. The more desperate fellows of the party, however, left the train before its arrival, and effected their escape. Thirty suspicious-looking men were arrested and held by the authorities to give the sufferers an opportunity to identify them.

— Gen. Warren had a narrow escape on Thursday, a ball grazing his cheek as he was riding along the line.

GRAPES IN N. JERSEY. WE HAVE BEEN shown specimens of ornamental or pure juice Wine, prepared by Mr. Alfred Speer, of Passaic, N. J., out of the Portuguese Sambuco, a valuable grape which he cultivates in the country. In taste it assimilates to port with out its heating qualities, being absolutely free from spirits further than its own fermentation affords. Preference is given to it over all other wines in New York and other hospitals, as a tonic, gentle stimulant, diuretic and sudorific. Mr. Speer has been nine years experimenting in the production of this Wine, and the newest wine he sells is four years old.

To every barrel of Flour you can make thirty pounds more Bread or Biscuit (and much better) by using Herrick Allen's Gold Medal, than by yeast fermentation or any other Salaratus.—It is perfectly healthy, will not turn your cookery yellow, will strengthen weak stomachs, and cure dyspeptic persons It is much better to use with cream tartar than soda. Try one paper, and you will be convinced. Most of the Grocers sell it. Depot 112 Liberty Street, New York.

HUNNEWELL'S STANDARD PREPARATIONS.—On our inside columns will be found a notice of these justly celebrated and standard preparations, of unbounded reputation in New England, profess only what they are remedies for, are for sale by all wholesale and retail dealers, and confidence is asked to test them. See advertisement.

RYE, N.H., Feb. 26, 1846. "I hereby certify that my daughter has had the salt rheum for a number of years—some of the time so badly as to prevent her labor, or even rest—as it affected her hands very much. A large sum had been expended to the most celebrated physicians, for Sarsaparilla Syrup, &c., &c., but she obtained no relief until I procured some ten or twelve bottles of DR. SWETT'S PANACEA, and several bottles of his HUMOR WASH, which have effected a cure. There can be no mistake, as this cure was effected more than three years ago. No other medicines can equal Dr. Swett's in removing the various kinds of humors. I have sold it to a number of my acquaintances, who were afflicted, and witnessed many full cures effected by it since I have acted as agent for the sale of it. JOSIAH J. FERNALD.

PORTSMOUTH, April 21st, 1862.

I have for several years been afflicted with distress at my stomach, loss of appetite, and often vomited all of my food immediately after eating it, and all medicine failed to give any relief until about a year ago, when I took one bottle of DR. S. SWETT'S PANACEA, which fully cured me, so that I have not had the least trouble from any of these complaints since, and I enjoy good health. M. LOWD.

From ELDER I CHESLEY, Lee, Mass 31, 1841

DR. SWETT: Permit me to testify, as I feel in duty bound to do, that my daughter was afflicted with scrofulous humor, so that previous to your visiting our house in the spring of 1840, she had been confined for a number of months, without her natural rest by day or night. She had applied to a number of physicians, but continued to grow weaker till she commenced using your PANACEA and HUMOR WASH. Since then, she has recovered her health so fast as to rest quietly by night, and labor by day. I esteem your medicine one of the best that can be found for the disease above named." ISRAEL CHESLEY

☞ Any one returning the remainder of a bottle or box of Dr. Swett's medicines shall have pay for it, if it do not agree with his case, or if not worth the price. All orders directed to DR. S. SWETT, No. 7 High street, Portsmouth, N. H., promptly attended to. may26

AYER'S PILLS.

ARE YOU SICK, FEEBLE AND COMPLAINING! Are you out of order, with your system deranged and your feelings uncomfortable? These symptoms are often the prelude to serious illness. Some fit of sickness is creeping upon you, and should be averted by a timely use of the right remedy. Take AYER'S PILLS, and cleanse out the disordered humors—purify the blood, and let the fluids move on unobstructed in health again. They stimulate the functions of the body into vigorous activity, and purify the system from the obstructions which make disease. A cold settles somewhere in the body and deranges its natural functions These, if not relieved, react upon themselves and the surrounding organs, producing general aggravation, suffering and derangement. While in this condition, take Ayer's Pills, and see how directly they restore the natural action of the system, and with it the long-lost blessing of health again. What is true and so apparent in this trivial and common complaint is also true in many of the deep-seated and dangerous distempers. The same purgative effect expells them. Caused by similar obstructions and derangements of the natural functions of the body, they are rapidly and many of them surely cured by the same means. None who know the virtue of these Pills will neglect to employ them when suffering from the disorders they cure, such as Headache, Foul Stomach, Dysentery, Bilious Complaints, Indigestion, Derangement of the Liver, Costiveness, Constipation, Heartburn, Rheumatism, Dropsy, Worms and Suppression, when taken in large doses.

They are Sugar Coated, so that the most sensitive can take them easily, and they are surely the best purgative medicine yet discovered.

Ayer's Ague Cure.

For the speedy and certain cure of Intermittent Fever, or Chills and Fever, Remittent Fever, Chill Fever, Dumb Ague, Periodical Headache or Bilious Headache, and Bilious Fever; indeed, for the whole class of diseases originating in biliary derangement, caused by the malaria of miasmatic countries.

This remedy has rarely failed to cure the severest cases of Chills and Fever, and it has this great advantage over other Ague medicines, that it subdues the complaint without injury to the patient It contains no quinine or other deleterious substance, nor does it produce quinism or any injurious effect whatever. Shaking brothers of the Army and the West, try it and you will endorse these assertions.

Prepared by J. C. AYER & Co., Lowell, Mass., and sold by Brackett Hutchings, J. H. Thacher, W. R. Preston, David Kimball, and all druggists. s26dtlaw 2m Tu

THE MODEL COOK.

IS, IN FACT,

The Best Stove Out,

for economy, convenience and dispatch.

Many people think it best to use an old stove as long as possible, but it is far better to throw it away and purchase a MODEL COOK, than to keep it at the present high price of fuel.

One of our shrewdest citizens who purchased a MODEL COOK STOVE a year since, says he has saved more than its cost already.

A careful, prudent farmer purchased one, and after it had been in operation some days his son came into the store and said, "something was wrong at their house;" his father and himself used wood off the same pile, he burned three baskets full a day, and his father only one! We sold him a Stove before he left, and there has been no complaint since.

These Stoves are in use in many hotels and boarding houses, and in hundreds of private families in this city and vicinity, and give the best of satisfaction.

PRICES REDUCED.

TRIAL OF THE LARGEST GUN EVER MADE.—The 20-inch Rodman gun, the largest gun ever made, was tested at Fort Hamilton on Thursday afternoon, in presence of a large number of spectators. The trial was fixed for 11 A. M., but considerable delay was experienced in the proper adjustment of the piece, and it was not till half-past two o'clock the first discharge, a blank cartridge of one hundred pounds of powder, was fired. The concussion following the discharge was slight, and the recoil of the gun much less than was anticipated. The piece was next loaded with a charge of fifty pounds of powder and a thousand pound shell. The time taken in loading was about half an hour. The second trial was as successful as the first, the ball, in consequence of considerable depression of the gun, striking the water at a quarter of a mile distance, ricocheting several times.

The gun, on examination, being found to have received no strain, preparations were made for the final test. At five o'clock the piece was again loaded with a charge of one hundred pounds of powder and a ball weighing one thousand and eighty pounds, one of the largest ordnance projectiles ever cast. Owing to the rather impromptu arrangements for raising the ball, it was found to be anything but an easy task to adjust it. However, at the hour mentioned, the piece was loaded, and everybody stood clear for the last grand trial. The gun was raised to an elevation of twenty-five degrees, and the discharge was deafening. The ball was twenty-four seconds in the air, and fell at the distance of three miles and a half. Considerable applause followed the final shot, and all concerned in the management of the piece were warmly congratulated.

The following are the dimensions of this last great achievement of Capt. Rodman: Weight of gun, 116,497 pounds; length, 21 feet; bore, 20 inches; usual charge of powder, 100 pounds; average weight of ball, 1000 pounds. Previous to the trial of the gun, the revenue cutter Bronx, Capt. Marcel, arrived at the government dock, having on board a large number of ladies and gentlemen. Prominent among the latter were Gen. Dix, Gen. Hays, Gen. Dyer, Gen. Smith, Com. Paulding, Com. Wise, Com. Rogers, Maj. Van Fleet, Capt. Rodman, and Peter Cooper.

DR. S. O. RICHARDSON'S

BLOOD ROOT ELIXIR

Has been thoroughly tested and proved in his medical practice, for a period of THIRTY YEARS, and is now presented to the public as an effectual cure for

and the best remedy ever prepared for

Diseases of the Liver,

SCROFULA,

All Humors and Impurities of the Blood, and Diseases of the Skin.

The preparing and combining the Blood Root Elixir, is attended with results in medical science next in importance to the inhalation of ether in surgery. Roots and plants, in themselves pungent and disagreeable, are, by a new and scientific process of extracting (in vacuo,) rendered MORE EFFECTIVE IN THEIR OPERATION, entirely divested of the griping and distressing pain which attends the action of all other purgative medicine. They are also made to become HIGHLY PLEASANT AND AGREEABLE TO THE TASTE, and by their peculiar combination work so perfectly in HARMONY WITH NATURE that no unpleasant reaction will follow its operation. It also possesses which can only be attained by medicine in a fluid state. These active elements in purgative medicines.

The hard and compact manner in which pills are prepared renders them indigestible—and where they do not pass through the stomach and bowels, half-dissolved, causing only PARTIAL ACTION, thereby creating irritation and pain to the parts connected with their passage.

One pill dissolved, secundum artem, will produce more medicinal and physical effect than five in a crude state.

The BLOOD ROOT ELIXIR has no partial action upon the bowels, but is equally diffused throughout the whole circulation of the blood, imparting a healthy and invigorating action to the STOMACH AND BOWELS, LIVER, LUNGS, KIDNEYS, and gently stimulating dormant and morbid secretions through the system.

A single dose will produce a cheerful and exhilerating COMMOTION, which will inspire the patient with confidence and assurance of IMMEDIATE RELIEF. A few days, for a short period will DRIVE the obscure and hidden humors to the surface of the skin, and relieve or check Scrofulous Affections, by purifying the stomach and strengthening the blood, will remove the most fruitful

CAUSE OF CONSUMPTION.

It incites the various organs of the system to act their allotted part, removing the causes which induce RHEUMATISM, NEURALGIA, HEADACHE, LOSS OF APPETITE, DYSPEPSIA, COSTIVENESS, and the various diseases which arise from a derangement of the Stomach and Bowels, and effectually cleansing the Blood.

COUGHS and COLDS, in their early stages, will immediately yield to the effect of the Elixir.

The BLOOD ROOT ELIXIR contains no mineral, no pernicious botanical element, no excitant, but eliminates the secretions by its mild diffusive action. It is an effective and painless aperient—has a decided, salutary action upon the Liver, and there has been no medicine prepared for common family use which possesses equal merit.

Travellers, both by sea and land, will find the Elixir a complete antidote for the evils which they are obliged to endure from a change of climate, of water, or of diet.

See the pamphlet around each bottle for a history of this Elixir.

The proprietor of the Blood Root Elixir, (Dr. S. O. Richardson,) has been long and favorably known to the public by his celebrated SHERRY WINE BITTERS, the best tonic medicine ever discovered, and which has been in use over thirty years. He is a graduate of the New Hampshire Medical College, and many years associate member of the Massachusetts Medical Society, and has made the study of medicine his profession since 1829.

And so fully convinced is the Doctor of the wonderful curative effects of his Blood Root Elixir, that he hereby offers to each and every person who will use one-half of a bottle of his Elixir and not be conscious of a good effect therefrom, to refund to said person the amount which he paid for the same, by returning the village bottle to his office.

Price $1.50 per Bottle.

THE MAGEE

COOKING STOVE.

The subscriber, having received his Fall stock of Stoves, would especially call the attention of the public to the

CELEBRATED AND UNEQUALLED

MAGEE COOK STOVE,

as the very best Stove yet made, and would invite those about purchasing or exchanging Stoves, to examine this, believing it to be far superior to any other Stove yet invented, the castings being heavier, and the oven larger, than usual. The oven plates are covered with plaster, which renders it equal to the old-fashioned brick oven for perfection in baking.

There is a new style and very superior broiler and sad-iron heater combined, by which the odor of broiling meats are prevented from escaping into the room. With the extension top there is a large copper Reservoir for hot water; also a large tin warming-closet attached, in which any article can be kept warm, while the other parts of the Stove are occupied for other purposes.

The arrangements for sifting the coal and cleaning the grate are far superior to those of any other Stove now in use, as no dust can possibly escape into the room, and the shoveling up of the ashes is entirely dispensed with. The fire is regulated in the same manner as in the MAGEE PARLOR STOVE, and can be continued day and night for weeks together, thus saving the expense of kindling every day.

For economy, durability, ease of management, cleanliness and perfection in cooking, it cannot be surpassed by any other Stove, as hundreds of families in this city and vicinity, who are now using them, are willing to testify, and speak of them in the highest terms of praise.

We would refer to the following purchasers:

"MAGEE'S PATENT"

VENTILATING & AIR WARMING

FURNACES.

The subscriber, being the Sole Agent in this vicinity for the manufacture and sale of this valuable Furnace, would ask those about remodelling or erecting buildings to examine this truly valuable invention.

For economy, purity of air and ease of management it has no equal, producing a current of warm air, moist and agreeable;—and as none of the air in this furnace come in contact with the fire-pot is used for respiration, the tendency to produce headache so much complained of in other Furnaces, is entirely obviated.

The objects aimed at by the constructors of heating apparatus have been to obtain the greatest amount of heat from a given amount of fuel, and to prevent the escape of heat to the smoke pipe or chimney.

To accomplish this many complicated and expensive heating arrangements have been constructed, some possessing but little improvement over former methods, while many have proved a total failure. The reason for this is obvious. The combustible gases being lighter than the air, pass off into the pipe or chimney without being consumed. This objection, so common in other Furnaces, is entirely obviated in the

MAGEE FURNACE.

The fire or pipe in this Furnace being below the fire-pot, the gases, from their specific gravity, cannot descend, and are burned up by the admission of solid air through the fire-pot, which ignites them as they pass off from the coal, thus saving at least 30 per cent. of the properties of the heat in the fuel.

No heating apparatus with the smoke-pipe or flue on the top of the cone can be made to consume the gases, as they pass off with a large amount of the heat generated, making the chimney the hottest part of your dwelling.

This Furnace does away with the great number of pipes and angles for the radiation of heat, which are liable to fill up and get out of order, thus simplifying, while it increases the surface of radiation.

These Furnaces consume all the coal, make no clinkers, the sifting of coal is entirely dispensed with, and they will save from 30 to 50 per cent. of fuel over common Furnaces.

For ease of management, economy and purity of air these Furnaces have no equal. They can be regulated so as to give any amount of heat required, and the fire may be kept the entire season without once going out.

They give entire satisfaction wherever used. We have in store the different sizes, Brick and Portable, to which we invite the attention of those in want of the best Furnace in the world,—and would refer them to the following named gentlemen, who have them now in use:

Samuel Cleaves, Esq.,	Albert R. Hatch, Esq.,
Aaron H. Hill,	Charles H. Mendum,
Henry F. Wendell,	John Sise, and others.

CHEROKEE REMEDY

—AND—

CHEROKEE INJECTION,

Compounded from Roots, Barks & Leaves.

CHEROKEE REMEDY, the great Indian Diuretic, cures all diseases of the urinary organs, such as Incontinence of the Urine, Inflammation of the Bladder, Inflammation of the Kidneys, Stone in the Bladder, Stricture, Gravel, Gleet, Gonorrhœa, and is especially recommended in those cases of Fever Albus (or Whites in females) where all the old nauseous medicines have failed.

It is prepared in a highly concentrated form, the dose only being from one to two tablespoonfuls three times per day.

It is diuretic and alterative in its action; purifying and cleansing the blood, causing it to flow in all of its original purity and vigor; thus removing from the system all pernicious causes which have induced disease.

CHEROKEE INJECTION is intended as anally or assistant to the CHEROKEE REMEDY, and should be used in conjunction with that medicine in all cases of Gonorrhœa, Gleet, Fever Albus or Whites. Its effects are healing, soothing and demulcent; removing all scalding, heat, chordee and pain, leaves of the burning and almost unendurable pain that is experienced with nearly all the cheap quack injections.

☞ By the use of the CHEROKEE REMEDY and CHEROKEE INJECTION—the two medicines at the same time—all improper discharges are removed, and the weakened organs are speedily restored to full vigor and strength.

For full particulars get our pamphlet from any drug store in the country, or write us and we will mail free, to any address, a full treatise.

Price—CHEROKEE REMEDY, $2 per bottle or three bottles for $5.

PUERILITY OF GOSSIP.—It is humiliating to think on what a thin intellectual diet some people live in so-called society. We have listened to an hour's conversation between young or older ladies, and have wondered that the intellect did not die from sheer starvation. E. P. Whipple, in one of his essays, has some good hints on this point:

"But of all the expedients to make the head break, the brain gauzy, and bring life down to the consistency of a cambric handkerchief, the most successful is the little talk and tattle which in some charmed circles, is courteously styled 'conversation.' How human beings can live on such meagre fare, how continue existence in such a famine of topics, is a great question, if philosophy could reach it out. All we know is, that such men and women there are, who will go on dawdling in this way from fifteen to fourscore, and never hint on their tombstones that they died at last of consumption of the head and marasmus of the heart.

The whole universe of God spreading out its splendors and terrors and pleading for their attention, and they are wondering where Mrs. Somebody got that divine ribbon on her bonnet! The whole world of literature, through its triumphs of fame, adjuring them to regard its garnered stores, both of thought and emotion, and they thinking, It's high time if John intends to marry our Sarah, for him to pop the question!" To be sure, when this frippery is spiced with a little envy and malice, and prepares its small dishes of scandal with bits of detraction, it becomes endowed with a slight venomous vitality, which does pretty well in the absence of soul, to carry on the machinery of living if not the reality of life."

PETALUMA is overflowing with agricultural wealth. The warehouses are stocked full of grain and the banks of the creek are lined with bales of hay and straw. At present there are not vessels enough in the trade to carry away the immense product coming in from the surrounding country. The dry weather did not affect the crops in that region; the land is irrigated by dense fogs driving in from the ocean, some twenty miles off. It is said that several large farms will pay for themselves by the prodigious crop of this year alone. Sonoma Valley is the Egypt where other countries must go to buy corn this year. What the overflow of the Nile does for Egypt, dense fogs do for Sonoma, and that without the pest of ague and fever.—San Francisco Flag.

— Fifteen years ago a dollar was often paid for a couple of apples in California, as they were all shipped from the east. Now California raises enough for home consumption, and exports them to China. In that state, in three years from planting apple trees bear good fruit, and in five a heavy crop.

DISPLAY.—If it be true, that "economy leads to wealth," it must be equally true that extravagance leads to poverty; and almost the greatest extravagance, to which business men are now tempted, is that of ostentatious display. D. Franklin said, that "the road to wealth is as plain as the road to market." If Poor Richard were to come again to point it out, he would likely advise that it be not carpeted with Brussels, except at its extreme farther end.

TWENTY-FIVE DOLLARS A BUSHEL.—Among the pears exhibited at the recent fair of the Horticultural Society of the American Institute was one bushel of Duchesse d' Angoulemes, which was sold after the fair for $25. There were 61 pears in the bushel; they, therefore, brought 41 cents apiece.

At a distribution of prizes for acts of devotedness and courage made at Brussels, a short time ago, a medal was awarded to a boy named Tassel, five years of age, for the following act of intrepidity: a fire broke out in the house in which he resided with his parents, and on seeing the room invaded by the smoke, the child ran panic-stricken into the street; but a moment later, remembering that he had left in the room his brother, an infant aged six months, the noble little fellow rushed back through the smoke and snatching the child from his cradle bore him away in safety.

— If McClellan has proved himself utterly incompetent in that to which he has been educated and devoted his life, how likely is he to prove himself efficient in the matter of statesmanship, to which he has given but little attention?

A youthful member of a rifle corps in a Scottish town, on his arrival home one evening, joyfully told his governor that he had just got his arms. "Airms," quoth the ancient, dryly; "I'm thinkin', if the French come, ye'll has mair need o' your legs."

— Mrs. Flora Dawson, who claims to have been an old flame of Washington Irving, has written a work on "Public Men and Pretty Women," with accompanying episodes from real life.

— Manager Grover, whose headquarters are at present in Boston, received on Saturday at his places of amusement in Boston, Washington, Philadelphia and Providence, the very handsome sum of $9150. This will do for a moderate business.

American and Foreign Patents.
R. H. EDDY.
SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,
Late Agent of U. S. Patent Office, Washington, (under the Act of 1837.)
76 State street, opposite Kilby street,
Boston.
After an extensive practice of upwards of twenty years, continues to secure Patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Bonds Assignments, and all Papers or Drawings for Patents, executed on reasonable terms, and with dispatch. Researches made into American or Foreign works, to determine the validity or utility of patents or inventions—and legal or other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any Patent furnished by remitting One Dollar. Assignments recorded at Washington.
The Agency is not only the largest in New England, but through it inventors have an advantage for securing Patents, and ascertaining the patentability of inventions unsurpassed by, if not immeasurably superior to, any which can be offered from elsewhere. The testimonials below given prove that none is MORE SUCCESSFUL AT THE PATENT OFFICE than the subscriber; and ACCESS TO THE BEST PROOF OF ADVANTAGES AND ABILITY, he would add that he has abundant reason to believe, and can prove, that at no other office of the kind are the charges for professional service so moderate.
The immense practice of the subscriber during twenty years past, has enabled him to secure a large number of specifications and official decisions relative to patents.
These, besides his extensive library of legal and mechanical works, and full accounts of patents granted in the United States and Europe, render him able, beyond question, to offer superior facilities for obtaining Patents.
All necessity of a journey to Washington, to procure a patent, and the usual great delay there, are here saved to inventors.
TESTIMONIALS.
"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse."
CHARLES MASON,
Commissioner of Patents.
"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a person more competent and trustworthy, and more capable of putting their applications in form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office."
EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents
Mr. R. H. Eddy has made for me FIFTEEN applications, on all but one of which patents have been granted, and that is now pending. Such unmistakeable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend all inventors to apply to him to procure their patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases, and at very reasonable charges."
JOHN TAGGART.
During eight months, the subscriber, in course of his large practice, made on nine rejected applications SIXTEEN APPEALS, EVERY ONE of which was decided in his favor, by the Commissioner of Patents.

Portsmouth, N. H.

WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 2D, 1864.

THE POSTAL MONEY-ORDER SYSTEM was put into operation in this city, and at other designated points throughout the country, on the 1st of November. It is intended to promote public convenience by affording a cheap, immediate, and safe agency for the transmission through the mails of small sums of money, for which bank drafts cannot readily be procured. The mode by which safety is secured consist in leaving out of the order the name of the payee or party for whom the money is intended. In this respect a money order differs from an ordinary bank draft or check.

When a money order is applied for, the postmaster will furnish the applicant with a printed form of application, in which the latter will enter all the particulars of amount, name, address, &c., required to be stated in the money order and advice. From the items contained in such application the postmaster will fill up the money order and also the corresponding form of advice. The order, when completed, is handed to the applicant, upon payment of the sum expressed therein and of the fee chargeable thereon, which fee must invariably be paid in money, postage stamps not being receivable therefor.

By the mail immediately following the issue of a money-order, the postmaster transmits the corresponding advice to the postmaster at the office upon which it is drawn. The latter is thus furnished, before the order itself can be presented, with all necessary information to detect fraud, if any should be attempted.

Any office may draw upon any other office in the list of money-order offices for a sum, upon one order, from one dollar to thirty dollars. But when a larger sum than the latter is required, additional orders to make it up must be obtained.

Rates of commission charged for money orders:

On orders not exceeding $10.....10 cents.
Over $10 and not exceeding $30.....15 cents.
Over $30 and up to $30.....20 cents.

No money will be received for orders except coin, United States notes, or notes of the National banks, and orders cannot be paid in any other currency. A money order is rendered invalid unless it is presented to the postmaster on whom it is drawn within ninety days from its date; but the Postmaster General can issue a new order on the application of the payee upon the payment of a second fee. The same course is to be pursued in case the order is lost. In this case, the payee is to furnish a statement, under oath, that the order has been lost or destroyed, accompanied by the certificate of the postmaster that it has not been paid, and will not be paid if thereafter presented.

The payee may transfer his order to another person by endorsing it upon the back. Persons, therefore, residing at places other than those designated in the list of money-order offices can avail themselves of the advantages of this system; but an order cannot be endorsed twice. In commencing the operation of the system, it has been deemed expedient to begin with the larger post offices only. A list of money-order offices will be found at the post office in this city. The total number in the United States is one hundred and thirty-nine. Should circumstances warrant, the number will speedily be increased.

☞ The Congregationalist (newspaper) was suspended by the rise in prices, some time ago; and the Orthodox ministers and churches in New Hampshire, have been suffering the inconvenience of having no paper for their local concerns. This deficiency is now about to be supplied. At the last General Association, a Committee, consisting of Rev. Drs. N. Bouton, A. D. Smith (President of Dartmouth College), and others, were appointed on the subject of establishing a Religious Publication, to be a medium of communication between the Ministers and Churches in the State. After inquiry and consultation the Committee decided on a Monthly Magazine, called The New Hampshire Reporter, devoted to the interests of the Congregational and Presbyterian Churches of New Hampshire, containing twenty-four pages, octavo, and embracing religious intelligence, reports of societies, and other matters of interest. It is to be $1 a year. Rev. Dr. Stone, of Concord, has been engaged as the Publisher and Editor of the Magazine, to be assisted in the editorial department by an Association of Clergymen. He will issue the first number in Jan., 1865, provided subscribers to meet the expense shall be returned. That people are able, and should have an organ of their own.

— J. J. Bingham, the editor of The Indianapolis Sentinel, testified before the military commission at Indianapolis, on Friday, in the case of Dodd and others, confirming the testimony of others in regard to the treasonable purposes of the "Sons of Liberty." Will the Copperheads undertake to say that their leading editor is one of Lincoln's tools?

THE REBELLION.

The Mobile Tribune says the Union fleet in front of that city has been largely increased.

Gen. Gillem's victory was quite brilliant. The rebels were scattered; many officers, a full battery and one extra gun were captured; and Gen. Vaughan, commanding the rebels, was wounded twice. Our loss was only 8 killed and 20 wounded.

The rebels don't seem inclined to give up so in the Shenandoah valley, but Sheridan is watching them.

While Lee claims that he defeated Gen. Grant in his recent movement, the Richmond papers admit that it was a surprise to the rebels and that they lost considerably.

The rebels on Sunday night came near surprising Gen. Grant's forces. They penetrated between the pickets of the 2d and 5th corps, and passing from one post to another took all the men prisoners. They then sent forward a large force to charge the line of breastworks, but one of the pickets escaped and gave the alarm, and the rebels were driven back in confusion and with heavy loss. They failed in repeated attempts to take the works, and gained no further advantage. We lost 387 men captured.

Moseby was routed in an attack on some of our cavalry near Salem, Va., Sunday.

☞ The first attempt to enforce the law passed in Bogota, last May, in relation to the collection of tunnage dues in all the free ports, has been made. The Pacific Railroad Company's steamer Salvador, for Central America, and the Pacific Mail Steamship Company's steamer Golden City, for San Francisco, were ready to sail. The authorities in Panama refused them the regular sailing papers unless a tax of fifty cents per ton was first paid. Both companies refused to pay, and applied to the United States Consul, who issued papers, under which they went to sea. The Consul, in accordance with instructions received a couple of years ago in relation to similar dues, protested against the collection of the tax. The authorities have not yet taken any further steps in the matter.

"A Wonderful Discovery."

DR. TEBBETTS' "PHYSIOLOGICAL HAIR REGENERATOR" is compounded in strict accordance with the well known laws of Physiology and modern vegetable Chemistry. It is not a "DYE," and will not stain a particle. It will "RESTORE GRAY HAIR" in all cases to its original color. It promotes a luxuriant growth of new HAIR in all cases on BALD HEADS, when the glands or roots of the hair are not completely disorganized. It prevents the hair from falling off, and removes all dandruff, heat, humors and itching from the scalp. It keeps the hair soft, moist and perfectly healthy, and gives it a glossy and beautiful appearance. It is highly perfumed, and as a Dressing it has no superior. The "REGENERATOR" is warranted to produce the above results in all cases, if not the money to be refunded. With it every "GRAY HEAD" in New England can be restored in less than sixty days.

Local.

☞ On Monday evening, some half dozen young rowdies at Kittery Foreside, elated by liquor, made a raid upon a daguerrean saloon, — occupied as a dwelling house by two or more carpenters — and besides completely clearing it out, struck one of the inmates, named Aaron Wheelwright, in the face with a stone, inflicting a severe wound. They then made a descent upon a fish-stall and demolished it, scattering the contents with a reckless disregard of economy. They were at last arrested, and the next day were glad to accept almost any terms of settlement. We learn that the matter was adjusted by the disbursement of a number of greenbacks.

☞ Rev. Mr. Lane, of the Baptist Church in this city, delivered a discourse from his pulpit on Sunday afternoon last, upon "the State of the Country"—which we hear spoken of on every hand, as an earnest, eloquent and most impressive argument, of course eminently loyal to the Union and right—and well worthy being heard by all our people, as we hope it may be.

ONE MORE, AND THE LAST.—The greatest trouble with a Clambake, like some other kinds of fun, is, that the more you go, the more you want to keep going. And the Portsmouth guests of the Dover folks, on their grand double celebrations, aforementioned, (though we are sure we don't know what they celebrated, except a good time,—and that is the best celebration, after all,) thinking that two good turns deserved another, shifted places with their former entertainers this time; and on Monday the Strawberry-bankers had the Dover, Concord and Manchester people for their guests.

And a nice little party was gotten up, too; and it is be regretted that of all the distinguished gentlemen gathered from far and near, there was no representative of the editorial profession present — to take notes, faith, and print 'em,—save ourself. However, here goes for a mere mention, though we shall not attempt to do justice to the subject—but only, as Secretary Young says, to "make a record o' that," brief and imperfect. For who cares to be doing anything else, when there are ninepins to roll, pistols to shoot at targets, clambakes to discuss, and pleasant scenery to enjoy.

Dover Point was of course the place again selected—and John Hanson the man. The steamer Pioneer took up half a hundred gentlemen, of all whom it may be said, "digestion waits on appetite." There were Agents and Superintendents; contractors, merchants, Judges; men eminent in physics and metaphysics; distinguished representatives of our Army and Navy; seagoing men, and men who steam it not a little on the rail; railroad kings; representatives in General Court and in Congress, and Governors, real and perspective—business men, mechanics—"christians, gentlemen and scholars," all in together for a jolly time. And they had it.

The Pioneer first steamed over to the Navy Yard; and soon the little Yard ferry-steamer, with a party of ladies and gents on board, followed in our wake up the river. The sight of two boats steaming up the Piscataqua at once, was one we never saw before, and we doubt if anybody ever did. The smart little Emerald could not oblige the "Pioneer" to change her name on this interesting occasion, however, even though the former had ladies on board, whom gallantry forbid to beat. [And no matter if the Emerald did make the best time down the river—neither our boat nor her passengers wanted to get home quick.]

Well, arrived at the Dover Point wharf, the Emerald left her gentlemen passengers, and took the ladies back to the Yard. The boat afterwards came up again, and escorted us home; and of course escorts always go ahead—it would not be polite to do otherwise with them.

Here were the Dover folks—Senator Hale, Representative Bickford, (perhaps,) Col. Geo. Peirce, Judge Sawyer, Dr. Pray, and who not;—from Concord, Gov. Gilmore, Gen. Natt Head, Hon. Peter Sanborn, Hon. Onslow Stearns, Dumas of the Phenix, et al; Mayor Smythe of Manchester; Col. Frank E. Howe, of New York; the gallant Capt. Hough of the N. H. 9th, who was terribly wounded and reported dead at Petersburg; and a "centuri-an" almost, living in the neighborhood; and no matter who else; for what harm if many are omitted from this record, so that they were not left out of the Clambake?

We shall not explain what a Clambake is—for everybody knows or ought to, by this time. Nor shall we tell what was said and done on this particular occasion—for Aaron "made a record of it" all. Mirth and pleasure ruled the hour—and it was indeed inspiriting to get for once out of sight and sound, if never out of sad memory, of dread war, and hardly-less to be feared political strife. The time for leaving came all too quick; and with parting cheers, the party separated till next year; and when they do next try it again, may we be there to see.

☞ On Sunday afternoon last as two men were riding quite rapidly down Pleasant street their carriage was upset at the corner near the South Mill bridge, and they were thrown out, but fortunately not seriously injured. The vehicle was considerably damaged. About an hour later, two other men rode down, and they too met with an accident at the same place. One of them was thrown out, the reins fell under the horse's heels, and the beast became unmanageable, and indulged in a very lively trot down South road for a long distance, finally upsetting the carriage and throwing the occupant out, to his imminent peril, and much against his inclination. He was considerably bruised, and the carriage was damaged to the amount of several dollars.

☞ Capt. Enoch W. Goss, Co. I, 18th N. H. regiment, of this city, was wounded and captured, in Gen. Grant's recent reconnoissance on the 27th of October.

☞ The Parlor Opera Troupe which has been concertizing here, were good performers, and worthy of far better success than they met.

☞ The second Lyceum lecture is announced for the Tuesday evening next after election, the 15th inst., by Mr. Phillips. Subject not yet known.

☞ Among the paroled Union prisoners who arrived at Annapolis from Richmond a few days ago, were G. Damon, Co. K, 32d Maine regiment, of Kittery, and L. F. Brackett, Co. E, 32d, of Kittery,—both taken prisoners at Petersburg, July 30.

THE SAILORS' FAIR.

MESSRS. EDITORS:—

The ladies of this city who are interested in the Sailors' Fair, wish to call the attention of your readers again to the subject.—They have engaged to furnish a Portsmouth table at the fair, and are anxious that our city should be adequately represented. Almost all the large towns of New England are engaged to take part on the occasion, and some of them are making magnificent preparations. Our Portsmouth table must not stand lowest.

Our call has in many cases been handsomely responded to, but in order to complete success more aid is needed. We make use of your columns to invite further contributions of fancy articles, books, stationery, dry goods, pictures, objects of interest and curiosity, anything in short, which will meet with a ready sale or make our table attractive: and of money which will buy what we need.

We invite all who are interested in so excellent a cause, or in the credit of Portsmouth, to contribute something.

The Chapel on Court-street, will be open on Thursday, Nov. 4, from 10 A. M. until evening, and a Committee will be in attendance to receive donations.

On Friday, Nov. 5, it will be open from 2 P. M., until evening, for the exhibition of the articles prepared.

Admittance to the exhibition 15 cents.

The proof of the pudding is not in chewing the string, but in eating and testing. The same rule will apply to the J. Monroe Taylor Gold Medal Soap. Our better half says it has no equal, and will do much better work, and go much farther, besides leaving the clothes in a much better state after washing. We do not hesitate to pronounce it far superior to any soap in the market. Go get a bar and try it—most all the merchants sell it. 23

The Rev. C. W. Vining, who has safely returned from a journey in the East, thoughtfully brings us, among other curiosities, some of the newspapers published in Egypt and Turkey. They are in four languages, French, Turkish, Armenian and Greek. We cannot read them, but he can, and through his patience we have been gratified to learn their contents, and the materials of which newspapers are made up in the land of Osmanlis. Our American enterprise is well represented: stoves, wooden and tin ware, ploughs, axes, tools are advertised from this country. In each of the four languages are heralded the virtues of the remedies made by our celebrated countrymen, Dr. J. C. AYER & Co., of Lowell. They seem not to depend on their home reputation for confidence abroad, but publish the certificates of the Mussulmen rulers themselves, to the cures which those medicines have made in their midst. The Rev. gentleman informs us that the whole of the remedial aid employed in those countries comes from Europe or America, as they possess no medical colleges or schools in which they have any confidence themselves. There arose the religious ideas which pervade the human family, but almost all that is useful in art or invention must be carried back to these, the earlier settlements of mankind.—Lynn News.

RYE, N. H., Feb. 26, 1846. "I hereby certify that my daughter has had the salt rheum for a number of years—some of the time so badly as to prevent her labor, or even rest—as it affected her hands very much. A large sum had been expended to the most celebrated physicians, for Sarsaparilla Syrup, &c., &c., but she obtained no relief until I procured some ten or twelve bottles of DR. SWETT'S PANACEA, and several bottles of his Humor Wash, which have effected a cure. There can be no mistake, as this cure was effected more than three years ago. No other medicines can equal Dr. Swett's in removing the various kinds of humors. I have sold it to a number of my acquaintances, who were afflicted, and witnessed many full cures effected by it since I have acted as agent for the sale of it. JEREMIAH JENNESS.

PORTSMOUTH, April 21st, 1862.

I have for several years been afflicted with distress at my stomach, loss of appetite, and often vomited up all of my food immediately after eating it, and all medicine failed to give any relief until about a year ago, when I took one bottle of DR. S. SWETT'S PANACEA, which fully cured me, so that I have not had the least trouble from any of these complaints since, and I enjoy good health. M. LEWD.

From ELDER I. CRESLEY, Lee, May 31, 1841.

DR. SWETT: Permit me to testify, as I feel in duty bound to do, that my daughter was afflicted with scrofulous humor, and that previous to your visiting our house in the spring of 1840, she had been confined for a number of months, without her natural rest by day or night. She had applied to a number of physicians, but continued to grow weaker till she commenced using your PANACEA and HUMOR WASH. Since then, she has recovered her health so far as to rest quietly by night, and labor by day. I esteem your medicine one of the best that can be found for the disease above named." I. CRESLEY.

☞ Any one returning the remainder of a bottle or box of Dr. Swett's medicines shall have pay for it, if it do not agree with his case, or if not worth the price. All orders directed to DR. S. SWETT, No. 7 High street, Portsmouth, N. H., promptly attended to. mav26

AYER'S PILLS.

ARE YOU SICK, FEEBLE AND COMPLAINING? Are you out of order, with your system deranged and your feelings uncomfortable? These symptoms are often the prelude to serious illness. Some fit of sickness is creeping upon you, and should be averted by a timely use of the right remedy. Take AYER'S PILLS, and cleanse out the disordered humors—purify the blood, and let the fluids move on unobstructed in health again. They stimulate the functions of the body into vigorous activity, and purify the system from the obstructions which make disease. A cold settles somewhere in the body and deranges its natural functions. These, if not relieved, react upon themselves and the surrounding organs, producing general aggravation, suffering and derangement. While in this condition, take Ayer's Pills, and how directly they restore the natural action of the system, and with it the buoyant feeling of health again. What is true and so apparent in this trivial and common complaint is also true in many of the deep-seated and dangerous distempers. The same purgative effect expels them. Caused by similar obstructions and derangements of the natural functions of the body, they are rapidly and many of them surely cured by the same means. None who know the virtue of these Pills will neglect to employ them when suffering from the disorders they cure, such as Headache, Foul Stomach, Dysentery, Bilious Complaints, Indigestion, Derangement of the Liver, Costiveness, Constipation, Heartburn, Rheumatism, Dropsy, Worms and Suppression, when taken in large doses.

They are Sugar Coated, so that the most sensitive can take them easily, and they are surely the best purgative medicine yet discovered.

Ayer's Ague Cure,

For the speedy and certain cure of Intermittent Fever, or Chills and Fever, Remittent Fever, Chill Fever, Dumb Ague, Periodical Headache or Bilious Headache, and Bilious Fevers; indeed, for the whole class of diseases originating in bilious derangement caused by the malaria of miasmatic countries.

This remedy has rarely failed to cure the severest cases of Chills and Fever, and it has this great advantage over other Ague medicines, that it subdues the complaint without injury to the patient. It contains no quinine or other deleterious substance, nor does it produce quinism or any injurious effect whatever. Shaking brothers of the Army and the West, try it and you will endorse these assertions.

Prepared by J. C. AYER & Co., Lowell, Mass., and sold by Brackett Hutchings, J. H. Thacher, W. R. Preston, David Kimball, and all druggists. e2ddlaw 2m Tu

SAVE YOUR FUEL!

THE MODEL COOK.

IS, IN FACT,

The Best Stove Out,

for economy, convenience and dispatch.

Many people think it best to use an old stove as long as possible, but it is far better to throw it away and purchase a MODEL COOK, than to keep it at the present high price of fuel.

One of our shrewdest citizens who purchased a MODEL COOK STOVE a year since, says he has saved more than its cost already.

A careful, prudent farmer purchased one, and after it had been in operation some days his son came into the store and said, "something was wrong at their house;" his father and himself used wood off the same pile, he burned three baskets full a day, and his father only one! We sold him a Stove before he left, and there has been no complaint since.

These Stoves are in use in many hotels and boarding houses, and in hundreds of private families in this city and vicinity, and give the best of satisfaction.

PRICES REDUCED.

The subscriber has reduced the prices of the Model Cook Stoves FIVE DOLLARS each, to conform to the decline in gold.

THE MAGEE COOKING STOVE.

The subscriber, having received his Fall stock of stoves, would especially call the attention of the public to the

MAGEE COOK STOVE,

as the very best Stove yet made, and would invite those about purchasing or exchanging Stoves, to examine this, believing it to be far superior to any other Stove yet invented, the castings being heavier, and the oven larger than usual. Oven plates are covered with plaster, which renders it equal to the old-fashioned brick oven for perfection in baking.

There is a new style and very superior broiler and sad-iron heater combined, by which the odor of broiling meats are prevented from escaping into the room. With the extension top there is a large copper Reservoir for hot water; also a large tin warming-closet attached, in which any article can be kept warm, while the other parts of the Stove are occupied for other purposes.

The arrangements for sifting the coal and cleaning the grate are far superior to those of any other Stove now in use, as no dust can possibly escape into the room, and the shovelling up of the ashes is entirely dispensed with. The fire is regulated in the same manner as in the MAGEE PARLOR STOVE, and can be continued day and night for weeks together, thus saving the expense of re-kindling every day.

For economy, durability, ease of management, cleanliness and perfection in cooking, it cannot be surpassed by any other Stove, as hundreds of families in this city and vicinity, who are now using them, are willing to testify, and speak of them in the highest terms of praise.

We would refer to the following purchasers:

"MAGEE'S PATENT"

VENTILATING & AIR WARMING

FURNACES.

The subscriber, being the Sole Agent in this vicinity for the manufacture and sale of this valuable Furnace, would ask those about purchasing or erecting buildings to examine this truly valuable invention.

For economy, purity of air and ease of management it has no equal, providing a current of warm air, most safe and agreeable—and as none of the air which comes in contact with the fire-pot is used for respiration, the tendency to produce contact so much complained of in other furnaces, is entirely obviated.

The objects aimed at by the constructors of heating apparatus have been to obtain the greatest amount of heat from a given amount of fuel, and to prevent the escape of heat to the smoke pipe or chimney.

To accomplish this many complicated and expensive heating arrangements have been constructed, some producing but little improvement over the old methods, while many have proved a total failure. The reason for this is obvious. The combustible gases being lighter than the air, pass off into the chimney or chamber without being consumed. This objection, so common in other Furnaces, is obviated in the

MAGEE FURNACE.

The flue or pipe in this Furnace being below the fire-pot, the gases, from their specific gravity, cannot descend, and are burned in the chamber of the fire-pot, which ignites them as they pass off from the coal, thus saving at least 20 per cent. of the properties of the heat in the fuel.

No heating apparatus with the smoke-pipe or flue on the top of the cone can be made to consume the gases of the coal, and pass off with a large portion of the heat generated, making the chimney the hottest part of your dwelling.

This Furnace does away with the great number of pipes and angles for the radiation of heat, which are so liable to sift and get out of order, thus simplifying, while it increases the surface of radiation.

These Furnaces consume all the coal, make no clinkers, the sifting of ashes is entirely dispensed with, and they will save from 30 to 50 per cent. of fuel over common Furnaces.

For ease of management, economy and purity of air these Furnaces have no equal. They can be regulated so as to give any amount of heat required, and the fire may be kept the entire season without once going out.

They give entire satisfaction wherever used. We have in store the different sizes, Brick and Portable, to which we invite the attention of those in want of the best Furnace in the world.—and would refer them to the following named gentlemen, who have them now in use:

Samuel Cleaves, Esq.,	Albert R. Hatch, Esq.,
Aaron H. Hill,	Charles H. Mendum,
Henry F. Wendell,	John Sise, and others.

CHEROKEE REMEDY

—AND—

CHEROKEE INJECTION,

Compounded from Roots, Barks & Leaves.

CHEROKEE REMEDY, the great Indian Diuretic, cures all diseases of the urinary organs, such as Incontinence of the Urine, Inflammation of the Bladder, Inflammation of the Kidneys, Stone in the Bladder, Stricture, Gravel, Gleet, Gonorrhœa, and is especially recommended in those cases of Whites in Females, where all the old nauseous medicines have failed.

It is prepared in a highly concentrated form, the dose only being from one to two tablespoonfuls three times per day.

It is diuretic and alterative in its action; purifying and cleansing the blood, causing it to flow in all of its original purity and vigor; thus removing from the system all pernicious causes which have induced disease.

CHEROKEE INJECTION is intended as an ally or assistant to the CHEROKEE REMEDY, and should be used in conjunction with that medicine in all cases of Gonorrhœa, Gleet, Fluor Albus or Whites. Its effects are healing, soothing and demulcent; removing all scalding, heat, obstruction and pain, instead of the burning and almost unendurable pain that is experienced with nearly all the cheap quack injections.

☞ By the use of the CHEROKEE REMEDY and CHEROKEE INJECTION—the two medicines at the same time—all improper discharges will be stopped and the weakened organs are speedily restored to full vigor and strength.

For full particulars get our pamphlet from any drug store in the country, or write us and we will mail free, to any address, a full treatise.

WEEP NOT FOR HER.

S Bigg.

BY DAVID MACBETH MOIR,
The "Delta" of Blackwood's Magazine.

Weep not for her! O, she was far too fair,
Too pure to dwell on this guilt-tainted earth!
The sinless glory, and the golden air
Of Zion, seemed to claim her from her birth:
A spirit wandered from its native zone,
Which, soon discovering, took her for its own:
Weep not for her!

Weep not for her! Her span was like the sky,
Whose thousand stars shine beautiful and bright;
Like flowers, that known not what it is to die;
Like long-linked, shadeless months of Polar light;
Like music floating o'er a waveless lake,
While Echo answers from her flowery brake:
Weep not for her!

Weep not for her! She died in early youth,
Ere Hope had lost its rich romantic hues;
When human bosoms seem to be the home of truth,
And earth still gleamed with beauty's radiant dews.
Her summer-prime waned not to days that freeze;
Her wine of life was run not to the lees:
Weep not for her!

Weep not for her! By fleet or slow decay,
It never grieved her bosom's core to mark
The playmates of her childhood wane away,
Her prospects wither, or her hopes grow dark;
Translated by her God, with spirit shriven,
She passed as 'twere in smiles from earth to heaven!
Weep not for her!

Weep not for her! It was not her's to feel
The miseries that corrode amassing years,
Gainst dreams of baffled bliss the heart to steel,
To wander and down Age's vale of tears,
As whirl the withered leaves from Friendship's tree,
And on earth's wintry wold alone to be:
Weep not for her!

Weep not for her! She is an angel now,
And treads the saphire floors of Paradise;
All darkness wiped from her refulgent brow,
Sin, sorrow, suffering, banished from her eyes:
Victorious over death, to her appear
The vista'd joys of Heaven's eternal year:
Weep not for her!

Weep not for her! Her memory is the shrine
Of pleasant thoughts, soft as the scent of flowers,
Calm as on windless eve the sun's decline,
Sweet as the song of birds among the bowers,
Rich as the rainbow with its hue of light,
Pure as the moonshine of an autumn night:
Weep not for her!

Weep not for her! There is no cause for woe;
But rather nerve the spirit, that it walk
Unshrinking o'er the thorny path below,
And from earth's low defilements keep thee back:
So, when a few fleet, savoring years have flown,
She'll meet thee at Heaven's gate — and lead thee on!
Weep not for her!

MARRYING AT LARGE.—At Buffalo, recently, a Justice of the Peace was called to go to a German house in the city, and marry a couple. Putting on a clean collar, and slipping a marriage certificate into his pocket, he started for the festive scene. Arriving at the house under the direction of a blue-legged little boy, who pointed out the place, he knocked and went in. In the middle of the floor stood a stout German girl sorry and plump, her blue eyes rolling out tears as big as butter pats.

"What's the matter?" said the sympathetic Justice.

"Matter," said the girl, "Dat Gotlieb went off, and wouldn't marry me; ain't it matter enough?"

The Justice said he supposed it was, and intimated that he had come to marry spue one, and requested the old lady to bring on the lambs to the sacrifice.

The old lady said, "dare vos no lambs—Gotlieb ish run off and will not marry mine Katarina."

"Well," said the Justice, "Gotleib isn't the only man there is—send for some other man to marry her."

At this Katarina's face brightened up, and she ejaculated, "Yah—dat ish goot—send mit Hans."

Hans was sent for, but unfortunately could not come. When her messenger returned, Katarina determined not to give it up, and said, "Send mit Shoseph." Shoseph was sent for, but he couldn't be found.

Katarina's heart fell at this news and the Justice was growing impatient. Just then Katarina looked out of the window and saw a short and thick young German going by, when she rushed to the door and hallooed, "Fritz,—Fritz!" Fritz shortly made his appearance at the door, when Katarina's mother said—"Fritz, you lofs mine Katarina?" Fritz allowed he did, more as sourkrout.

"Then stand up here," thundered the Justice; and before Fritz could realize his position, he was man and wife, and Katarina's arms were around his neck, and her lips pressed to his, she crying between the calisthenics, "Mein husband—mein Fritz."

Our duty as a correct historian compels us to say that Fritz hugged back as well as he knew how.

The Justice, with head erect, stepped smilingly out, leaving the lovers to themselves, and walked away meditatively, a holy calm stealing all over his massive proportions, the conciousness of having done his duty gleaming in his eye, and honor, honesty and rectitude in his footsteps.

Some maiden ladies made soldiers' shirts about a foot too short, having no pattern to go by, and but little information. A wag wrote on their bundle.—

Like a man without a wife,
Like a ship without a sail,
The oddest thing in life
Is a shirt without a—proper length.

— The cucugo, a small Mexican insect, promises to take a position in the world—a position in ladies' hair for an ornament. It is said to possess wonderful qualities—beauty of color and a lustre dazzling even the diamond, and as varying in bright hues.

— From 800 to 900 men are constantly at work on the Hoosac Tunnel. The dam which is building across the Deerfield river on the east side of the mountain, in order to furnish power to keep the tunnel supplied with pure air, will cost $100,000.

— A new and magnificent hotel, to be called the Hoffman House, on the corner of Broadway and 25th streets, New York, was to be opened on the 1st.

American and Foreign Patents.
R. H. EDDY,
SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,
Late Agent of U. S. Patent Office, Washington, (under the Act of 1857,)
76 State street, opposite Kilby street,
Boston.

After an extensive practice of upwards of twenty years, continues to secure Patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Also, Specifications, Bonds Assignments, and all Papers or Drawings for Patents, executed on liberal terms, and with dispatch. Research made into American or Foreign works, to determine the validity or utility of patents or inventions—and legal or other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any Patent furnished by remitting One Dollar. Assignments recorded at Washington.

The Agency is not only the largest in New England, but through it inventors have advantages for securing Patents, or ascertaining the probability of inventions unsurpassed by, if not immeasurably superior to, any which can be offered them elsewhere. The testimonials herewith prove that none is MORE SUCCESSFUL AT THE PATENT OFFICE than the subscriber; and as SUCCESS IS THE BEST PROOF OF ADVANTAGES AND ABILITY, he would add that he has abundant reason to believe, and can prove, that at no other office of the kind are the charges for professional service so moderate.

The immense practice of the subscriber during twenty years past, has enabled him to accumulate a number of valuable specifications and official decisions relative to patents.

These, besides his extensive library of legal and mechanical works, with all the official records granted in the United States and Europe, render him able, beyond question, to offer superior facilities for obtaining Patents.

All necessity of a journey to Washington, to procure a patent, and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse."
CHARLES MASON,
Commissioner of Patents.

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a person more competent and trustworthy, and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office."
EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents.

Mr. R. H. Eddy has made for me THIRTEEN applications, on all but one of which patents have been granted, and that is now pending. Such unmistakeable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend all inventors to apply to him to procure their patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases, and at very reasonable charges."
JOHN TAGGART.

During eight months, the subscriber, in course of his large practice, made on twice rejected applications SIXTEEN APPEALS, EVERY ONE of which was decided in his favor, by the Commissioner of Patents.

Morning Chronicle.

Portsmouth, N. H.

THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 3D, 1864.

THE WAR DEMOCRATS' National Convention at the Cooper Institute, New York City, on Tuesday, was largely attended, every loyal State, including California and Oregon, being represented by delegates. Hon. James Worrell, of Pennsylvania, presided. W. T. Watson was the Vice President from this State. Gen. Walbridge, of New York, addressed the Convention in a stirring and forcible manner. Referring to the relative positions of the true and false Democracy, he said the former have stood and are still standing by the Country, while the latter, at Chicago, had attempted a surrender of the principles of Nationality and Union, and were in sympathy with the rebels.

The resolutions, an abstract of which is given by a special dispatch to the Boston Herald, are substantially as follows—

That, as persons acting under the title of Democrats and actuated by treasonable motives, are aiding the Rebellion and injuring the National prospects, all true Democrats are required by loyalty to their Government to sustain their country in this crisis.

That, scorning the suggestion of a craven submission, we will boldly carry the war through, until Peace, founded upon the Union, shall be restored.

That, although mistakes may have occurred, we believe the war is now pressed with commendable energy, and we deprecate any change that might result in removing Grant, Sheridan, Sherman, and Farragut, Porter and Winslow.

That the war under the above named heroes has not been a failure.

That it is neither good policy nor compatible with the dignity of our Government to request a cessation of hostilities, nor any other terms of settlement until the rebels express a desire to return to the Union.

That, while we admit occasional acts of weakness in the Administration, we accept the consequent duty of supporting and strengthening it, without regard to the party affinities of the incumbents. And, utterly repudiating the doctrine of Secession, we favor the employment of the most vigorous measures for the restoration of the Union with its obligations unaltered and its integrity unimpaired.

That, as no nation has ever been able to conduct a war approaching in magnitude the conflict that now desolates our country without a financial pressure, we recognize and submit to the necessity, being convinced that the boundless resources of a restored Union will be amply sufficient to meet our liabilities, and that the salvation of our country is well worth all its costs.

We therefore urge our fellow-Democrats to sustain the Government as it exists, and to support in the coming Presidential election the candidates that express these views.

The Convention was addressed by the President, and by Hon. Joseph R. Whitney, Capt. Halstead and other delegates; and a strong letter from Gen. Wool, embodying the same sentiments as contained in the resolutions, was received. Great harmony and enthusiasm marked the proceedings, and the Convention adjourned to assemble in a mass meeting in the evening.

The Cooper Institute was crowded to suffocation in the evening. Hon. Francis B. Cutting presided, and patriotically addressed the immense assemblage. He closed by introducing Maj. Gen. Dix, who enchained the vast audience for an hour in an eloquent appeal in support of the Government in its persistent and patriotic endeavors to crush the traitors, not only South but North of Mason and Dixon's line. His remarks relative to the course of the so-styled present Democratic party were characterized by much patriotic feeling, and elicited the warmest applause. Hon. Edward Pierrepont and Hon. Henry G. Stebbins also addressed the assemblage, which separated with cheers for the Army and Navy and for the maintenance of our Government.

— Maine papers complain loudly of the railroad system of that State. When the Legislature is in session, if a Portlander wishes to appear before any of the Legislative committees, he is compelled to consume three days in order to do so, although Augusta is but 60 miles distant. And the Boston papers reach the interior towns of Maine as early as those published in Portland.

— Cortinas, the Mexican commander, refused to sell his fine rifled cannon to rebel agents, who were at Matamoras at the time of his surrender, declaring that the rebels were not only the enemies of the United States, but the enemies of republican government on the American continent; and that if it had not been for the rebels Mexico would not have been invaded by the French, nor would an Austrian be the Emperor of the Mexican nation.

— New questions in regard to the legality of the execution of Green, the Malden murderer, have arisen. It is said there are two points of difficulty, one as to the authority of a single judge to sentence for murder, and the other as to the effect of a plea of "guilty of murder in the first degree,"—it being urged that this plea does not remove the necessity of having a jury pass on the question of degree, under the present statute, before sentence of death can be passed.

THE REBELLION.

Hood's infantry are at Bainbridge, threatening to invade Tennessee,—an evidence of desperation on his part. Gen. Thomas is at Nashville, and prepared for any movement Hood may make in that direction; while Gen. Sherman holds Atlanta firmly. A portion of Forrest's men were routed with the loss of their arms, ammunition, baggage, and many horses, last week—locality not stated. Strong reinforcements of Union cavalry have arrived at Paducah, Ky., and caused Forrest to change his plans. He, with a cavalry force, is now reported to be threatening Johnsonville, where there are large quantities of Government stores. Three transports have been destroyed by part of his command. Ample preparations have been made to hold Johnsonville, and effectually repulse any force the rebels may bring against it.

Non-combatants have been required to leave Wilmington, N. C., which place the rebels are making great preparations to defend.

The N. Y. Tribune's dispatch says of Gen. Grant's late movement: The new angle of a mile and a half west and the same southwest, acquired on our left, is being strongly fortified, and the army line railroad is to be immediately pushed out two or three miles beyond the present terminus. The way this important extension of our fortified line was so easily and cheaply made, was by the rebels weakening their lines to intercept what they took to be a flank movement around their extreme right. While the rebels were massing against the extreme left, the 9th corps shoved in at the front and took a line of their works, which was reversed, and now forms our new left angle. Probably not during the war has so important an extension of a fortified line been made with so little fighting.

☞ The New York Evening Post has the following description of the torpedo boat named Stromboli, which has lately been tested satisfactorily :—

"The hull is of wood, seventy-five feet in length, twenty feet beam, and seven feet deep, and constructed in the most substantial manner, with heavy deck beams supported by hanging knees, securly bolted and fastened. The deck, two feet in thickness, is crowned two feet fore and aft, and about as much athwartships, and is now receiving an iron armor of two inches in thickness, to render it proof against shot and shell.

The Stromboli lies very low in the water, and when in service as a torpedo boat is further submerged by filling water tight tanks, which brings her down so that scarcely any part of her deck is above the surface of the water. The only objects visible above the deck are the pilot house, thirty-eight inches in height, the smoke stack, which is only a trifle higher, and a small ventilator, which can be removed if desired. With such a small surface exposed it is doubtful whether she will ever be hit.

The general appearance of this craft is peculiar. Descending through a small hatchway, which is closed while the vessel is underway or in action, the visitor may see some curious appliances. Abaft the midship is the engine, which was built at Mystic, Ct., and has a cylinder eighteen inches in diameter and eighteen inches stroke—a compact yet powerful affair, working the screw at an average rate of fifty revolutions a minute, or about ten miles an hour. The boiler, situated forward, is built of extra strength, to carry a very high pressure of steam. The steering apparatus is directly underneath the little pilot house, and so close to the commanding officer that he can give the helmsman his orders without the use of a bell, which might attract the enemy's attention. In the bow of the vessel is the torpedo machine, which cannot now be fully described.

The crew of the vessel consists of three engineer officers, one pilot and nine firemen and coal heavers—a force abundantly able to do all the work required of them. When a vessel is to be destroyed the torpedo craft steams boldly out, and as she approaches her victim she is settled in the water so as to present but little surface to the shot which may be directed at her. Nearing the doomed vessel a torpedo, charged with from sixty to two hundred pounds of powder, is placed in a 'torpedo basket,' which is attached to a long arm running through a stuffing box. This basket is now inside of a water tight box, with a lid or cover, which is opened when the torpedo is placed in position. This having been done, the cover is screwed down, the gate at the bow of the vessel is opened, and the arm is run out for a distance of about thirty feet. The vessel now rapidly approaches her intended victim, and passing close alongside, the torpedo is detached from the basket, the arm is withdrawn, and at the instant desired the charge explodes, causing the instant destruction of the vessel. The torpedo vessel receives none of the shock.

The method of constructing the torpedo is a secret. It is sufficient, however, to know that this is not one of the many experiments which have failed to produce valuable results. In no instance has this invention been found deficient in power or quickness of execution.

The advent of this new class of vessels marks another era in naval warfare, and European naval officers who have an inkling of this affair are very much exercised over the matter. The torpedo attachment is now in course of application to about twenty vessels of our navy, exclusive of the fleet of picket-boats lately constructed by the Navy Department. The Stromboli and her torpedoes will soon be called upon to do some peculiar service, when we shall probably be able to demonstrate to the world that we have the best and most destructive naval war machine afloat."

The lion, getting alarmed by the voice of his master, at length let go its hold. M. Verner, although bleeding profusely from the wounds he had received, immediately inflicted severe chastisement on the unruly beast.

— Col. Berdan's New Rifle was tried near Utica recently. The distance was 1,200 yards; target six feet in diameter, or regulation size. Col. Berdan accomplished what is asserted to be the best shooting on record. Soon after the trial commenced he hit the "bull's eye" four times in succession, then missed it by a trifle the fifth, and hit it again the sixth.

— The English people are refined and cultivated, and boast of it. Yet at a fair recently there was exhibited publicly a being in human shape, wearing only the savage garb around his waist, who devoured rats for John Bull's delight and edification. A dozen were brought to him alive; he seized one after another in his hand, and, placing its head between his teeth, with a sickening crash of the skull, instantly killed it, and devoured the whole in a little over a minute. Only three or four tails were left when he had finished his meal.

— The N. Y. Atlas has ascertained that in military, as in other matters, when any particular thing becomes popular it is apt to be carried to extremes; and it instances the flanking business in the Southwest. Slocum is in Atlanta; Hood is in his rear; Sherman is in the rear of Hood; Forrest is in his rear; Thomas is in the rear of Forrest; and Wheeler is said to be in his rear; Rosecrans is expected to come in the rear of Wheeler, and then Breckinridge in his rear, and so on. The thing is rear-ly getting to be very mixed up, and somewhat incomprehensible to ordinary mortals.

A PLUCKY EXPLOIT. — Rear Adm. Porter reports, that by his order Lieut. W. B. Cushing made a daring expedition up Roanoke river in a launch, to the anchorage of the rebel ram Albermarle, with which the Sassacus had her celebrated fight, and on the 18th of Oct. blew her up with a torpedo. The Albermarle was blown in pieces and sunk. Her destruction was complete. The launch was also destroyed, by the enemy's shot, and sunk. Lieut. Cushing and one man escaped. The rest were captured. The ram was preparing for a raid among our fleet in Albermarle Sound. Lieut. Cushing has done several daring deeds during the war, but none more gratifying to the loyal people of the North than this.

— Gen. Birney having left his family in a destitute condition, his friends in Philadelphia are raising a fund for the benefit of his widow and children.

HALE'S

Honey of Hoarhound Tar,

For the cure of Coughs, Colds, Influenza, Hoarseness, Difficult Breathing, and all Affections of the Throat, Bronchial Tubes and Lungs, leading to Consumption.

This sovereign remedy is compounded from the favorite recipe of an illustrious Physician and Chemist, who for many years used it with the most complete success in his extensive private practice.

He had long been profoundly impressed with the wonderful virtue of the honey of the plant Hoarhound, in union with the Cleansing and Healing properties of Tar extracted from the Life Principle of the forest tree Abies Balsamea, or Balm of Gilead. For years he was baffled in his attempts to blend these great medicinal forces into such a union that the original power of each would be preserved, the disagreeable qualities of common tar removed, and the price of the compound be within the means of all. At last after a long course of chemical experiments, he found that by adding to these two other ingredients, each one valuable in itself, he not only obtained the desired results but greatly increased the curative power of the compound. This having been thoroughly tested by practice, is now offered to the general public as a safe, pleasant and infallible remedy.

THOUGH DISTANT YET LOYAL.—We learn from the Otago Daily Times that a few of the leading American residents at Dunedin, New Zealand, celebrated the 89th anniversary of American Independence by a dinner at the Shamrock Hotel at that place, about forty gentlemen being present. The third regular toast was—"The 89th Anniversary of American Independence," and the Chairman called upon Mr. George L. Sise, a native of this city, to respond. The Times says: "Mr. Sise's name was heartily welcomed by the company; and he replied, saying that all Americans might well drink this toast with thankfulness, because it had cost them much toil, blood, and treasure to maintain their independence. Now that a war is raging in their country, some thought they were near their death, but he believed that they would come forth from the ordeal, purified and better than they ever were—with no North and no South, but one united people."

Among the other toasts were—the Queen; Gen. Washington; Gen. Grant; The Union as it was—may we ere long see it the same; The President of the United States; etc., etc. Responses were made by Americans and Englishmen, but one spirit animating them all—that our present war might speedily terminate in the establishment of Right and Justice.

☞ It will be seen by the advertisement that Shorey, Shannon and Goodrich's Constitution Minstrels are to give a concert at the Temple this evening, and a second tomorrow evening. Of course, there will be no end of fun, and lots of people to enjoy it.

NEW HAMPSHIRE ITEMS.

——There is to be a grand Union mass meeting in Dover on Friday, Nov. 4, to commence at 10 o'clock, A. M., and to continue through the day and evening. In the day-time there will be a procession, with bands of music, a cavalcade, &c.; and in the evening there will be a torch-light procession, with music, fireworks, chinese lanterns, banners, transparencies, illuminations, &c. Gov. Gilmore, Col. Harriman, Senator John P. Hale, Capt. John L. Swift, Hon. N. B. Bryant, Rev. A. H. Quint, and other distinguished speakers are expected to address the meetings.

——Maj. Jesse F. Angell, 10th N. H. Vols., has just received an honorable discharge from service, on account of physical disability from wounds received in action near Fort Darling on the 13th of last May.

——J. W. Beede of Meredith Village has a calf of the Durham Short Horn breed, 6 months old, girth 5 feet, and weighing 600 pounds.

THE UNION DEMONSTRATION in Newburyport on Tuesday evening was a great success. The illuminations were very numerous, and the decorations, designs and inscriptions admirable,—no such display having been witnessed in the city since Lafayette was their guest. The cavalcade was large, consisting of over five hundred horses. The Herald says: "Our friends from Portsmouth and Amesbury did much in swelling the number; and by their appropriate mottoes, banners, transparencies, and bands of music, added much to the general interest of the evening."

The proceedings were interrupted at several points along the route by outrages by drunken rowdies. In one street a gang of roughs were drawn up, armed with stones, brickbats and pistols, with which an assault was made. About fifty lanterns were broken, the instruments of one of the bands injured and several men knocked down, and one was slightly wounded by a pistol shot. After the procession had passed, a gang proceeded to the house of a citizen, who displayed a transparency bearing inscriptions obnoxious to traitors, and commenced an assault with stones and other missiles. They skedaddled just in season to escape a shot from a pistol which is always kept in readiness for such emergencies. The names of some of the parties are known, and there will probably be an investigation of the matter.

— Dispatches were received in Portland on Tuesday, stating that an unsuccessful attempt was made Monday night to capture the old fort at Castine. No particulars were given, either as to the number making the attack or how it was repelled.

A later dispatch gives the particulars of the attack. At midnight a small party of men approached from the rear, and when challenged they immediately fired upon the sentinel, who returned the fire. The garrison mustered promptly and pursued the raiders about half a mile, firing upon them and they replying, when they took to a boat and escaped. Their object was supposed to be the capture of the U. S. cutter lying in the harbor. The city has been put in a state of defence. By orders from Gov. Cony the Home Guards are in readiness for duty, and the city government has increased and armed the police.

— 41 counties in Pennsylvania give, officially, with the soldiers' vote, 14,039 Union majority.

— The N. Y. Tribune's Washington dispatch says of the election frauds, that Marvin Jones, Col. North's Chief Assistant, has made a full confession of his complicity in the forgery, and that the business has been carried on at Col. North's agency much more extensively than at Baltimore. The complete implication of Col. North staggers the Commission sent on by Seymour. He will probably be tried on Friday or Saturday. He had the Washington agency.

— At a recent funeral in Honolulu the procession consisted of one hundred and forty-four females, all dressed in black skirts, with white waists and straw hats, tastefully trimmed, and with a broad sash of red and yellow ribbon over the shoulders crossed with a rosette at the waist. There were several native marshals on horseback, wearing the same gaudy sashes.

— A rag gatherers' ball came of in Toronto a few evenings since, at which there were 800 ragmen, and their wives, sweethearts, acquaintances and friends. The Leader says everything was conducted in the most orderly manner, and about four o'clock in the morning they returned to their bowels and their business, evidently highly pleased with the entertainment.

— Gov. Seymour of New York has issued a proclamation calling upon all parties to keep quiet and orderly in the coming election, but instructing sheriffs not to allow any military near the polls. If he will take care of his "friends" there will be no trouble.

— The Toronto Globe publishes correspondence from New York, stating that "extensive secret arrangements are being made by rebels in New York to bring about a collision between the United States and Great Britain, making Canada the troublesome ground."

— They have discovered in France,—where they discover all sorts of funny things,—a young lady who is entirely blind in the day time but sees perfectly well in the darkest night. Whether she sees in any other night is not stated.

THE SAILORS' FAIR.

MESSRS. EDITORS:—

The ladies of this city who are interested in the Sailors' Fair, wish to call the attention of your readers again to the subject.—They have engaged to furnish a Portsmouth table at the fair, and are anxious that our city should be adequately represented. Almost all the large towns of New England are engaged to take part on the occasion, and some of them are making magnificent preparations. Our Portsmouth table must not stand lowest.

Our call has in many cases been handsomely responded to, but in order to complete success more aid is needed. We make use of your columns to invite further contributions of fancy articles, books, stationery, dry goods, pictures, objects of interest and curiosity, anything in short, which will meet with a ready sale or make our table attractive; and of money which will buy what we need.

We invite all who are interested in so excellent a cause, or in the credit of Portsmouth, to contribute something.

The Chapel on Court-street, will be open on Thursday, Nov. 4, from 10 A. M. until evening, and a Committee will be in attendance to receive donations.

On Friday, Nov. 5, it will be open from 2 P. M., until evening, for the exhibition of the articles prepared.

Admittance to the exhibition 15 cents.

The proof of the pudding is not in chewing the string, but in eating and testing. The same rule will apply to the J. Monroe Taylor Gold Medal Soap. Our better half says it has no equal, and will do much better work, and go much further, besides leaving the clothes in a much better state after washing. We do not hesitate to pronounce it far superior to any soap in the market. Go get a bar and try it—most all the merchants sell it. 23

HUNNEWELL'S STANDARD PREPARATIONS.—On our inside columns will be found a notice of these justly celebrated and standard preparations, of unbounded reputation in New England, profess only what they are—remedies for, are for sale by all wholesale and retail dealers, and confidence is asked to test them. See advertisement.

SAVE YOUR FUEL:

THE MODEL COOK.

IS, IN FACT,

The Best Stove Out,

for economy, convenience and dispatch.

Many people think it best to use an old stove as long as possible, but it is far better to throw it away and purchase a MODEL COOK, than to keep it at the present high price of fuel.

One of our shrewdest citizens who purchased a MODEL COOK STOVE a year since, says he has saved more than its cost already.

A careful, prudent farmer purchased one, and after it had been in operation some days his son came into the store and said, "something was wrong at their house;" his father and himself used wood off the same pile, he burned three baskets full a day, and his father only one! We sold him a Stove before he left, and there has been no complaint since.

These Stoves are in use in many hotels and boarding houses, and in hundreds of private families in this city and vicinity, and give the best of satisfaction.

PRICES REDUCED.

The subscriber has reduced the prices of the Model Cook Stoves FIVE DOLLARS each, to conform to the decline in gold.

French Roll Pans.

A further supply just received by the subscriber.—Persons who have been waiting so long for them, can now be supplied.

These pans are greatly in demand for baking the New Bread, about which so much air is being made.

This bread is the most economical and healthful ever made, and is very palatable when properly prepared; but much depends upon the manner in which it is baked—and the peculiar form of these pans is just what is required for the purpose.

The Roll Pans are very useful also for baking corn cakes, drop cakes, muffins, gingerbread or anything requiring a quick and light bake.

Every housekeeper should have one.

THE MAGEE COOKING STOVE.

The subscriber, having received his Fall stock of Stoves, would especially call the attention of the public to the

MAGEE COOK STOVE,

as the very best Stove yet made, and would invite those about purchasing or exchanging stoves, to examine this, believing it to be far superior to any other Stove yet invented, the castings being heavier, and the oven larger than usual. The oven plates are covered with plates which renders it equal to the old-fashioned brick oven for perfection in baking.

There is a new style and very superior broiler and sad-iron heater combined, by which the odor of broiling meats can be prevented from escaping into the room. With the extension top there is a large copper Reservoir for hot water; also a large tin warming closet attached, in which any article can be kept warm, while the other parts of the Stove are occupied for other purposes.

The arrangements for sifting the coal and cleaning the grate are far superior to those of any other Stove now in use, as no dust can possibly escape into the room, and the shoveling up of the ashes is entirely dispensed with. The fire is regulated in the same manner as in the MAGEE PARLOR STOVE, and can be continued day and night for weeks together, thus saving the expense of re-kindling every day.

For economy, durability, ease of management, cleanliness and perfection in cooking, it cannot be surpassed by any other Stove, as hundreds of families in this city and vicinity, who are now using them, are willing to testify, and speak of them in the highest terms of praise.

We would refer to the following purchasers:

"MAGEE'S PATENT"

VENTILATING & AIR-WARMING

FURNACES.

The subscriber, being the Sole Agent in this vicinity for the manufacture and sale of this valuable Furnace, would ask those about remodelling or erecting buildings to examine this truly valuable invention.

For economy, purity of air and ease of management it has no equal, producing a current of warm air, moist and agreeable;—and as none of the air which comes in contact with the fire-pots is used for respiration, it has the tendency to produce headache so much complained of in other Furnaces, is entirely obviated.

The objects aimed at by the constructors of heating apparatus have been to obtain the greatest amount of heat from a given amount of fuel, and to prevent the escape of heat to the smoke pipe or chimney.

To accomplish this many complicated and expensive heating arrangements have been constructed, some possessing but little improvement over former methods, while many have proved a total failure. The reason for this is obvious. The combustible gas being lighter than the air, pass off into the pipe or chimney without being consumed. This objection, so common in other Furnaces, is obviated in the

MAGEE FURNACE.

The fire or pipe in this Furnace being below the fire-pot, the gases, from their specific gravity, cannot escape, and are burned up by the admission of cold air through the fire-pot, which ignites them as they pass off from the coal, thus saving at least 20 per cent. of the properties of the heat in the fuel.

No heating apparatus with the smoke-pipe or flue on the top of the dome can be made to consume the gases of the coal, as they pass off with a large amount of the heat generated, making the chimney the hottest part of your dwelling.

This Furnace does away with the great number of pipes and angles for the radiation of heat, which are so liable to fill up and get out of order, thus simplifying, while it increases the surface of radiation.

These Furnaces consume all the coal, make no clinkers, the sifting of coal is entirely dispensed with, and they will save from 30 to 50 per cent. of fuel over common Furnaces.

For ease of management, economy and purity of air these Furnaces have no equal. They can be regulated so as to give any amount of heat required, and the fire may be kept the entire season without once going out.

They give entire satisfaction wherever used. We have in store the different sizes, Brick and Portable, to which we invite the attention of those in want of the best Furnace in the world, and would refer them to the following named gentlemen, who have them now in use:

Samuel Cleaves, Esq.,	Albert R. Hatch, Esq.,
Aaron H. Hill,	Charles H. Mendum,
Henry F. Wendell,	John Sise, and others.

DR. W. R. MERWIN & CO.'S COLUMN FOR THE

CHEROKEE MEDICINES.

Cherokee Cure, the great Indian Medicine,

An unfailing cure for Spermatorrhœa, Seminal Weakness, Nocturnal Emissions, and all diseases caused by self-pollution; such as Loss of Memory, Universal Lassitude, Pains in the Back, Dimness of Vision, Premature Old Age, Weak Nerves, Difficult Breathing, Trembling, Wakefulness, Eruptions on the Face, Pale Countenance, Insanity, Consumption, and all the direful complaints caused by departing from the path of nature.

☞ This medicine is a simple vegetable extract and one on which all can rely, as it has been used in our practice for many years, and with thousands treated it has not failed in a single instance. Its curative powers have been sufficient to gain victory over the most stubborn cases.

☞ To those who have trifled with their constitution, until they think themselves beyond the reach of medical aid, we would say, despair not! the CHEROKEE CURE will restore you to health and vigor, and after all quack doctors have failed!

☞ For full particulars, get a circular from any drug store in the country, or write the proprietors, who will mail free to any one desiring the same, a full treatment in pamphlet form.

The Long Sought For Discovered at Last,

Cures in from one

CHEROKEE REMEDY

—AND—

CHEROKEE INJECTION,

Compounded from Roots, Barks & Leaves.

CHEROKEE REMEDY, the great Indian Diuretic, cures all diseases of the urinary organs, such as Incontinence of the Urine, Inflammation of the Bladder, Inflammation of the Kidneys, Stone in the Bladder, Stricture, Gravel, Gleet, Gonorrhœa, and is especially recommended in those cases of Fluor Albus (or Whites in females) where all the old nauseous medicines have failed.

It is prepared in a highly concentrated form, the dose only being from one to two tablespoonfuls three times per day.

It is diuretic and alterative in its action; purifying and cleansing the blood, causing it to flow in all of its original purity and vigor; thus removing from the system all pernicious causes which have induced disease.

CHEROKEE INJECTION is intended as an ally or assistant to the CHEROKEE REMEDY, and should be used in conjunction with that medicine in all cases of Gonorrhœa, Gleet, Fluor Albus or Whites. Its effects are healing, soothing and demulcent; removing all scalding, heat, chordee and pain, instead of the burning and almost unendurable pain that is experienced with nearly all the other injections.

☞ By the use of the CHEROKEE REMEDY and CHEROKEE INJECTION—the two medicines at the same time—all improper discharges are removed, and the weakened organs are speedily restored to full vigor and strength.

For full particulars get our pamphlet from any drug store in the country, or write us and we will mail free, to any address, a full treatise.

Price—CHEROKEE REMEDY, $2 per bottle or three bottles for $5.

WHAT THE WOMEN OF GLOUCESTER TALK ABOUT.—They talk about the fashions, oh! of course, and dress, and jewelry, and their babies, and a thousand and one things of engrossing interest on which the female tongue is so voluble and for which their male friends—the brutes—have so little sympathy. But their talk does not all run on trivialities such as these, and we often catch them discussing graver topics, and vital questions, with true feminine vehemence, but often with a degree of sense and clearness that we wish we could see a larger number of male bipeds imitate.

They say, the dear creatures, that we must have a new Town Hall. Why, it's perfectly ridiculous! It's a disgrace to the town to carry a lecturer into such a hall as we have! And then, we can't have any decent concerts, or entertainments, and it's more than your life is worth to go to one if we could, in such a hall. It's very clear it won't do to wear anything decent to such a place, and then it looks so. Why what can a lecturer think of a town with such a hall and no better one for special occasions. They say they are willing to forego the pleasures of the ball room and assembly, they can get exercise in some other way, but it's too bad to be obliged to starve the mind, just for the lack of a suitable lecture room. But they must manage, they say, to hear Spaulding; he's so good looking, and so smart, and they must go and hear Miss Shaw, who reads so beautifully, and they must hear Edmund Kirke tell about "Jeff. Davis at Home;" and Dio Lewis tell "How to grow a noble woman," he's so witty, and they must hear Mr. Abbott, and go to that concert, and they can't possibly stay at home when Chapin lectures. Oh! they're so glad that Gough is going to lecture in the Elm street church, and they do wish that the Lyceum could get the churches for all their lectures, as they did last winter, for they really must hear Timothy Titcomb, and Curtis, who is such a fine speaker, and Bartholomew, who has such a pleasant way with him, and the other lectures of the course. Why, they've been to the Lyceum ever since they were so high, and always looked forward to it as the event of the season, and it's been so nice the past winter or two to have the lectures in the churches. But they can't think of staying at home, and so they must go, and be crowded and jammed, and have their dresses soiled it may be, all for the lack of a decent hall. Oh! they do wish the men had some life. Why can't we have a hall the same as they have in other places. It would really be a comfort then to go to the lectures. They do hope somebody will have energy enough to put up a hall before another winter.

Oh! yes; they wish the war was over and the brave boys could all come home. Won't that be a glorious day. But they don't want them to come slinking home like a whipped dog — not at all. They want them to come crowned with honor, having accomplished the object sought, the re-establishment of lawful authority throughout the length and breadth of our land. They are for the Union to a woman.

They think it will be oh! so nice when the store-keepers all get into their new stores. They are so tired of cruising in out-of-the-way places after bargains. Then they never can remember where to find any one, everything is so changed, and they have to give it up in despair. And when they do find the store it's almost impossible to get what they want, for everything is so crowded and mussed up that the clerks never know where to put their hands to the desired article. But it will be a positive delight to go shopping in the new stores, there is so much room, plenty of breathing space, and one does not live in constant dread of having her dress trod on. And then there'll be a place for everything and everything in its place, and it won't take a week to find a thimble or a spool of cotton.

And then there are a thousand and one other things that they talk about, and talk well about, but we have already exceeded the limits of our article, and must pause for the present. — Telegraph.

STRANGE STORY. — A letter from St. Petersburg mentions an extraordinary affair which lately occurred in the town of Orel. A great local landowner had a large sum (43,000 silver rubles) to receive through the police office of that town. On applying for the amount he was told that the money could not be handed over to him unless he presented the office with 5,000 silver rubles. He refused, and immediately reported the case to St. Petersburg, and the money was paid over to him. But on the evening of the same day, as he was quietly smoking in his study, a loud ring was heard at the bell.

The servant on opening the door was instantly pinioned, and four men, their faces covered with black crape, rushed into the room. The landowner asked them what they wanted; they plainly told him he must hand over his 43,000 rubles. With the greatest coolness he went over to his strong box, opened it, seized a revolver, which was laid on the top shelf, and shot two of the robbers dead, the other two immediately taking to their heels. He then sent for assistance, the police, etc., and on the crape being removed from the faces of the dead men, they were recognized as the head of the police and his secretary. The body of the former has been removed to Nice for interment.

These, besides his extensive library of legal and mechanical works, and full accounts of patents granted in the United States and Europe, render him able, beyond question, to offer superior facilities for obtaining Patents.
All necessity of a journey to Washington, to procure a patent, and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

CHARLES MASON,

Mr. R. H. Eddy has made for me THIRTEEN applications, on all but ONE of which patents have been granted, and that is now pending. Such unmistakeable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend all inventors to apply to him to procure their patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases, and at very reasonable charges."

Morning Chronicle.

Portsmouth, N. H.

FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 4TH, 1864.

THE REBELLION.

Lieut. W. B. Cushing, who destroyed the rebel ram Albemarle has arrived in Washington. He is to be promoted to the rank of Lieut. Commander. He thinks that a large number of rebels were killed when the ram was blown up, as the guns were all manned. The sounds of North Carolina are said to be free of rebel vessels.

Sec. Seward telegraphed to the Mayor of Buffalo, N. Y., on Wednesday, that the State Department has received information from the British Provinces that there is a conspiracy on foot to set fire to the principle cities in the Northern States on the day of the Presidential election.

The pirate Tallahassee is again at work, and reports that she has already destroyed five vessels. U. S. vessels are in pursuit of her.

Rev. Dr. J. W. Ross, a prominent clergyman in North Carolina, has reached Beaufort from Raleigh, and states that that State, as well as Georgia, is full of rebel deserters, who are in most cases armed and organized. In the western part of the State they frequently make raids on wealthy planters and rebel depots for supplies; and every expedition sent to capture them has proved a failure. The reverend gentleman's story, as telegraphed, is rather extravagant, and closes with the statement, on the authority of one of Gov. Vance's aids, that it is now apparent to the rebel leaders that General Grant has recently been affording Lee facilities to receive reinforcements and will soon close up the last gap and gobble them all up. This, Governor Vance says, is Gen. Grant's plan, and it has given Jeff. Davis much concern, who is in favor of evacuating Virginia altogether, having repeatedly implored Lee to do so, and not to incur the risk of the capitulation of his army.

Advices from Mobile Bay to the 20th state that a naval expedition, operating in the vicinity of St. Louis Bay and Pass Christian, brought off large quantities of cattle, grain, &c.

PEACE RIOTERS AND MURDERERS!—We have never seen an immaculate political party, and we have no idea that any one party contains all the good men or all the bad ones.—Yet some parties are more inconsistent than others, with their own professions and pleas. We think the present copperhead party is pre-eminently inconsistent in its claims to be a peace party, while its papers teem every day with threats of violence!

For example, take the following from the New York Express:

"PUT THE OATH TO THEM."

The Tribune is egging on Gen. Dix to put the oath to—

"20,000 persons from the insurgent States, spies and emissaries of the insurgent authorities at Richmond, massed in this city to vote the Disunion Peace ticket in November.

Now, if General Dix or Mr. Greeley be wise, they will let alone the elections in this city, and let the People vote as usual. We are not ready for "Test Oaths," unless Lincoln is re-elected, and then any attempt to enforce them here will produce insurrection, or arson, and assassination.

The Democratic majority in this city, will be naturally, nevertheless, over 30,000, perhaps 40,000; but if General Dix attempts any Test Oaths the Democratic majority will be 100,000. There will be no Republican voters at the Polls.

This, in plain English, is a threat, that in case Gen. Dix attempts to prevent refugees from voting, they and their friends will commit murder, arson and assassination so freely as to keep all other voters from the polls!

The Boston Courier endorses these sentiments, and says:—

The New York Express replies with the proper spirit to the foolish proclamation of Gen. Dix, supported by the Tribune. When it comes to the point in question, Union Leagues or no Union Leagues, we apprehend "there will be no Republican voters at the polls" anywhere. The people of this country have no idea of being cheated out of their rights, and none could be more wanting in reasonable foresight than those who are now provoking them beyond reasonable endurance.

Such items as these are invitations to violence, bloodshed, riot and anarchy: they would be bad enough anywhere,—but in peace papers, and the organs of a so-called peace party, they stamp the whole thing as a mass of false pretences, that would be ridiculous, were they not bloodthirsty, reckless and dangerous. U. T.

☞ "The best laid schemes of mice and men oft gang aglay".—An exchange speaking of Gen. McClellan's chances for the presidency, says:—Missouri would probably have gone for him, but for the recent invasion of Price's Rebel army, which has taken away in its ranks or last as prisoners in its retreating fights, not less than Ten Thousand of her "Conservative" voters, hastily gathered into its ranks by virtue of its assurances that it had "come to stay." And the departure of these voters insures the State to Lincoln.

THE RAM ALBEMARLE.—The Rebel iron-clad ram Albemarle, destroyed on the 28th ult. by the picket boat No. 1, was built in the Roanoke River for the purpose of clearing the waters of North Carolina of our naval vessels, and driving off the troops who were located at various posts. On several occasions she has caused serious annoyance to our forces, both naval and military. On the 5th of May last the naval forces, consisting of the wooden gunboats Mattabassett, Sassacus, Wyalusing, Miami, Whitehead, Ceres and Commodore Hull, engaged the Albemarle and her consorts, Cotton Plant and Bombshell, and after a terrible conflict the Albemarle was forced to retreat, having been seriously damaged by the fire of our gunboats, but principally by the Sassacus.

The Cotton Plant escaped, but the Bombshell, which had been captured a short time previous, was recaptured. From that time until a few weeks since the ram has been quietly receiving repairs, and has been strengthened, with a view of accomplishing her object with a fatal certainty. Lt. Cushing of our navy was anxious to have her come out, so that he might test the merits of the torpedo arrangement devised by Chief Engineer W. W. W. Wood, U. S. N. The Albemarle was constructed upon the general principles of the Merrimac and Tennessee class of vessels, and was perhaps much stronger than either of those vessels, since she was repaired.

She had the ordinary casemate, in which were placed four heavy guns. She was probably shot proof against any projectiles thrown by our vessels, and the only hopes of destroying her, before the advent of the torpedo affair, was by ramming her to death; but with the torpedo boat the matter might be easily accomplished, provided always she could get close enough to do the work without being observed before the guns could be trained and fired upon her. In this case the little torpedo boat did its duty, and but for a shot from a shore battery she would now be ready to perform a similar feat.

Picket Boat No. 1 is a boat not unlike a ship's launch, and about the same dimensions. Six of them have been built under the superintendence of Captain C. S. Boggs. They were designed at first for picket boats exclusively, for the purpose of relieving the seamen from the hurtful and unhealthy work of pulling boats on picket in all kinds of weather. Before they were completed, however, the idea of placing the torpedo attachment on them was suggested and immediately adopted. No officer has labored more faithfully to destroy this Albemarle than has Lieut. Cushing. A few weeks since he visited New York, and selected some of the picket boats for service in the Albemarle Sound; and we now have the first results of his daring and good judgment in using this new engine of naval warfare. The true plan is being adopted; the bottom of a vessel is its most vulnerable part, and by this arrangment it is reached, broken through, and the vessel must sink or be utterly destroyed.

"OUR YOUNG FOLKS," the new illustrated monthly magazine to be issued by Ticknor & Fields, Boston, is to be edited by J. T. Trowbridge, assisted by Gail Hamilton and Lucy Larcom. Among the regular contributors will be Capt. Mayne Reid Prof. and Mrs. Agassiz, Mrs. Stowe, "Carleton," Dr. Lewis, Grace Greenwood, and several other popular writers of juvenile works. Longfellow, Whittier and Holmes will frequently furnish poems. F. O. C. Darley will furnish designs for the illustrations, which will be engraved by our best artists. Each number of the magazine will contain from 60 to 70 pages. $2 per year; single copies 20 cents.

— $207,000 in currency and $34,000 in gold is the modest little sum with which Charles Windsor, paying teller of the Mercantile Bank, New York, is said to have absconded.

— Mr. J. Warren Fabens of New Jersey is importing camels to establish an armed caravan line between the Missouri river and the Colorado gold country. Several of the animals have arrived.

— A gang of rascals visited Stockton, Me., on Monday evening, evidently for plunder, and entered several houses. They were frightened off without obtaining much booty. The Bangor Whig says they were undoubtedly a portion of the same gang which made the raid at Castine.

— At Washington, two of the New York rascals, who forged votes in the names of soldiers, and whose names are Donohue and Ferry, have been convicted by the Military Commission and sentenced to imprisonment for life. When the sentences are approved by the President, they will be immediately carried into execution. Col. North was to be tried next for his share in the same swindle, notwithstanding his brother copperheads said it would not do to try him, because he was so popular in New York! lest forsooth it should make a riot there. Very likely he is popular with those "peace" men who commit murder, arson and robbery. A man is known by the company he keeps.

ITEMS—NEW AND OLD.

— Gold 233 1-2.

— The U. S. steamer Mobile recently captured two prizes off Galveston.

— Lowell has its Sailors' Fair,—in two halls. It opened brilliantly.

— Italy has a population of nearly 22 millions, being the sixth power in Europe.

— Joe Johnston is living in retirement at Macon, Georgia.

— Jeff. Davis said, when in Raleigh, that the deserters from the rebel army outnumbered the troops in the field.

— The Raleigh, N. C., Standard denounces the ultra position assumed at the convention of the rebel Governors.

— The proprietor of a travelling show in England has been fined £2 for permitting a negro to eat a rabbit alive.

— The remains of the late T. Starr King were removed, Sept. 22, and deposited in a new vault prepared for them in the enclosure of the church in San Francisco.

— Some boarders at a hotel in Biddeford have been arrested for purloining from the "larder." They had taken a barrel full of coffee, sugar, &c.

— The chorus of a new and popular rebel song is: "Hard times coming, starvation now at hand; officers eat the flour bread, and soldiers eat the bran."

— The burglars are at work at Bangor again. On Monday night they blew open the safes of Rufus Dwinel and D. R. Stockwell & Co. They got about $100 in all.

— The Oregon legislature has authorized the issuing of $200,000 in State bonds for bounties to help recruit 1000 soldiers for service on the border of that State.

— A letter from Sherman's army says nine-tenths of the soldiers in it have voted for Lincoln. McClellan stood no sight whatever.

— The British government lately refused to let the U. S. gunboat Sacramento coal, owing to the fact that three months had not elapsed since her last supply.

— An unmarried Aroostook boy has gone to the war as a sub for his big brother, who was drafted, but had a wife and children dependent upon him.

— Hall's Journal of Health for November contains a great mass of valuable hints on Health, to the Soldiers; and many of them are equally useful to other persons.

— The amount of lumber surveyed in Bangor from January 1st to November 1st, was 141,307,390 feet. The amount surveyed in October was 4,000,000 feet more than in any previous month of the year.

— The 54th Mass. regt. (colored) have subscribed $3000 for a monument to their late brave commander, Col. Shaw, who was "buried with his niggers" by the rebels at Charleston.

— Rev. Thomas Williams of Providence, 86 years of age, preached in Boston on Sunday afternoon last, with a good degree of his former energy and pathos, reading the hymns without the aid of glasses.

— The term "bushwacking," often applied to the murderous operations of the Southern guerrillas, meant originally to pull a boat along by laying hold of the bushes on the shore.

— Hon. F. W. Miner of Rhode Island, who was too "indisposed" to speak at a Democratic meeting in Fall River on Friday evening, was disposed to speak at a Union meeting in Providence on Saturday evening, and did so.

— Mr. William Franklin, a farmer residing on Bristol Neck, R. I., died very suddenly on Sunday evening. He was apparently in his usual health, and, while conversing with his wife, fell from the chair and expired instantly.

— A woman in Greenfield, Mass., went to sleep on the night of Oct. 21, and has not waked since. Physicians can neither account for it nor awake her. A little nourishment is forced into her, and her life is thus prolonged.

— Jasmin, the barber poet of France, recently died at the age of sixty-six. He was a man of genius, and very popular as a poet, but he never relinquished his vocation. Louis Philippe made him a Knight of the Legion of Honor.

— A number of the citizens of New York, desirous of enhancing the Thanksgiving comforts of our soldiers, have started a movement to send one thousand barrels of apples to the front. Government has agreed to provide free transportation.

— Col. Jaquess, who went to Richmond with Edmund Kirke last spring, says it was from Jeff. Davis' own lips that he first learned of the existence of the Sons of Liberty, at the West, and that the main reliance of the rebels for success was upon a divided North.

— The steamer Daniel Drew made the passage from New-York to Albany on Friday last, in the unprecedented time of six hours and thirty-five minutes, making her average speed twenty-five miles per hour. The steam she carried in performing this extraordinary feat would not average over 26 pounds.

☞ It is of no use for copperhead papers or stumpers to deny that the New York democratic officials planned a gigantic fraud on the soldiers' vote, and that they had thousands and thousands of forged and falsified ballots on their way to the polls. Gov. Seymour himself virtually sustains the charge against these rascals, in the following words of a late speech by him at Penn Yan, reported as near as could be remembered for an hour by an ear witness:

"I understand the Government has just arrested some persons in Washington on the charge of illegally altering the Soldiers' votes. It is become a government which has sent soldiers by entire regiments to vote in Indiana, and which has controlled the ballot-box in Maryland by the bayonet, to inquire very closely concerning a few fraudulent votes."

If this be a fair report, the logic is wonderful. Because Government sent home entire regiments to vote in one State, therefore it ought not to prevent a band of swindlers from counterfeiting the Soldiers' vote of another State, defeating the voice of the people! The government ought not inquire very closely — for if it does, Gov. Seymour may lose his election!

HALE'S
Honey of Hoarhound Tar,

For the cure of Coughs, Colds, Influenza, Hoarseness, Difficult Breathing, and all Affections of the Throat, Bronchial Tubes and Lungs, leading to Consumption.

This sovereign remedy is compounded from the favorite recipe of an illustrious Physician and Chemist, who for many years used it with the most complete success in his extensive private practice.

He had long been profoundly impressed with the wonderful virtue of the honey of the plant Hoarhound, in union with the Cleansing and Healing properties of Tar extracted from the Life Principle of the forest tree Abies Balsamea, or Balm of Gilead. For years he was baffled in his attempts to blend these great medicinal forces into such a union that the original power of each would be preserved, the disagreeable qualities of common tar removed, and the price of the compound be within the means of all. At last after a long course of chemical experiments, he found that by adding to these five other ingredients, each one valuable in itself, he not only obtained the desired results but greatly increased the curative power of the compound. This having been thoroughly tested by practice, is now offered to the general public as a safe, pleasant and infallible remedy.

PRICE, 50 CENTS PER BOTTLE.

S. J. COURT.—Case No. 114, John L. Pickering vs. Gilbert F. Hoyt, Phebe P. Pendexter, Annie R. Pickering and others, daughters of the late James Pickering, deceased.

This was a suit brought to test the title of the Plaintiff to 36 acres of land heretofore occupied by the late Winthrop Pickering as a part of his farm in Newington.

The plf. acquired title to the premises under the will of the late Absalom Pickering, and occupied it until 1840, when it went into the possession of Winthrop Pickering in fulfillment of exchanges of certain detached portions of land in Newington theretofore owned by James, Winthrop and John L. Pickering. Winthrop Pickering occupied the land in dispute until he died, Aug. 2, 1863.

It appears that the plf. entered into the possession of the Langdon place about 1840, and received a deed by the procurement of Winthrop in 1842; and he admitted that he let Winthrop into possession of the 36 acres in dispute, and that W. continued to occupy this land till his death, in payment for the Langdon place. The dispute was whether the 36 acres were received by Winthrop for his absolute property or only for life.

The defts.' positions were:

1. That there was a deed about the time of the exchange, from the plf. to Winthrop, of this 36 acres, and that it was lost or destroyed without being recorded.

2. That if Winthrop was let into possession in 1840, as his own estate in exchange for the Langdon place, and no deed was given to Winthrop at the time, and no deed was made, but that the possession was continued adverse claiming title for more than twenty years,—that the premises vested in Winthrop absolutely, and that this action could not be maintained.

It was proved that a deed to Winthrop from James of real estate in Newington, made in 1850, was found unrecorded among Winthrop's papers.

The case, having occupied the court seven days, was given to the jury at 5 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, and the jury on Thursday morning returned a verdict in favor of the defendants.

Hatch and Rollins for plf.: Christie and Hackett for defts.

The court finally adjourned on Thursday forenoon.

☞ Co. B, Maine State Guards, will leave Fort McClary, Kittery, for their homes in Bangor, within a few days, their term of service having expired. Possibly they will go to-day,—Friday. They are to be relieved by the company now stationed at Fort Popham, Maine.

☞ James Bell, an Englishman, enlisted as a substitute in the Navy on Thursday morning, and was placed on board the Vandalia. Soon after he put on a citizen's suit and quietly went ashore with a party of visitors. Marshal Dresser and Officer Johnson were informed of the fact, and arrested Bell in a house on Bridge st. in the evening.

☞ Benjamin F. Isherwood, Chief of the Bureau of Steam Engineering, and John Lenthall, Chief of the Bureau of Construction and Repair, visited the Portsmouth Navy Yard on Thursday.

☞ Rev. W. A. P. Dillingham, formerly pastor of the Universalist church in Portsmouth, has been appointed by the U. S. Government an Agent for the Freedmen of the South, to care for their food, clothing, employment and general welfare.

☞ The concert by the Constitution Minstrels at the Temple last evening was well received, and there was a good audience present. They will give "one more of the same sort, only more so," at the same place to-night.

AN INTERESTING FACT.—Lieut. Commanding James Parker, Jr., of the U. S. gunboat Maumee, received when a lad the appointment of a cadet at West Point, from the member of Congress, from his district in Ohio. Unfortunately, Parker was too young to enter the Academy, and his father, desirous that some one in his town should have the benefit of the appointment, cast about for a boy worthy of it. In a dry goods store was a lad, the son of Irish parents, who by his salary as clerk supported a widowed mother and sister. The place was offered to him, but was at first refused, as he disliked to give up the clerkship. Upon being urged further, the boy consented and entered the Military Academy. To-day, he is in the valley of the Shenandoah, and his name is Phillip Sheridan.—New Bedford Mercury.

IMAGINATIVE WEALTH.—There was once a madman at Athens. His phrenzy consisted in imagining every vessel which entered the Pireus as his property, and he consequently tasted the happiness of wealth, though oftentimes he had not wherewith to buy a crust of bread and a half-dozen olives. A physician, touched by the contrast between the ideal and the real world in which this fellow lived, determined to cure this infirmity, and succeeded in the attempt. The man, who fell at once from the satisfactions of wealth to the pangs of poverty, was a good deal hurt by the tumble. He determined to bring a suit against the medical man for despoiling him of his estate, and he reasoned so ingeniously that the judges decided to amerce the physician in a sufficient sum of money to restore the patient to something like his former easy fortune.

☞ The Newburyport Herald publishes the following paragraphs,—disconnected in the paper but perhaps not in fact:

The Republican turn-out in Newburyport, on Tuesday evening, was the best torchlight ever had in this city, and the illuminations were more general than on any former occasion since the peace of 1815. The enthusiasm of the Republicans was great, and the liberality of the Democrats equal to it, for many of them joined in the illuminations.

The age of miracles is not past in politics if it is in religion. We hear of some wonderful conversions, not yet publicly announced, but which probably will be this week, that are not less surprising, and scarcely less sudden than was Saul's when he was on his way to Damascus, and so their most intimate friends will declare. The persons to whom we refer have already seen the great light and have fallen before it, and when their eyes are fully opened they will probably speak, to the edification of some and the mortification of others.

ROSA BONHEUR AND HER PICTURES.—Many of you have seen an engraving of the picture called "The Horse Fair," painted by a French lady, Rosa Bonheur. Her history is interesting, as showing what industry and plucky determination will do. Her father was a poor drawing-master in Paris, and apprenticed Rosa, at the age of twelve, to learn dressmaking; but her health failed, and she left the business she did not like. She soon commenced to make models of animals, and copy her father's paintings, hoping some day to be able to support herself. She worked hard, day after day, until her father noted her wonderful progress, and gave her a course of instruction. He then sent her to the Louvre, the finest picture gallery in Paris, to copy from the best paintings. Here she used to work from morning until night. Soon her pictures began to sell for a small sum, which increased her diligence. She was then but sixteen years old. Having resolved to devote herself to painting animals, and being too poor to buy models, she used to take a bit of bread in her pocket, walk out into the country, and copy from nature. She would also visit the cattle pens in the city, where animals were kept previous to being slaughtered. This was not a pleasant place for a young lady, but she was too much in earnest to be stopped by trifles. Her reward soon came. When nineteen years old, she received several prizes for her pictures exhibited in Paris, and at last took the gold medal for the best painting. At thirty-two she finished the "Horse Fair," which brought her $8000, and from that time her fortune was made. She is now very wealthy, and the best animal painter in Europe. Remember the secret of her success:—She loved her work and stuck to it.

A GRAMMATICAL WAITER.—"Waiter, is my chicken a broiling?"

"No, sir, the cook is."

"I didn't order the cook. He is too tough."

"How will you have it done?"

"Why, I want it broiled, to be sure."

"That he is doing, sir."

"But you said he was broiling himself."

"So he is, but he is not being broiled."

"Well, Mr. Waiter, (rising and bowing reverently), may I ask your high grammaticality, is my chicken being broiled?"

Never set yourselves up for a musician just because you have got a drum in your ear, nor believe you are cut out for a schoolteacher because you have a pupil in your eye.

THE SAILORS' FAIR.

MESSRS. EDITORS:—

The ladies of this city who are interested in the Sailors' Fair, wish to call the attention of your readers again to the subject.—They have engaged to furnish a Portsmouth table at the fair, and are anxious that our city should be adequately represented. Almost all the large towns of New England are engaged to take part on the occasion, and some of them are making magnificent preparations. Our Portsmouth table must not stand lowest.

Our call has in many cases been handsomely responded to, but in order to complete success more aid is needed. We make use of your columns to invite further contributions of fancy articles, books, stationery, dry goods, pictures, objects of interest and curiosity, anything in short, which will meet with a ready sale or make our table attractive; and of money which will buy what we need.

We invite all who are interested in so excellent a cause, or in the credit of Portsmouth, to contribute something.

The Chapel on Court-street, will be open on Thursday, Nov. 4, from 10 A. M. until evening, and a Committee will be in attendance to receive donations.

On Friday, Nov. 5, it will be open from 2 P. M., until evening, for the exhibition of the articles prepared.

Admittance to the exhibition 15 cents.

The J. Monroe Taylor Gold Medal Soap is one of those articles that should be in every household, and the lady who neglects to furnish herself or domestics with it, loses a boon which it will be impossible to find a substitute for. It takes less in quantity, and washes as no other soap can do. It makes rough hands smooth, and softens and whitens the skin, as well as making clothes look so white. Try it.

HUNNEWELL'S STANDARD PREPARATIONS.—On our inside columns will be found a notice of these justly celebrated and standard preparations, of unbounded reputation in New England, profess only what they are remedies for, are for sale by all wholesale and retail dealers, and confidence is asked to test them. THE MODEL COOK.

IS, IN FACT,

The Best Stove Out,

for economy, convenience and dispatch.

Many people think it best to use an old stove as long as possible, but it is far better to throw it away and purchase a MODEL COOK, than to keep it at the present high price of fuel.

One of our shrewdest citizens who purchased a MODEL COOK STOVE a year since, says he has saved more than its cost already.

A careful, prudent farmer purchased one, and after it had been in operation some days his son came into the store and said, "something was wrong at their house;" his father and himself used wood off the same pile, he burned three baskets full a day, and his father only one! We sold him a Stove before he left, and there has been no complaint since.

These Stoves are in use in many hotels and boarding houses, and in hundreds of private families in this city and vicinity, and give the best of satisfaction.

PRICES REDUCED.

The subscriber has reduced the prices of the Model Cook Stoves FIVE DOLLARS each, to conform to the decline in gold.

Morning Chronicle.

A WORD ABOUT HORSE-COPERS.—There is another branch of the fraternity who attend fairs, and manage to gull the Queen's liege in quite as clever, though not perhaps in so refined, a manner. Their business is to buy good-looking screws and old horses, and so to do them up as to take in that class of person who is a thorough believer in his superior knowledge of horse-flesh. The ability with which those rogues will operate on old animals, and turn them into showy-looking steeds fit for any gentleman to ride, is really very great, and it would make their fortunes if they would only turn their attention to the getting up of the rich old dandies of the bygone era of George IV. The class of horse they are in the habit of operating upon is known by the slang term of "the Adam," an aged individual of some blood, but sadly showing the marks of age. Thus, for instance, the teeth will slant outward at a most acute angle—a well-known sign of equine senility. He will have deep depressions over the eyes, which also give a very ancient appearance; and finally he will show white hairs all over his coat. To get rid of these signs of going down the hill the coper has his respective dodges. By means of a file he speedily reduces the teeth to the length of those of a five-year o ld, and by a clever process called "Bishoping," he manages to imitate the dark marks or cavities which are to be found on the biting edges of all young horses' teeth. This is done by means of a hot iron which burns out a cavity in the tooth, which, to the uninitiated or the casual observer, looks very like the real thing. The white hairs are reduced to the prevailing color of the coat by using a hair-dye.—Once a Week.

— A letter from one of Early's soldiers says: "We all think General Early drinks too much. It is notorious that whenever he gains a victory or meets with a reverse he gets gloriously drunk, and often stays so for several days."

Coffee, of late, produces a soothing, peaceable effect, and creates a very bean-evolent disposition.

DR. S. O. RICHARDSON'S

BLOOD ROOT ELIXIR

Has been thoroughly tested and proved in his medical practice, for a period of THIRTY YEARS, and is now presented to the public as an effectual cure for

and the best remedy ever prepared for

Diseases of the Liver,

SCROFULA,

All Humors and Impurities of the Blood, and Diseases of the Skin.

The preparing and combining the Blood Root Elixir, is attended with results to medical science next in importance to the inhalation of ether in surgery. Roots and plants, in themselves pungent and disagreeable, are, by a new and scientific process of extraction, rendered MORE EFFECTIVE IN THEIR OPERATION, entirely divested of the griping and distressing pain which attends the use of all other drastic vegetable medicine. They are also made to become HIGHLY PLEASANT AND AGREEABLE TO THE TASTE, and by their peculiar combination work so perfectly in HARMONY WITH NATURE that no unpleasant reaction will follow its operation. It thus possesses which can only be attained by medicine in a fluid state. These are new elements in purgative medicine.

The hard and compact manner in which pills are prepared renders them indigestible—and when taken are forced into the stomach and bowels, half-dissolved, causing only PARTIAL ACTION, thereby creating irritation and pain to the parts connected with the digestive system.

One pill dissolved, secundum artem, will produce more medicinal and physical effect than five in a crude state.

The BLOOD ROOT ELIXIR has no partial action upon the bowels, but is equally diffused throughout the whole circulation of the blood, imparting a healthy and invigorating influence to the STOMACH AND BOWELS, LIVER, LUNGS, KIDNEYS, and gently stimulating dormant and morbid secretions through the system.

A single dose will produce a cheerful and exhilarating COMMOTION, which will inspire the patient with confidence in its powers of IMMEDIATE RELIEF. A continuance for a short period will DRIVE the obscure and hidden humors to the surface of the skin, and relieve or check SCROFULOUS AFFECTIONS—and by thus purifying and strengthening the blood, will remove the most fruitful

CAUSE OF CONSUMPTION.

It incites the various organs of the system to act their allotted part, removing the causes which induce RHEUMATISM AND INCIPIENT GOUT, HEADACHE, LOSS OF APPETITE, DYSPEPSIA, COSTIVENESS, and the various diseases which arise from a derangement of the Stomach and Bowels, and restricted circulation of the Blood.

COUGHS and COLDS, in their early stages, will immediately yield to the effect of the Elixir.

The BLOOD ROOT ELIXIR contains no mineral, or pernicious vegetable medicinal agent, but stimulates the secretions by its mild diffusive action. It is an effective and painless aperient—has a decided salutary action upon the Liver, and there has been no medicine prepared for common family use which possesses equal merit.

Travellers, both by sea and land, will find the Elixir a complete antidote for the evils which they are obliged to endure from a change of climate, of water, or of diet.

See the pamphlet around each bottle for a history of the Elixir.

The proprietor of the Blood Root Elixir, (Dr. S. O. Richardson,) has been long and favorably known to the public by his celebrated SHERRY WINE BITTERS, the best tonic medicine ever discovered, and which has been in use over thirty years. He is a graduate of the New Hampshire Medical College, and many years associate member of the Massachusetts Medical Society, and has made the study of medicine his profession since 1829.

And so fully convinced is the Doctor of the wonderful curative effects of his Blood Root Elixir, that he hereby offers to each and every person who will use one-half of a bottle of his Elixir and not be benefited, a dollar of a good effect therefrom, to refund to said person the amount which he paid for the same, by returning the village bottle to his office.

Price $1.50 per Bottle.

Sold in Portsmouth by J. H. TRACHER, opposite the Post Office, and No. 15 Market Square; and by Dealers in Medicine generally, and at Dr. Richardson's Office, No. 32 Hanover-st., Boston.

THE MAGEE

COOKING STOVE.

The subscriber, having received his Fall stock of Stoves, would especially call the attention of the public to the

MAGEE COOK STOVE,

as the very best Stove yet made, and would invite those about purchasing or exchanging Stoves, to examine this, believing it to be far superior to any other Stove yet invented, the castings being heavier, and the oven larger than usual. The oven plates are covered with plaster, which renders it equal to the old-fashioned brick oven for perfection in baking.

There is a new style and very superior broiler and sad-iron heater combined, by which the odor of broiling meats are prevented from escaping into the room. With the extension top there is a large copper Reservoir for hot water; also a large tin warming-closet attached, in which any article can be kept warm, while the other parts of the Stove are occupied for other purposes.

The arrangements for filling, fitting and cleaning the grate are far superior to those of any other Stove now in use, so no dust can possibly escape into the room, and the shoveling up of the ashes is entirely done away with. The fire is regulated in the same manner as in the MAGEE PARLOR STOVE, and can be continued day and night for weeks together, thus saving the expense of re-kindling every day.

For economy, durability, ease of management, cleanliness and perfection in cooking, it cannot be surpassed by any other Stove, as hundreds of families in this city and vicinity, who are now using them, are willing to testify, and speak of them in the highest terms of praise.

We would refer to the following purchasers:

"MAGEE'S PATENT"

VENTILATING & AIR-WARMING

FURNACES.

The subscriber, being the Sole Agent in this vicinity for the manufacture and sale of this valuable Furnace, would ask those about remodelling or erecting buildings to examine this truly valuable invention.

For economy, purity of air and ease of management it has no equal, producing a current of warm air, moist and agreeable;—and as none of the air which comes in contact with the fire-pot is used for respiration, the tendency to produce headache so much complained of in other Furnaces, is entirely obviated.

The objects aimed at by the constructors of heating apparatus have been to obtain the greatest amount of heat from a given amount of fuel, and to prevent the escape of heat to the smoke pipe or chimney.

To accomplish this many complicated and expensive heating apparatus have been constructed, some possessing but little improvement over former methods, while many have proved a total failure. The arrangement is obvious. The combustible gases being lighter than the air, pass off into the pipe or chimney without being consumed. This objection, so common in other Furnaces, is obviated in the

MAGEE FURNACE.

The flue or pipe in this Furnace being below the fire-pot, the gases, from their specific gravity, cannot descend, and are burned up by the admission of cold air through the fire-pot, which ignites them as they pass through the flame, thus having at least 20 per cent. of the properties of the heat in the fuel.

No heating apparatus with the smoke-pipe or flue on the top of the stove can be made to consume the gases of the coal, as they pass off with a large amount of the heat generated, making the chimney the hottest part of your dwelling.

The Fourth the great number of pipes and angles for the radiation of heat, which are so liable to fill up and get out of order, thus simplifying, while it increases the surface of radiation.

These Furnaces consume all the coal, make no clinkers, the sifting of coal is entirely dispensed with, and they will save from 30 to 50 per cent. of fuel over common Furnaces.

For ease of management, economy and purity of air these Furnaces have no equal. They can be regulated so as to give any amount of heat required, and they are so simple that a child can be kept the entire season without once going out.

They give entire satisfaction wherever used. We have in store the different sizes, Brick and Portable, to which we invite the attention of those in want of the best Furnace in the world.—and would refer them to the following named gentlemen, who have them now in use:

Samuel Cleaves, Esq., Albert E. Hatch, Esq., Aaron H. Hill, Charles H. Mendum, Henry F. Wendell, John Sise, and others.

CHEROKEE REMEDY

—AND—

CHEROKEE INJECTION,

Compounded from Roots, Barks & Leaves.

CHEROKEE REMEDY, the great Indian Diuretic, cures all diseases of the urinary organs, such as Incontinence of the Urine, Inflammation of the Bladder, Inflammation of the Kidneys, Stone in the Bladder, Stricture, Gravel, Gleet, Gonorrhœa, and is especially recommended in those cases of Fluor Albus (or Whites in females) where all the old nauseous medicines have failed.

It is prepared in a highly concentrated form, the dose only being from one to two tablespoonfuls three times per day.

It is diuretic and alterative in its action; purifying and cleansing the blood, causing it to flow in all of its original purity and vigor; thus removing from the system all pernicious causes which have induced disease.

CHEROKEE INJECTION is intended as an aly or assistant to the CHEROKEE REMEDY, and should be used in conjunction with that medicine in all cases of Gonorrhœa, Gleet, Fluor Albus or Whites. Its effects are healing, soothing and drawing; removing all scalding, heat, disorder and pain, instead of the burning and almost unendurable pain that is experienced with nearly all the cheap quack injections.

☞ By the use of the CHEROKEE REMEDY and CHEROKEE INJECTION—the two medicines at the same time—all improper discharges are removed, and the weakened organs are speedily restored to full vigor and strength.

For full particulars get our pamphlet from any drug store in the country, or write us and we will mail free, to any address, a full treatise.

THE QUAKER AND THE LAWYER.—"Friend Broadbrim," said Zephaniah Straitlace to his master, a rich Quaker, "thou canst not eat of that leg of mutton at thy noontide meal to-day."

"Wherefore not?" asked the good Quaker.

"Because the dog that appertaineth to that son of Belial whom the world calls Lawyer Foxcraft has come into thy pantry and stolen it! yea, and he hath eaten it."

"Beware, Friend Zephaniah, of bearing false witness against thy neighbor. Art thou sure it was Friend Foxcraft's domestic animal?"

"Yes, verily, I saw it with my eyes, and it was Friend Foxcraft's dog — even Pinchem."

"Upon what evil times have we fallen!" sighed the harmless Quaker, as he wended his way to his neighbor's office. "Friend Foxcraft," said he, "I want to ask thy opinion."

"I am all attention," said the scribe, laydown his pen.

"Supposing, Friend Foxcraft, that my dog had gone into my neighbor's pantry and stolen therefrom a leg of mutton, and I see him, and could call him by name, what ought I to do?"

"Pay for the mutton — nothing can be clearer."

"Know, then, Friend Foxcraft, thy dog, even the beast denominated Pinchem, has stolen from my pantry a leg of mutton, of the just value of four shillings and sixpence, which I paid for it in the market this morning."

"Oh, well, then it is my opinion that I must pay for it."

And having done so, the worthy Friend turned to depart.

"Tarry yet awhile, Friend Broadbrim," cried the lawyer. "Of a verity, I have yet further to say unto thee. Thou owest me nine shillings for advice."

"Then, verily, I must pay thee, and it is my opinion that I have touched pitch and been defiled."

THE SICK IN BED.—With a proper supply of windows, and a proper supply of fuel in open fire-places, fresh air is comparatively easy to secure when your patient or patients are in bed. Never be afraid of open windows, then. People don't catch cold in bed. With proper bed clothes and hot bottles if necessary, you can always keep a patient warm in bed and well ventilate him in bed. Never to allow a patient to be waked intentionally or accidentally, is a sine qua non of all good nursing. If he is roused out of his first sleep, he is almost certain to have no more sleep. It is a curious but quite intelligible fact, that if a patient is waked after a few hours' instead of in a few minutes' sleep, he is much more likely to sleep again; because pain, like irritability of brain, perpetuates and intensifies itself. If you have gained a respite of either in sleep, you have gained more than mere respite. Both the probability of recurrence and of the same intensity will be diminished, whereas both will be terribly increased by want of sleep. This is the reason why a patient waked in the early part of his sleep, loses not only his sleep, but his power to sleep. The more the sick sleep, the better they will be able to sleep. A good nurse will always make sure that no door or window in her patient's room shall rattle or creak; that no blind or curtain shall by any change of wind through the open window, be made to flap; especially will she be careful of all this before she leaves her patient for the night. If you wait till your patient tells or reminds you of these things, where is the use of having a nurse?—Florence Nightingale.

THAT ARMISTICE, proposed by the copperheads at Chicago, is what the rebels would probably be quite glad to grant, for certain reasons, which reasons the Charleston, S. C., Mercury thus explains:

President Davis, who has been opposed to making any concessions to the enemy, has been finally prevailed upon to grant an armistice to the North, provided it is solicited in a respectful manner. This proposed armistice, if granted, raises the blockade by land and sea, which will enable our people to lay in a large amount of supplies. Deserters from our service will then be glad to return, in order to receive their pay and an honorable discharge, which will give us an additional force of 200,000 veterans. Then if hostilities are resumed the South is sure of success. Therefore we lose nothing by granting this experiment to the Yankees, who have openly confessed that they are whipped, by proclaiming the war on their part a failure.

TRUE LOYALTY.—The following is from the last letter ever written by Senator Douglas:

"I know of no mode in which a loyal citizen may so well demonstrate his devotion to his country as by sustaining the flag, the the Constitution, and the Union, under all circumstances, and under every administration, regardless of party politics, against all assailants at home and abroad. We should never forget that a man cannot be a true Democrat unless he is a loyal patriot."

— The only time McClellan ever led his army, says Ben Wade, was when they were retreating from near Richmond to James River. Gen. Sumner said McClellan was far in the advance ON THE RETREAT!

— A letter states that the monitor Monadnock, sustained a gale on the passage to Fortress Monroe with great credit, making 7 1-2 knots in the heaviest seas.

American and Foreign Patents.
R. H. EDDY.
SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,
Late Agent of U. S. Patent Office, Washington, (under the Act of 1837.)
76 State street, opposite Kilby street,
Boston.
After an extensive practice of upwards of twenty years, continues to secure Patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Bonds Assignments, and all Papers or Drawings for Patents, executed on liberal terms, and with dispatch. Researches made into American or Foreign works, to determine the validity or utility of patents or inventions. Advice and legal or other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any Patent furnished by remitting One Dollar. Assignments recorded at Washington.
The Agency is not only the largest in New England, but through it inventors have advantages for securing Patents, or ascertaining the patentability of inventions unsurpassed by, if not immeasurably superior to, any which can be offered them elsewhere. The Testimonials below given prove that none is MORE SUCCESSFUL AT THE PATENT OFFICE than the subscriber; and as SUCCESS IS THE BEST PROOF OF ADVANTAGES AND ABILITY, he would add that he has abundant reason to believe, and can prove, that at no other office of the kind are the charges for professional service so moderate.
The immense practice of the subscriber during twenty years past, has enabled him to accumulate a vast collection of specifications and official decisions relative to patents.
These, besides his extensive library of legal and mechanical works, and full accounts of patents granted in the United States and Europe, render him able, beyond question, to offer superior facilities for obtaining Patents.
All necessity of a journey to Washington, to procure a patent, and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.
TESTIMONIALS.
"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse."
CHARLES MASON,
Commissioner of Patents.
"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a person more competent and trustworthy, and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office."
EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents.
Mr. R. H. Eddy has made for me THIRTEEN applications, on E. Bat one of which patents have been granted, and that is now pending. Such unmistakeable proof of great efficiency and ability on his part leads me to recommend all inventors to apply to him to procure their patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases, and at very reasonable charges.
JOHN TAGGART.
During eight months, the subscriber, in course of his large practice, made on twelve rejected applications SIXTEEN APPEALS, EVERY ONE of which was decided in his favor, by the Commissioner of Patents. R. H. EDDY.

Morning Chronicle.

Portsmouth, N. H.

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 5TH, 1864.

NEW HAMPSHIRE ITEMS.

—— The company of Light Artillery has been incorporated with the Heavy Artillery, and the Regiment is now full.

—— Rev. H. P. Osgood, of Vermont, has become pastor of the Universalist church in Marlboro'.

—— W. W. Wade, of the Amoskeag Gun Works, Manchester, has perfected a breech-loading rifle which throws fourteen bullets without reloading. The piece weighs only eight pounds.

—— The Peterborough Transcript states that bad rum caused a disgraceful row at a democratic rally in Milford on Wednesday evening, in which one man was killed and two others seriously injured.

—— Hon. George Thompson of England, spoke in Concord on Wednesday evening, the Monitor states to the largest audience ever gathered in any building in that city. Twenty-nine years ago, that gentleman was mobbed while speaking in that city. The world moves.

—— On Wednesday, Nov. 2nd, Mr. Theodore W. Shepard, late of Rochester University, was ordained Pastor of the Baptist Church in Plaistow. Sermon by Rev. John Duncan of West Cambridge. Charge to the people by the former pastor, Rev. A. M. Higgins; Charge to candidate by Rev. Henry F. Lane, of Portsmouth.

A DESTRUCTIVE FIRE occurred in Concord on Thursday night, the particulars of which we learn from an extra sent us from the Monitor office. The fire broke out soon after 11 o'clock in the boiler room of Chas. Austin's machine shop, opposite the Passenger Depot, and soon spread to the adjoining buildings, which were of wood, and filled with lumber and other material. The fire next communicated with the Steam Planing Mill of Libby & Sanborn, a large two-story building, with basement, immediately west of the engine room. This building was totally destroyed, with a large amount of lumber. Next north, a large two-story building with basement, occupied by Parker & Secomb, Seraphine Manufacturers, and the basement by B. F. Dunckle as a machine shop, was totally destroyed.

West of this was a smaller two-story building, occupied by Parker & Secomb as a store-room for musical instruments, and G. A. Cummings, marble worker; totally destroyed.

The stable of the Elm House on the south was entirely consumed. The large building, on the southeast corner of the Square, occupied by E. P. Prescott & Co., flour and produce dealers, was saved by active exertions of the fire department. Most of the stock was removed in a damaged condition. The steam planing mill was connected by a covered belt-way with Moore's Block, on Main street, a three story building, which was soon in flames. The Provost Marshal's office was in this building. The block was totally destroyed. Adjoining Moore's Block, on Main street, was a one-story brick block, which checked the fire, the roof of one of the stores being crushed through by the falling of the wall of Moore's Block.

The Elm House was on fire several times, but was saved by the steamer and the south brick wall of Moore's Block.

Fortunately there was no wind during the fire, and the steamer and the engines were well supplied with water. The steamer played four streams during the fire. By this fire nearly seventy-five mechanics are thrown out of employment. The following are the losses as nearly as can be ascertained at the present time:

Moore's Block, whole loss, $15,000; insured $10,700.

C. C. Davis, pork and beef, in Moore's Block. Loss, $2000; ins. $1000.

Samuel Beck, stoves and tin ware. Loss, $2000; no insurance.

J. L. Frost, stoves and tin ware. Loss, $2000; ins. $1800.

Franklin Evans, dry goods and groceries. Loss $3000; ins. $3500.

L. M. Dearborn & Co., piano fortes. Loss, $5000; ins. $3000.

Elm House, Loss, $1000; ins. $2700.

Elm stables. Loss, $1000; ins. $200.

Bullock's Building, part occupied by C. J. Connor. Loss, $1000; ins. $1000. Part occupied by L. Folsom. Loss trifling; ins. $1000.

C. J. Connor, flour and groceries. Loss, $1000; ins. $2000.

Lawrence Folsom, millinery. Loss (removal) $500; ins. $1100.

Carter Building, (occupied by E. P. Prescott & Co. Loss, $2000; ins. $9500.

Austin's Planing Mill. Loss, $7000; ins. $900.

Austin's Marble Shop Building. Loss, $800; ins. $600. Stock therein of C. Austin; Loss, $1000; ins. $500. Cumming's marble stock, in hand; loss, $1000; ins. $300. Parker & Secomb, melodeons. In same and in Seraphine Factory. Loss, $2500; ins. $2100.

Seraphine Factory, on corner, C. Austin, musical instruments. Loss, $3000; ins. $1000. Benj. F. Dunckles, machine shop, in same building. Loss, $3000; ins. $1000.

J. Palmer, spring maker, in last shop. Loss, $1000; ins. $500.

THE REBELLION.

Gen. Pleasanton's official report of the battle of October 26, in which he defeated Price, is published. Gen. Pleasanton states that he had between 5000 and 6000 men, and Price 25,000,—that he beat the enemy and took 1000 prisoners, including Marmaduke and Cabell, 10 guns, and several thousand stands of arms, that Price burned over 400 wagons, and blew up his ammunition—and that, finally, the beaten army was demoralized and flying. The total number of prisoners made at the time of closing the report was 2000.

The rebel steamer Chicamauga, under command of Lieut. Watkins, escaped out of Wilmington on the night of Oct. 17, and on the 30th and 31st destroyed the ship Shooting Star, of Boston, 947 tons, owned by S. G. Reed & Co., from New York for Panama; barque Mark L. Potter, from Bangor for Montevideo, and barque Emma L. Hall, from Cardenas for New York. Another barque was bonded, and brought the crews of the captured vessels to New York on Friday morning.

Late rebel papers give the particulars of Hood's movement from Gladsden, Ala., towards Gunter's Landing, on the Tennessee river. Most astounding results are prophesied, but, says the correspondent of the Savannah Republican, it is to be regretted that the army is so badly provided with blankets and shoes. Whole regiments are barefooted.

☞ On Sunday evening the city of Detroit was thrown into a state of excitement, by rumors of an intended raid upon that city, during the ensuing night. The people flocked into the streets by thousands. The steam fire engines were all out to guard against fires. Word was sent to all the churches, and the different congregations dispersed; troops were brought from the fort, soldiers patrolled the streets, and all the depots and public buildings were strongly guarded. On Monday the excitement was dying out, but the city was still patrolled by the military, and Parrott guns with caissons and horses were in the streets, ready for use at a moment's notice. A few arrests of suspicious characters were made. A despatch was received from the U. S. Consular Agent at Toronto, stating that on Saturday evening, one hundred men left that city with arms, ammunition and combustibles, for a raid on Detroit or Buffalo.

OGDENSBURG, N. Y., is greatly excited. Armed men occupy the islands above and below the city, and there were many strangers there on Thursday, who disappeared at evening, going towards the islands, causing fears that a raid is intended. Business is suspended, and the citizens are arming. Five men, armed with revolvers, were arrested, but refused to give any account of themselves.

LIEUT. CUSHING, who destroyed the Rebel ram Albemarle, deserves to take high rank among the heroes of this war. His present exploit follows upon many others, distinguished alike by extreme intrepidity and unerring judgment. The important service which he performed in the destruction of the Albemarle should have due recognition; much more should he, who from the beginning of this war has made himself conspicuous among many brave and skillful officers, receive the highest promotion which the naval service permits to be given him.

A SOUTHERN COPPERHEAD, writing to the Charlestown Mercury, gives Jeff. Davis' views of the Chicago armistice,—and builds great hopes on it, as may be seen in an item on our first page to-day,—ending with these words:—

"Then, if hostilities are resumed, the South is sure of success. Therefore, we lose nothing by granting this experiment to the Yankees, who have openly confessed that they are whipped by proclaiming the war on their part a failure."

We commend this beautiful prospect to every candid man who has any idea of voting for the Chicago nominees, the armistice, and peace at any price.—To vote for Vallandigham and Jeff. Davis under the thin disguise of McClellan and Pendleton, is to vote for the rebel cause—neither more nor less. U. T.

— Wilkes' Spirit thinks "it is high time that people should cease to call animals 'Messenger Mares.' We wish it to be fully understood that the gray, thorough-bred horse, imported Messenger, from whom our best trotters are descended, has been dead just fifty six years. It follows, that there has not been a real Messenger mare capable of bearing a foal for about the last thirty years."

— A. E. Trowbridge, a citizen of Georgia, has been tried by court martial on a charge of going to New York city without a pass and of harboring public enemies, on which he was found guilty and sentenced to ten years imprisonment. The President has approved the sentence.

— The N. Y. Post hopes the authorities will investigate the mystery and ascertain why Capt. Drew, of the steamer Roanoke, so good naturedly stopped his ship to pick up three boat loads of vagabonds and pirates, contrary to the law of the port, as he was leaving, and also whether the Roanoke was really first coaled and then burned up.

— The Boston Transcript has "reason to believe that our diplomatic authorities have made the question of the rescue of Semmes by the Deerhound a more serious international matter than has generally been known."

— The city government of Providence has voted that it is unwise and inexpedient, in view of the announcement of a conspiracy to set fire to the principal cities of the Northern States, to permit any more torch-light procession in that city.

— Mr. John Brazil, of Newburyport, was killed on Tuesday morning, by falling into the hold of a new ship while removing a hatch. He was a mechanic, less than 30 years old, and leaves a wife and three children.

— In the Mississippi squadron, base frauds have been perpetrated in the ballots of sailors by the democratic commissioner. At one time no man had any chance to vote for Lincoln. The officers rectified the matter, as far as they could.

— The N. Y. Commissioners, in relation to the voting frauds, have left Washington for Albany, having failed to accomplish the objects of their mission. Their report, together with their correspondence with the government, will be delivered to Gov. Seymour.

— A boy in attempting to show how "smart" he could be, by remaining on the track when the cars were approaching, was run over by a train on the Worcester railroad, on Tuesday, and seriously, if not fatally, injured. Such recklessness has often terminated fatally.

— Reverdy Johnson says that Mr. Lincoln "has appointed weak and incompetent men to office."—Winter Davis admits this charge to be true, and cites McClellan, Buell and Fitz John Porter, as proofs. He ought to have added that when the President removed these men for their incompetency, Reverdy Johnson defended them.

THE CHICAGO PLATFORM EXPLAINED. The following translation of the Chicago Platform is the clearest exposition of that document which has yet appeared:

Resolved, That the war is a very good war, and a most unrighteous war, and while it should be stopped at once, must be carried on with great vigor.

Resolved, That the rebels have been provoked by the vile abolitionists, and should be tenderly treated by a Major-General who will be all for peace, and at the same time for a vigorous prosecution of the war.

Resolved, That while we disapprove of the course which the rebels have conscientiously adopted, we regard as distinguished patriots all gentlemen known as Vallandighamites.

Resolved, That the country is in a most unpleasant condition, and that it is the duty of a President-Major-General to make matters pleasant.

Resolved, That we are for this thing, that thing and the other thing, by which we mean that we are for the other thing, that thing and this thing.

Resolved, That we are for the good old times, the great old times, the beautiful old times, the high old times—any times but such times as the times.

Resolved, That we are for McClellan, who will be a Man of Wax, and for Pendleton who will be a Man of Dough.

Resolved. That we are for peace and no taxes, peace and no war, peace and universal prosperity, peace first, peace last, peace at a nyprice, and peace all the time: and for a vigorous prosecution of the war—and especially for peace.

VALLANDIGHAM. — Efforts have been made by some of the McClellan journals to show that this great apostle of treason had little or nothing to do in the Chicago Convention—that his counsel was disregarded and his influence overruled; but Vallandigham, in a letter to the New York News, asserts that he "wrote the second, the material resolution of the Chicago platform, and carried it through the sub-committee and the general committee, in spite of the most desperate and persistent opposition on the part of Cassidy (of the Albany Argus) and his friends." This resolution declares the war a failure.—Dover Enquirer.

REMOVABLE HORSE-SHOES. — Two horse-shoers of Paris have invented a horse-shoe to be attached temporarily by any traveler whose horse should cast a shoe on the road at a distance from any blacksmith's shop. It is fitted with straps by which it may be readily secured to the foot. The inventors suggest that it will be found convenient for cavalry on a march.

TO KEEP TIRES ON WHEELS.—A practical man says on this subject: "I ironed a wagon some years ago for my own use, and before putting on the tires I filled the felloes with linseed oil; and the tires have worn out and were never loose. I ironed a buggy for my own use seven years ago, and the tires are as tight now as when they were put on."

WHO KILLED THE WASHERWOMAN?—A man of unblemished character was a candidate for a large constituency, and the following means were used to get rid of him. At a large public meeting an elector got up and said;

"I demand the exercise of my right to ask that candidate a question. Will he answer me by a direct yes or no, like an honest man?"

"Undoubtedly I will."

"Well, then," said the elector, "I ask that gentleman who killed his washerwoman?"

What was the poor man to say? What yes or no could answer the question? He hesitated, he stammered—the meeting was against him; he was hustled out of the room, and to this day he labors under the grave imputation, in many people's minds, of having feloniously accelerated the death of some unfortunate, and perhaps ill-used washerwoman.

HALE'S

Honey of Hoarhound Tar,

For the cure of Coughs, Colds, Influenza, Hoarseness, Difficult Breathing, and all Affections of the Throat, Bronchial Tubes and Lungs, leading to Consumption.

This sovereign remedy is compounded from the favorite recipe of an illustrious Physician and Chemist, who for many years used it with the most complete success in his extensive private practice.

He had long been profoundly impressed with the wonderful virtue of the honey of the plant Hoarhound, in union with the Cleansing and Healing properties of Tar extracted from the Life Principle of the forest tree Abies Balsamea, or Balm of Gilead. For years he was baffled in his attempts to blend these great medicinal forces into such a union that the original power of each would be preserved, the disagreeable qualities of common tar removed, and the price of the compound be within the means of all. At last after a long course of chemical experiments, he found that by adding to these fine other ingredients, each one valuable in itself, he not only obtained the desired results but greatly increased the curative power of the compound. This having been thoroughly tested by practice, is now offered to the general public as a safe, pleasant and infallible remedy.

PRICE, 50 CENTS PER BOTTLE.

For sale by B. Hutchings, Portsmouth, and all Druggists.

"A Wonderful Discovery."

DR. TEBBETTS' "PHYSIOLOGICAL HAIR REGENERATOR" is compounded in strict accordance with the well known laws of Physiology and modern vegetable Chemistry. It is not a "DYE," and will not stain a particle. It will "RESTORE GRAY HAIR" in all cases to its original color. It promotes a luxuriant growth of new HAIR in all cases on BALD HEADS, when the glands or roots of the hair are not completely disorganized. It prevents the hair from falling off and removes all dandruff, heat, humors and itching from the scalp. It keeps the hair soft, moist and perfectly healthy, and gives it a glossy and beautiful appearance. It is highly perfumed, and as a Dressing it has no superior. The "REGENERATOR" is warranted to produce the above results in all cases, if not the money to be refunded. With it every "GRAY HEAD" in New England can be restored in less than sixty days.

Local.

☞ We were glad on Friday to take by the hand our old friend and pastor, Rev. Israel Putnam, now of Middleborough, Mass., formerly of the North Church in this city;—and to understand that he will probably officiate some part of the day tomorrow—though he designs no anniversary discourse. Mr. Putnam preached his first sermon in the North Church, in this city, (previous to his settlement here,) on the 6th of Nov. 1814, making just fifty years from his first occupying the pulpit of that church. Though now within a few years of fourscore, he retains much of the activity and vigor of his early days.

☞ On Sunday (to-morrow) evening in the Court Street Christian Chapel at 7 1-2 o'clock, Rev. M. Waterhouse will deliver a discourse upon National Affairs. All wishing to hear are cordially invited to attend.

☞ We learn that Rev. Mr. Lane is to repeat his recent discourse "on the state of the country," at the Middle Street Baptist Church, to-morrow (Sunday) evening.

☞ The Portsmouth Cornet Band was engaged to go to Boston on Friday evening to perform in a grand Union torchlight procession which was to take place in that city. The politicians of the Modern Athens have indulged in a little sharp practice this week. The Union party made extensive preparations for this procession, but the Democrats spitefully engaged every band in the city and within a radius of 30 miles. The Union men retaliated by hiring all the public halls, thus preventing the Democrats from holding the meetings they proposed. But the storm checkmated both parties, and the torch-light procession was postponed to this evening.

☞ Friday, Nov. 4, was marked by a high wind, high tides, and a high old time generally. The weather was on the rampage decidedly. But if it will only give the pirate Tallahassee a "try," loyal men will cry—long may it rain.

By the storm thirty or forty feet of brick cornice was broken from the eves of a block at the foot of State street. The high tide did some damage to lumber on the wharves. Limbs were broken from trees, and some of the political flags in the city were badly injured. The trains, particularly on the Concord and the P. S. & P. Railroads, were much detained by the storm.

☞ To-day is the ever-memorable 5th of November, which the juveniles hereabouts always contrive to "remember" and celebrate in the most energetic manner. Well, though that famous old Guy tried to blow up the Parliament, one might prove himself a "guy" to blow up the boys because they blow—in a horn. It is better for them to blow their horns than to break them up over each others' heads, as in days of auld lang syne; or, as then, to steal them from each other—from which ancient and objectionable practice is derived (perhaps) the slang term "hooking," as applied to petty thefts.

☞ The exhibition of the articles for the National Sailors' Fair, will take place this afternoon, Saturday, Nov. 5, at the Unitarian Chapel in Court street, from 2 to 5 o'clock. The chapel will be open this morning, from 10 to 12 o'clock, and a committee will be in attendance to receive contributions of any kind. Admission to the exhibition, 15 cents.

☞ The new Navy Yard steamer made a special trip from the Yard on Thursday, and ran regularly on Friday. The river was rendered quite rough by the storm, but the steamer, we understand, performed her work most satisfactorily.

"THE POETS OF PORTSMOUTH."—This work will be issued in season for the holidays, if a good number of names are soon received.

An illuminated placard with a vigorous drummer boy attached paraded the streets on wheels last Tuesday evening, giving notice of a democratic rally at the Temple.—Journal.

All right. Little Mac's friends evidently wanted him to be in the van once in his life, and they knew he never would be unless they placed him, or his portrait, there. And his portrait is no more of a dummy than was he when in the army.

☞ The winter arrangement on the P. S. & P., and the Eastern railroads will commence on Monday next. Trains leave Boston for this city at 7:30, 12:15, 2:30, and 5. Leave this city for Boston at 6:20, 9:10, 11:15, and 5; for Portland at 10 and 5.

Lieut. William J. Ladd, of this city, who was dangerously wounded by a ball entering his neck, when on duty in the battle on James River, is now in Portsmouth, nearly recovered from his severe wound, although the ball has not yet been extracted. It was a very narrow escape. He is a noble, daring young man, who is destined to make his mark in the world.—Journal.

☞ The Shooting Star, destroyed by the pirate Chicamauga, was a fine vessel of 947 tons, built by George Raynes & Son of this city in 1859.

☞ We are informed that Col. Mark F. Wentworth, of the 32d Maine Regiment, who was severely wounded at the time of the explosion at Petersburg, when his regiment was so terribly shattered, has resigned his commission.

☞ The remains of the late Rev. Thomas Starr King were removed, on the evening of the 22d of September, and deposited in the new vault prepared for them in the enclosure of the church in San Francisco. Mrs. King, Rev. Dr. Bellows, Rev. Mr. Stebbins, and a number of the personal friends of the deceased were present. The ceremonies were of the most impressive character. Mr. Stebbins delivered an address and Dr. Bellows made a prayer, after which the coffin was placed in the base of the monument. The monument is of Columbia marble, of the most tasteful finish, and was cut out of a solid block, which in its rough state weighed twenty tons. The next morning the monument was found covered with wreaths and flowers.

A FRENCHMAN who visited the United States and left it in disgust, when asked his opinion, exclaimed, "200 religions and only one gravy."

Smith says he never had a cataract, but he suffered slighty with a waterfall in his eye at the opera the other night, and the vision has troubled him ever since.

It is said to be an actual fact that the man who attempted to hug the beautiful Miss Lemon, has sued her for striking him in the eye. He is altogether unreasonable. Why should he squeeze a lemon unless he wants a punch.

FACTS FOR THE PEOPLE.—It is a well-established fact that no preparation has ever been placed before the public that, as a remedial agent for the safe and speedy cure of Coughs, Colds, Croup, Influenza, Hoarseness, Tickling in the Throat, Soreness of the Chest and Lungs, and the relief of Consumptive Cough, is equal to Coe's Cough Balsam. Although not known in the Western States until the fall of 1863, over 300,000 bottles of it were sold and used by the people—its immense popularity being the result of its undoubted merit. The proprietors, Messrs. C. G. Clark & Co., of New Haven, Ct., who are among the most reliable of the Eastern Drug Houses, have offered to any man who would produce an article that would cure any Lung and Throat Affections as quick as Coe's Cough Balsam, a reward of $100, and are without any taker, although the offer has been made public over two years. The bottle compares favorably in size with any of the 25 cent preparations, and its strength is second to none, making it not only the best, but the cheapest remedy in the world. We have the united testimony of such houses as Lord & Smith; Feller, Finch & Fuller; Burnham & Van Schaack; J. H. Reed & Co., and H. Scovill, all heavy druggists in the city of Chicago, together with the assurance of wholesale and retail druggists in all points of the Northwest, that they are selling more of this preparation, and that it gives greater satisfaction than any other Cough Balsam now extant. No family should be without it: it is within the reach of all, the price being only 40 cents. In time of health provide for disease.—Chicago Tribune. n5dawlm

The greatest discovery of the age is the new soap just come out, and known as the J. Monroe Taylor Gold Medal Soap; it not only saves time in washing, but does the work in a much superior manner to all other soaps now before the people. The makers claim it is manufactured on an entirely different principle, and that it is a great labor-saving article, besides going much further than any other soap. Our experience confirms all the inventor claims for it. Try it, and we think all will be convinced of the fact, and will ever have the Gold Medal or none. 25

HUNNEWELL'S STANDARD PREPARATIONS.—On our inside columns will be found a notice of these justly celebrated and standard preparations, of unbounded reputation in New England, profess only what they are remedies for, are for sale by all wholesale and retail dealers, and confidence is asked to test them. PORT OF PORTSMOUTH.

Ayer's Ague Cure,

For the speedy and certain cure of Intermittent Fever, or Fever and Ague, Remittent Fever, Chill Fever, Dumb Ague, Periodical Headache or Bilious Headache, and Bilious Fevers; indeed, for the whole class of diseases originating in biliary derangement, caused by the malaria of miasmatic countries.

FEVER AND AGUE is not the only consequence of the miasmatic poison. A great variety of disorders arise from its irritation in malarious districts, among which are Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Gout, Headache, Blindness, Toothache, Earache, Catarrh, Asthma, Palpitation, Painful Affection of the Spleen, Hysterics, Pain in the Bowels, Colic, Paralysis, and Derangement of the Stomach, all of which, when originating in this cause, put on the intermittent type, or become periodical. This "CURE" expels the poison from the blood, and thus cures them all alike. It is not only the most effectual remedy ever discovered for this disease, but it is the safest, most pleasant, and, moreover, is perfectly safe. No harm can arise from its use, and the patient when cured is left as healthy as if he had never had the disease. Can this be said of any other cure for Chills and Fever? It is true of this, and its importance to those afflicted with the complaint cannot be over-estimated. So sure is it to cure the Fever and Ague, that it may be truthfully said to be a certain remedy. One Dealer complains that it is not a good medicine to sell, because one bottle cures a whole neighborhood.

Prepared by J. C. AYER & Co., Lowell, Mass., and sold by Brackett Hutchings, J. H. Thacher, W. R. Preston, David Kimball, and all druggists.

SAVE YOUR FUEL!

THE MODEL COOK.

IS, IN FACT,

The Best Stove Out,

for economy, convenience and dispatch.

Many people think it best to use an old stove as long as possible, but it is far better to throw it away and purchase a MODEL COOK, than to keep it at the present high price of fuel.

One of our shrewdest citizens who purchased a MODEL COOK STOVE a year since, says he has saved more than its cost already.

A careful, prudent farmer purchased one, and after it had been in operation some days his son came into the store and said, "something was wrong at their house;" his father and himself used wood off the same pile, he burned three baskets full a day, and his father only one! We sold him a Stove before he left, and there has been no complaint since.

These Stoves are in use in many hotels and boarding houses, and in hundreds of private families in this city and vicinity, and give the best of satisfaction.

PRICES REDUCED.

The subscriber has reduced the prices of the Model Cook Stoves FIVE DOLLARS each, to conform to the decline in gold.

FAILURES IN BRAZIL. — Letters from Brazil confirm the magnitude of the failures reported by the telegraph. The liabilities of Sonto & Co., the largest bankers in Rio Janeiro, are stated at £5,200,000 sterling, those of Gomez & Filo at £3,000,000 sterling, those of Montenegro & Heina at £1,600,000 sterling, making a total of eleven millions sterling. The stoppage of Sonto & Co. appears to have been the cause of the entire mischief. An extraordinary number of smaller failures are said to have followed the downfall of the banks. One banking firm, Messrs Babia & Innes, held their ground during many days' drain, paying out £600,000, thus establishing public confidence in them.

At the closing of the mail there were symptoms of an improvement, but during most of the period the panic was such that the military police were called out, and the banking houses were occupied by troops. The convulsion was not in any degree attributed to inherent unsoundness in trade. The position of the leading merchants was considered good. Sonto & Co., it is said, should have stopped three years ago. Their assets were estimated at from 30 to 50 per cent.

Time doth efface
Each day some lingering trace
Of human government and human care:
The things of air
And earth usurp the walls to be their own;
Creatures that dwell alone
Occupy boldly: every mouldering nook
Wherein we peer and look
Seems with wild denizens so swarming rife,
We know the healthy stir of human life
Must be forever gone!

ANECDOTE OF THE DAY.—Said an Irishman to a Yankee, the other evening, going away from the lecture of Col. O. A. Brewster, of Boston:—"Is that the Great Brewster, who was a great Know-Nothing under Gov. Gardner?" Upon being answered in the affirmative, he said: "By my faith, I believe he is a bigger Know-Nothing now than he was then!"

DR. S. O. RICHARDSON'S
BLOOD ROOT ELIXIR
Has been thoroughly tested and proved in his medical practice, for a period of THIRTY YEARS, and is now presented to the public as an effectual cure for
COSTIVENESS,
and the best remedy ever prepared for
Diseases of the Liver,
SCROFULA,
All Humors and Impurities of the Blood, and Diseases of the Skin.

The preparing and combining the Blood Root Elixir, is attended with results in medical science next in importance to the inhalation of ether in surgery. Roots and plants, in themselves pungent and disagreeable, are by a new and scientific process of extracting (in vacuo,) rendered MORE EFFECTIVE IN THEIR OPERATION, entirely divested of the griping and distressing pain which attends the action of all other purgative medicine. They are also made to become HIGHLY PLEASANT AND AGREEABLE TO THE TASTE, and by their peculiar combination work so perfectly in HARMONY WITH NATURE that no unpleasant sensation will follow its operation. It also possesses
A Diffusive and Alterative Effect,
which can only be attained by medicine in a fluid state. These are new elements in purgative medicines.

The hard and compact manner in which pills are prepared renders them indigestible—and when taken are forced through the stomach and bowels, half-dissolved, causing only PARTIAL ACTION, thereby creating irritation and pain to the parts connected with their passage.

One pill dissolved, secundum artem, will produce more medicinal and physical effect than five in a crude state.

The BLOOD ROOT ELIXIR has no partial action upon the bowels, but is equally diffused there and throughout the whole circulation of the blood, imparting a healthy and invigorating action to the STOMACH AND BOWELS, LIVER, LUNGS, KIDNEYS, and gently dislodging all noxious and morbid secretions through the whole system.

A single dose will produce a cheerful and exhilarating COMMOTION, which will inspire the patient with confidence and assurance of IMMEDIATE RELIEF. A continuance for a short period will DRIVE the obscure and hidden humors to the surface of the skin, and relieve or check SCROFULOUS AFFECTIONS—and by thus purifying and strengthening the blood, will remove the most fruitful
CAUSE OF CONSUMPTION.

It incites the various organs of the system to act in a healthy manner, removing the causes which induce RHEUMATISM AND NEURALGIA, HEADACHE, LOSS OF APPETITE, DYSPEPSIA, DOSTIVENESS, and the various other painful diseases which arise from a derangement of the Stomach and Bowels, and restricted circulation of the Blood.

COUGHS and COLDS, in their early stages, will immediately yield to the effect of the Elixir.

The BLOOD ROOT ELIXIR contains no mineral, no pernicious botanical element, no excitant, but stimulates the secretions by its mild diffusive action. It is an effectual and safe purgative—has a decided, salutary action upon the Liver, and there has been no medicine prepared for common family use which possesses equal powers.

Travellers, both by land and sea, will find the Elixir a complete antidote for the evils which they are obliged to endure from a change of climate, of water, or of diet.

See the pamphlet around each bottle for a history of this Elixir.

The proprietor of the Blood Root Elixir, (Dr. S. O. Richardson,) has been long and favorably known to the public by his celebrated SHERRY WINE BITTERS, the best tonic medicine ever discovered, and which has been in use now for thirty years. He is a graduate of the New Hampshire Medical College, and many years associate member of the Massachusetts Medical Society, and has made the study of medicine his profession since 1825.

And so fully convinced is the Doctor of the wonderful curative effects of his Blood Root Elixir, that he hereby offers to each and every person who will call on any druggist for a bottle of his Elixir and not be conscious of a good effect therefrom, to refund to said person the amount which he paid for the same, by returning the village bottle to his office.

Price $1.50 per Bottle.

THE MAGEE
COOKING STOVE.

The subscriber, having received his Fall stock of Stoves, would especially call the attention of the public to the
MAGEE COOK STOVE,
as the very best Stove yet made, and would invite those about purchasing or exchanging Stoves, to examine this, believing it to be far superior to any other Stove yet invented, the castings being heavier, and the oven larger than usual. The oven plates are covered with plaster, which renders it equal to the old-fashioned brick oven for perfection in baking.
There is a new style and very superior broiler and sad-iron heater combined, by which the odor of broiling meats are prevented from escaping into the room. With the extension top there is a large copper Reservoir for hot water; also a large tin warming-closet attached, in which any article can be kept warm, while the other parts of the Stove are occupied for other purposes.
The arrangements for sifting the coal and cleaning the grate are far superior to those of any other Stove now in use, and no dust can possibly escape into the room, and the shoveling up of the ashes is entirely dispensed with. The fire is regulated in the same manner as in the MAGEE PARLOR STOVE, and can be continued day and night for weeks together, thus saving the expense of re-kindling every day.
For economy, durability, ease of management, cleanliness and perfection in cooking, it cannot be surpassed by any other Stove, as hundreds of families in this city and vicinity, who are now using them, are willing to testify, and speak of them in the highest terms of praise.
We would refer to the following purchasers:

"MAGEE'S PATENT"
VENTILATING & AIR-WARMING
FURNACES.
The subscriber, being the Sole Agent in this vicinity for the manufacture and sale of this valuable Furnace, would ask those about remodelling or erecting buildings to examine this truly valuable invention.
For economy, purity of air and ease of management it has no equal, producing a current of warm air, moist and agreeable;—and as none of the air which comes in contact with the fire-pot is used for ventilation, the tendency to produce headache so much complained of in other Furnaces, is entirely obviated.
The objects aimed at by the constructors of heating apparatus have been to obtain the greatest amount of heat from a given amount of fuel, and to prevent the escape of heat to the smoke pipe or chimney.
To accomplish this many complicated and expensive heating arrangements have been constructed, some possessing but little improvement over former methods, while many have proved a total failure. The reason for this is obvious. The complicated passages through which the air, pass off into the pipe or chimney without being consumed. This objection, so common in other Furnaces, is obviated in the
MAGEE FURNACE.
The flue or pipe in this Furnace being below the fire-pot, the gases, from their specific gravity, cannot descend, and are burned up by the admission of cold air through the fire-pot, which ignites them as they pass off from the coal, thus saving at least 50 per cent. of the properties of the heat in the fuel.
No heating apparatus with the smoke-pipe or flue on the top of the cone can be made to consume the gases of the coal, as they pass off with a large amount of the heat generated, making the chimney the hottest part of your dwelling.
This Furnace does away with the great number of pipes and angles in other Furnaces, which are so liable to fill up and get out of order, thus simplifying, while it increases the surface of radiation.
These Furnaces consume all the coal, make no clinkers, the sifting of coal is entirely dispensed with, and they will save from 30 to 50 per cent. of fuel over common Furnaces.
For ease of management, economy and purity of air these Furnaces have no equal. They can be regulated so as to give any amount of heat required, and the fire may be kept the entire season without once going out.
They give entire satisfaction wherever used. We have in store the different sizes, Brick and Portable, to which we invite the attention of those in want of the best Furnace in the world,—and would refer them to the following named gentlemen, who have them now in use:
Samuel Cleaves, Esq., Albert R. Hatch, Esq., Aaron H. Hill, Charles H. Mendum, Henry F. Wendell, John Sise, and others.

CHEROKEE REMEDY
—AND—
CHEROKEE INJECTION,
Compounded from Roots, Barks & Leaves.
CHEROKEE REMEDY, the great Indian Diuretic, cures all diseases of the urinary organs, such as Incontinence of the Urine, Inflammation of the Bladder, Inflammation of the Kidneys, Stone in the Bladder, Stricture, Gravel, Gleet, Gonorrhœa, and is especially recommended in those cases of Fluor Albus (or Whites in females) where all the old nauseous medicines have failed.
It is prepared in a highly concentrated form, the dose only being from one to two tablespoonfuls three times per day.
It is diuretic and alterative in its action; purifying and cleansing the blood, causing it to flow in all of its original purity and vigor; thus removing from the system all pernicious causes which have induced disease.
CHEROKEE INJECTION is intended as an ally or assistant to the CHEROKEE REMEDY, and should be used in conjunction with that medicine in all cases of Gonorrhœa, Gleet, Fluor Albus or Whites. Its effects are healing, soothing and demulcent; removing all scalding, heat, obstruction and pain, instead of the burning and almost unendurable pain that is experienced with nearly all the cheap quack injections.
☞ By the use of the CHEROKEE REMEDY and CHEROKEE INJECTION—the two medicines at the same time—all improper discharges are removed, and the weakened organs are speedily restored to full vigor and strength.
For full particulars get our pamphlet from any drug store in the country, or write us and we will mail free, to any address, a full treatise.

PARIS GOSSIP. — A letter from Frankfort tells us how the Empress Eugenie spends her time at Schwalbach.

"A dense crowd congregates round the pavilion, and the eyes of all are directed towards the little hill whence will descend the august visitor. A few minutes before eight, the busy girl who fills the glasses retires from her place of office; a young man, in a black dress coat, his hair curled by a French friseur, and altogether heavily got up, approaches the railing, with important look and step. He is the Ganymede of Her Majesty the Empress of the French. He takes up two or three colored glasses, scans them outside and inside with a searching eye and places them upon a plate. Then, bounding up the steps, he poses himself on a little elevation, so as to be able to discover the illustrious invalid at the moment of her leaving the villa, and appearing in the gardens above.

Another moment, and she comes. A group of seven persons is moving down the hill. The lead is taken by three ladies; then follows another lady, forming the body of the force; and the rear is brought up by three gentlemen. Look at the lady in the centre of the first file, treading with elastic step, and pacing so cheerfully in the fresh morning air. That is the Empress of the French. By her dress you would hardly think that she wields the sceptre of Fashion in the civilized world. A dress of Havana brown silk, smartly tucked up, as the Parisians alone know how, in captivating folds without finery, but gracefully showing a pretty foot, a long blue paletot, closely buttoned up, and a little hat with plumes—can lady face creation in more simple attire?

The Empress has now arrived at the well the Ganymede ascends the steps, and presenting the cup remains in respectful attitude, awaiting her slightest command, while she drinks. As she puts up her veil, we catch a glimpse of her delicate features, her beautiful complexion, brilliant eyes, and her charming mouth, set with shining and perfect teeth. No sooner is the glass emptied than the pitiless veil falls. Saluted on all sides with obtrusive politeness, the Empress responds with indefatigable affability. The promenade of the Empress on these occasions is generally confined to the walls encompassing the pond which forms the centre of the park.

While the Empress promenades we cannot help putting to ourselves the question—is this lady really ill? Her fair complexion, the lustre of her eyes, and her energy of manner, would seem to justify a reply in the negative. But she is coming back, and takes the last and closing glass from the hands of the swallow-tailed juvenile. With the Empress, the two first ladies of her Court are in the habit of using the waters. In the glow of their homeopathic loyalty they fell ill, contracting exactly the same disease as the Empress, when the latter was ordered to recreate herself with the beneficent qualities of the Schwall."

"ARISE, BELOVED MOTHER."—George Lunt, Esq., of Boston, has designed, and J. H. Bufford & Son, of the same city, have published a beautiful and spirited allegorical picture for the campaign, called "Columbia." The figure-drawing is perfect; the lithographing is equal to the best French work. Columbia, wounded, with her hair disheveled, tears in her eyes, her shield broken, her crown of liberty dashed on the ground, a splintered sword in her left hand, and a broken chain dangling from her right wrist, is trying to rise from the earth, where she has been prostrated. On one side of her is McClellan in his major general's uniform with a drawn sword held aloft. On the other side is Pendleton in a civilian's dress. As they tenderly assist her upon her feet they say, "Arise, beloved mother." N. Y. Journal of Commerce.

A loyal paper remarks:—

There must be some mistake about their assisting her upon her feet, for the man who is engaged at such a critical moment in holding his sword "aloft," cannot be of much aid with his left-handed service, while as for the man in "civilian's dress," it is on record that when he saw his mother Columbia first assaulted by her traitorous sons, and it was proposed to chastise them, he said: "Let them depart in peace and set up their own Government and empire." If they said arise at all, it must have been after the manner of those who said anciently, "be ye fed and be ye clothed," and did nothing to make good their words.

ONE OF LAMB'S BEST.—Lamb once convulsed a company with an anecdote of Coleridge, which, without doubt, he hatched in his hoax-loving brain. "I was," he said, "going from my house at Enfield to the East India House one morning, when I met Coleridge on his way to pay me a visit. He was brimful of some new idea, and, in spite of my assuring him that time was precious, he drew me within the gate of an unoccupied garden by the roadside, and there, sheltered from observation by a hedge of evergreens, he took me by the button of my coat, and, closing his eyes, commenced an eloquent discourse, waving his right hand gently as the musical words flowed in an unbroken stream from his lips. I listened entranced; but the striking clock recalled me to a sense of duty. I saw it was of no use to attempt to break away; so, taking advantage of his absorption in his subject, and, with my pen-knife, quietly severing my button from my coat, I decamped. Five hours afterwards, in passing the same garden, on my way home, I heard Coleridge's voice; and, on looking in, there he was with closed eyes, the button in his fingers, and the right hand gracefully waving, just as when I left him. He had never missed me."

After an extensive practice of upwards of twenty years, continues to secure Patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Bonds Assignments, and all Papers or Drawings for Patents, executed on liberal terms, and with dispatch. Researches made into American or Foreign works, to determine the validity or utility of patents or inventions—and legal or other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any Patent furnished by remitting One Dollar. Assignments recorded at Washington.
The Agency is not only the largest in New England, but though it therefore have advantages for securing Patents, or ascertaining the patentability of inventions unsurpassed by, if not immeasurably superior to, any which can be offered them elsewhere. The Testimonials below given prove that none is MORE SUCCESSFUL. AT THE PATENT OFFICE, more than the subscriber. SUCCESS IS THE BEST PROOF OF ADVANTAGES AND ABILITY, he would add that he has abundant reason to refer, and can prove that no other office of the kind are the charges for professional service so moderate.
The immense practice of the subscriber during twenty years past, has enabled him to accumulate a vast collection of specifications and official decisions relative to patents.
These, with the extensive library of legal and mechanical works, and full accounts of patents granted in the United States and Europe, render him able, beyond question, to offer superior facilities for obtaining Patents.
All necessity of a journey to Washington, to procure a patent, and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.
TESTIMONIALS.
"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse."
CHARLES MASON,
Commissioner of Patents.
"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a person more competent and trustworthy, and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office."
EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents.
Mr. R. H Eddy has made for me THIRTEEN applications, on all but ONE of which patents have been granted, and that is now pending. Such unmistakeable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend all inventors to apply to him to procure their patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases, and at very reasonable charges."
JOHN TAGGART.
During eight months, the subscriber, in course of his large practice, made on twice rejected applications SIXTEEN APPEALS, EVERY ONE of which was decided in his favor, by the Commissioner of Patents.
R. H. EDDY.

Morning Chronicle.

Portsmouth, N. H.

MONDAY, NOVEMBER 7TH, 1864.

THE REBELLION.

The rebels recently made an attack on our forces at Winfield, Va., and were repulsed.

A private despatch from Springfield, Mo., says our troops whipped Price again at Newtonia, Newton county, Mo., date not given. We now hold the town, and the rebels are retreating into Arkansas.

By Telegraph—Sunday noon.

All is quiet with Gens. Grant and Sheridan.

Maj. Gen. Peck and staff have left New York for the Canadian border. It is stated that a battery and a battalion of regulars were sent on Saturday to a convenient point on the frontier. The 11th and 12th regiments of regulars arrived in New York on Saturday, and reported to Gen. Butler for duty.

Great anxiety is manifested in commercial circles in New York in regard to the non-arrival of several vessels now fully due from European and East India ports. The instructions to all naval commanders are, "Sink the pirates at sight."

Judge Dean, a copperhead orator, who stated recently in a speech in New York, that "if Gen. Butler was here he would not be allowed to go up Broadway," was summoned to an interview with that officer on Saturday morning. Gen. Butler and staff have established their headquarters at the Astor House. Gen. Banks is also at the Astor.

A WONDERFUL PLANT.—Within a few years, one of the most singular vegetable productions has been discovered in the Damara country in Africa. The plant grows to be a century old, and its trunk attains a circumference of fourteen feet, yet it never produces more than two leaves, and these, singularly enough, are the first or seed leaves of the plant. Imagine two leaves of a melon to keep on growing and spreading over the soil, until they reach the length of six feet each, and some idea can be formed of this vegetable wonder. These two leaves, which are split into innumerable things that lie curling upon the surface of the soil, are all the foliage that the plant ever produces. The plant inhabits the dry regions, where rain rarely or never falls, and has no need of a larger surface of foliage. Flower stems spring from the large trunk, and produce cones about the size of those of the spruce fir. The strange plant is allied to the pine family.

DON'T KILL THE BIRDS. — In a meeting of the N. Y. Farmer's Club, at the Am. Institute, there was a most interesting discussion on the Usefulness of Birds.

A communication from Rev. Mr. Weaver says his trees had been unusually free from canker worms, and attributed it to the presence of large numbers of reed birds. Dr. Trimble must say a word for the reed birds. Were it not for birds we could not live; insects would destroy the whole of our grains and fruits. One of the most valuable of all is the reed bird. When I see bunches of these brought into our markets in the fall I am pained and grieved. It does not eat the curculio, but it eats the canker worm and it eats your span worm that gets on the tree in the city. Last spring I was standing with a friend when he called my attention to the great numbers of reed birds in the trees. We watched them, and they continued to come till there were 300 or 400 of them in the square. They were feeding on the span worm, and it was curious to watch their mode of feeding. They could not rest on the slender ends of the branches where the worms were, and they would flutter off in the air and approach the worm till they could catch him with their beak. The worms seemed to have an instinct that their enemies were after them; they felt a jarring of the limbs, and they began to let themselves down by their webs in hundreds. The reed birds are not fly-catchers like the king bird and swallow, and they could not catch the worms while suspended thus in the air.

The reed bird is the cherry bird. The male is marked with yellow on the tips of its wings, and it has a crest on its head which it can raise at pleasure. I have devoted all my leisure this summer to dissecting and examining the crops of these insectiverous birds, and I have no doubt that if a knowledge of their usefulness could be spread throughout the community, it would result not only in laws for their protection but in a public sentiment also which would enforce these laws. The most valuable bird that we have is the Baltimore Oriole. That eats the curculio, the great destroyer of our fruit.

DURABILITY OF BRICKS. — An impression exists in reference to the want of durability in bricks as a building material, of the correctness of which a little reflection will convince us there is some doubt, provided they be properly made. So far from being most perishable, they are the most durable substance; and the bricks of Nineveh and Babylon, in the museums, show that they were selected by the ancients as the most lasting material. Plutarch thinks them superior in durability to stone, if properly prepared; and it is admitted that the baths of Caracalla, those of Titus, and the Thermæ of Diocletian, have withstood the effects of time and fire better than the stone of the Coliseum, or the marble of the Forum of Trajan; yet the bricks of Nineveh and Babylon (and it is believed those of the Romans also) were only sun-dried — not baked or burned, as the modern practice is.

DR. LORING'S LETTER.— One of the most prominent of the old-fashioned Democracy of Massachusetts has long been Dr. George B. Loring, of Salem. Indeed, he was popularly styled "the Wheel Horse of the Democracy," on account of the earnestness and unflinching devotedness which characterized his course in that party. And yet he has now written a letter in which he has not only avowed his determination to vote for the re-election of Abraham Lincoln, but also submits a powerful appeal to his late political associates to take the same step. In his letter he discusses the great question at stake before our countrymen, and he does it with the solemnity and generosity of tone which bespeak the depth of his convictions. And the same great motives which have been so effective with Dr. Loring are undoubtedly appealing to all generous, patriotic natures in the old Democratic party, and his noble response but reflects the course which thousands of others, more or less openly, will adopt. In his letter, which every Democrat should read and ponder well that he may not fail to vote for Country and for Liberty, he says:

The heroism, and devotion, and self sacrifice of our people, have hardly yet been equalled. And in the work which they have undertaken I cannot conceive of the necessity or possibility or honor of taking one step backward. We have organized great armies; we have built great navies; we have fought great battles; we have achieved great victories; we have taken a long stride in the work of relieving our government from the blot, which the faith and hope and charity of the fathers left behind them, with the firm belief in their minds, that it would be wiped out by advancing civilization, and by the verdict of a high toned and elevated people living under a free Constitution. Why then should we retrace our steps?

Not for our moral elevation surely. For however obedient we may have been to our constitutional obligations, however confident that the liberal and just spirit which formed the constitution, should guide its application in all cases, we have still felt the one burthen which has pressed upon us all. Can we then, in the face of heaven and the civilized world, return voluntarily to the compromise, which an appeal to arms has scattered to the winds?

Not for our material prosperity. For if anything is to give value to our currency, if anything is to enable us to support the burthen of taxation, it is the entire success of our arms, in a manly and unflinching contest for the supremacy of our government. If we would invalidate our debt, we have but to surrender to foes without, and bad councils within. It we would bankrupt our people, we have but to pause in the war for our enemies to take fresh courage, and to destroy the confidence of our citizens in their government. Let us take care of our armies, and our armies will take care of the debt.

Not for our national peace and glory. We have not reached the point of armistice or suspension. There is no treaty which we could offer, acceptable to the South, consistent with our honor and future prosperity. The terms of peace which they would demand we cannot submit to; the terms of peace which we could offer, they are not yet ready to accept. When they are ready to accept terms based on the Constitution, they will be ready to accept terms based on emancipation. For they know perfectly well that re-union now means emancipation, let the process be what it may.

Not for the the sake of humanity. The land is indeed red with the blood of slaughtered citizens. The sky is darkened by the smoke of burning villages, fields are wasted, and the angel of death hovers gloomily over our homes. But to pause now in our career, with the manifest result of this war half accomplished, is simply to transmit to our descendants all the seeds of strife, and to bring down upon their heads their curses for their inheritance of blood.

It seems to me, therefore, that the platform adopted by the supporters of Gen. McClellan does not belong to the order of events through which our country is now passing. If it means anything it means humiliation and civil war at the North; and I do not believe that either of these two calamities is to befall us. I have too much faith in the courage of our people to believe them ready for the former—too much faith in their good sense to believe them ready for the latter. And when I am told that the platform is repudiated, and that all the hopes of our country are to be hung upon the simple elevation of Gen. McClellan to the Presidency, without any acknowledged principles, it seems to me to be such a fall from the brave old avowal of specific doctrines, to which democrats have been accustomed, that I cannot understand how they find place for themselves in such a contest. I see nothing but evil in such a position. McClellan with the platform brings disgrace; McClellan without the platform brings confusion. His elevation, under the circumstances, would be simply an additional calamity.

I am confident that our country will come honorably out of this contest, purified as gold that is tried by the fire. However much I may have deplored the strife, however much I may have regretted any policy which seemed to prolong and embitter it. I can see nothing before us at this hour but a determined march in the course pointed out to us. I would have this people strengthen the hands of all its public servants—confident as I am that when the day of peace does dawn it will bestow its light upon a nation united by common suffering, and engaged in one attempt to preserve unharmed a great, free government. That the prosperity and happiness, the good order and elevation of the nation absorb all the thought and effort of those who hold our destinies in their hands, I cannot for a moment doubt. That our soil has been watered by the blood of our bravest sons in vain, I cannot for a moment believe. If a greater and nobler and stronger and purer nation does not grow out of this struggle, may God, in his mercy, blot its record from human memory.

ITEMS—NEW AND OLD.

— Gold 243 5-8.

— Democrats, read Dr. Loring's letter.

— Dr. Loring's sentiments are said to be Caleb Cushing's, also. How will you vote?

— It is now generally believed that the fire at Eastport was accidental.

— The St. Joseph, Mo., Herald says the streets of that city are filled with women with cigars in their mouths.

— The system of figures now in use in the civilized world, originated with the Hindoos. It is falsely styled the Arabic.

— Charles Windsor, the defaulting teller of the Mercantile Bank, New York, is understood to have gone to Europe.

— A company of one hundred days men is to raised to garrison Fort Nichols, at Newburyport.

— The trial of Col. North has been adjourned until Nov. 14, to give the defence time to procure witnesses.

— Among the current rumors is one that Gen. Rosecrans is to have a command in the Army of the Potomac, and that Gen. Banks will succeed him in Missouri.

— A new pirate, the Olustee, is at work and has destroyed a bark and two schooners. She escaped from Wilmington on the night of Oct. 30.

— The glue works of Wahl Bros., & Lighthalls, at Chicago, were destroyed by fire, on Thursday night. Loss $100,000; no insurance.

— The Pennsylvania coal mines yield about 200,000 tons of coal per week. There are 1,700,000 more tons used this year than last.

— Miss Blanch Booth, a niece of Edwin Booth, is shortly to begin a starring career. She is described as a beautiful and dashing actress.

— Victor Hugo is travelling in Germany in a post-chaise. He avoids railroads, saying "people never travel, they arrive by railways."

— Silver has been found in some copper ore on Mr. Densmore's farm in Orange, Vt. Whether it is rich enough to pay for working, has not been determined.

— Gen. Butler's presence in New York means that if there is any interference with Unionmen at the polls, the rioters will be handled without gloves.

— The blockade runner Lady Sterling was captured Oct. 28th, off Wilmington. She is a new English steamer, of 1000 tons, and very fast. Vessel and cargo (1000 bales cotton) valued at $800,000.

— "The Old Corner" is to be a thing of the past. Messrs. Ticknor & Fields have leased one of the granite front houses on Tremont street, opposite Park, Boston, and when it is remodelled, will remove their whole establishment to it.

— Gen. Dix has instructed the Provost Marshals to prevent deserters and persons who have been in the rebel service from voting; also, that while no military force is to be stationed near the polls, if the civil authorities, being unable to preserve order, call on the military for assistance, it is to be rendered, but always subordinate to them.

— The Militia Bill agreed upon by a joint committee of both branches of the Vermont Legislature provides for organizing twelve regiments of infantry, and empowers the Governor to raise one or more batteries in each Congressional District, and such cavalry force as he may see fit.

— The draymen of Montreal are on a strike; they neither transport any article nor will they permit any carter to do so. The ground of their complaint is that the Grand Trunk Railway Company does the cartage of the goods received at that point by the road.

— The steamer Potomac, from New York for Portland, was overhauled by a strange steamer about 12 o'clock Thursday night, which steamed around her. Capt. Sherwood of the Potomac determined to show a bold front, and coming about, bore directly down on the rebel craft, which immediately put on a full head of steam, put out lights, and went off to the N. W. in a great hurry, evidently fearing that it had run afoul of a gunboat in disguise.

— The pioneers of the fur trade in this country were John Jacob Astor and Peter Smith. On retiring from the business Smith invested large sums in the wild lands of New York State, which he bought at the sales for taxes; while Astor invested in New York City lots. The result was that Smith became the largest landholder in the country, and Astor the richest man. Peter Smith was the father of Gerrit Smith.

— The use of fur in an economical and sanitary point of view, is a subject on which there would probably be a great diversity of opinion. It is remarkable that in some countries the custom regarding clothing differs materially from ours. We dress warmer when we go out than when we sit in the house; the Turks, who seldom have fires in their apartments, use warmer clothing than when they go out, considering the exercise of moving about as a source of warmth. The Chinese are said to practice the same custom.

FREE COLUMBIA.

BY EUGENE BATCHELDER.

Hark! Voices from the mighty past
Now speak to Fair Columbia;
Immortal spirits fill each breast
That sweeps o'er Fair Columbia.
Majestic, o'er our civil storm,
Our WASHINGTON's commanding form
Bursts like the sun, all bright and warm,
And speaks to Fair Columbia.

Oh! let that mighty voice be heard!
He heard by fair Columbia,
By whose appeals our hearts are stirred,
The hearts of all Columbia!
He bids each State its discords cease,
And Form a Union grand in peace,
And terrible wh..n foes increase
Against our fair Columbia!

Oh! eagle-winged shall Victory come
To happy, FREE Columbia!
Base traitors shall be stricken dumb,
Traitors to Free Columbia!
The cheering world shall hail us FREE;
Our flag the flag of Victory,
The People still shall rule and be
The masters of Columbia!

HALE'S

Honey of Hoarhound Tar,

For the cure of Coughs, Colds, Influenza, Hoarseness, Difficult Breathing, and all Affections of the Throat, Bronchial Tubes and Lungs, leading to Consumption.

This sovereign remedy is compounded from the favorite recipe of an illustrious Physician and Chemist, who for many years used it with the most complete success in his extensive private practice.

He had long been profoundly impressed with the wonderful virtue of the honey of the plant Hoarhound, in union with the Cleansing and Healing properties of Tar extracted from the Life Principle of the forest tree Abies Balsamea, or Balm of Gilead. For years he was baffled in his attempts to blend these great medicinal forces into such a union that the original power of each would be preserved, the disagreeable qualities of common tar removed, and the price of the compound be within the means of all. At last after a long course of chemical experiments, he found that by adding to these five other ingredients, each one valuable in itself, he not only obtained the desired results but greatly increased the curative power of the compound. This having been thoroughly tested by practice, is now offered to the general public as a safe, pleasant and infallible remedy.

PRICE, 50 CENTS PER BOTTLE.

☞ A drive to the Nurseries and Green Houses of John Rogers, Esq., at Kittery, a few days ago, show us, besides the Autumn beauties of the route, much evidence of improvement along the way. As you approach the Navy Yard, small but neat dwellings are seen springing up on every hand; and as in this city, every nook and corner is more than filled with families and boarders. And, alas for the march of improvement! Love Lane has lost half its loveliness and all its romance, by the clearing away of "the wild old woods" which adorned the northern slope.

Mr. Rogers' grounds were looking splendidly, when the ruthless frost smote the dahlias, etc. He has a very large stock of green-house plants, and is better than ever prepared to fill orders for house-plants or cut-flowers. His grapery has yielded well, but the out-door fruit has improved better this year than that under cover. Bees have done well there, and we believe generally, the past season.

It is always pleasant to meet among the flowers, so courteous and well-informed a floriculturist as Mr. Bunning, who has for the past year been associated with Mr. Rogers in the management of his extensive establishment.

Mr. Rogers believes in Ayrshire cows as firmly as ever, and has a beautiful little herd of this stock; and what with attending to his large farm and nurseries (not to mention live stock of a more precious character in another nursery,) and filling various public offices, such as town clerk, representative to the Legislature, &c., and laying out a cemetery,—one might well suppose his hands full. John is a live man, sure—good luck to him and all his descendants, even if they get to be as numerous as those of his immortal namesake and relative.

The new Cemetery opposite Mr. Rogers' cottage garden, is being improved considerably—lots fenced, &c. We understand that a Monument to the Kittery Soldiers is to be erected there, and that about $700 has already been raised for this noble object.

DISASTERS.—Sch. Byzantine, Harriman, Bangor for Boston, with a load of lumber, became water-logged off Boon Island, 4th inst., during the heavy storm, and became unmanageable; and finally drifted ashore at Little Harbor, about one mile from New Castle Light. She is a total loss. Crew and most of cargo saved.

Schooner Quickstep, Richardson, which arrived at the Navy Yard with coal on the 4th from Philadelphia, lost deck load in the storm.

Brig Roleron, Mayo, which also arrived at the Navy Yard on the same day from Hog Island, Va., with timber, lost a portion of her sails, and sustained some other damage.

☞ Among the wounded admitted to the Field Hospital of the 18th Army Corps, at Seven Pines, Va., Oct. 27, was Corporal Edward B. Prime, Co. G, 10th N. H. regiment, of this city,—wounded in head.

Sylvester Y. White, of this city, Co. G, 10th N. H. regiment, was killed during the recent reconnoissance.

☞ The company of Maine troops stationed at Fort Popham (suggestive name,) designated as the 7th company of unassigned infantry, has been divided, part remaining there and the rest, under command of Lieut. Hollis B. Hill, coming to Fort McClary, where they arrived on Friday. They had been quartered for a few days in Bath, and the Times of that city states that their excellent deportment won for them the good will of the entire community.

☞ It is intimated that four rebel pirate steamers, which ran out of Wilmington a few nights since, are to concentrate and make an attack on some of our smaller cities. It will do no harm to be on the lookout for them here.

☞ Capt. Enoch W. Goss, 13th N. H. regiment, of this city, has been heard from since his capture. He is at the Libby Prison, in Richmond, but not wounded as at first reported.

☞ The morning train from this city on the P. S. & P. railroad, Friday, was run into beyond Kennebunk, Me., by a lumber train, and two cars were badly smashed. One man, a soldier, was seriously injured.

☞ Rev. A. J. Patterson is to speak at Rochester this evening, where there will be a Union torch-light procession.

☞ It will be seen by the advertisement that Messrs. Bidwell & Pike reopen at the Temple on Wednesday evening next. They have been playing in Manchester, and notwithstanding the political excitement, have been well received by large audiences.

☞ See advertisement of sale at auction of Ice Business, Stock, &c., to-day, by H. F. Wendell.

☞ A course of Assemblies will be given by the Odd Fellows, at Irving Hall, the present season, commencing Thursday evening, Nov. 10. MARCELLUS ELDREDGE,

NEW HAMPSHIRE ITEMS.

—— The Monitor states that a raid on Colebrook is threatened.

—— Hiram O. Hodge was knocked down and robbed of $23 in the street in Manchester on Friday evening.

—— The 12th company of Heavy Artillery is not yet full, and recruits for the same are still received.

—— A child of Mrs. Ketelle fell into a vessel of hot water in Rochester on Wednesday, and was severely burned.

—— The Manchester Print Works have made during the year 7,954 miles of cloth, or twenty miles daily.

—— The skull of a man who fell with a staging from the 3d story of a mill in Manchester on Saturday, was fractured. Two others who fell with him were not seriously injured.

——We learn from the Rochester Courier the particulars of a daring highway robbery. Mr. J. F. Hoyt, depot master of the D. & W. railroad at Rochester, while on his way in a wagon from Gonic Village, to that town, about 8 o'clock on Wednesday evening, was accosted by a man who inquired the way to Dover. He stopped his horse to tell him, when the man seized him by the shoulder with one hand, and presented a pistol with the other, demanding his money. At the same time another man seized his horse by the bridle, while another stood by. Having obtained his money ($771, which he had just collected in Gonic for the company,) and his watch, they let him go. Search was made for the robbers at once, but it was unsuccessful.

The greatest discovery of the age is the new soap just come out, and known as the J. Monroe Taylor Gold Medal Soap; it not only saves time in washing, but does the work in a much superior manner to all other soaps now before the people. The makers claim it is manufactured on an entirely different principle, and that it is a great labor-saving article, besides going much further than any other soap. Our experience confirms all the inventor claims for it. Try it, and we think all will be convinced of the fact, and will ever have the Gold Medal or none. 25

HUNNEWELL'S STANDARD PREPARATIONS.—On our inside columns will be found a notice of these justly celebrated and standard preparations, of unbounded reputation in New England, profess only what they are remedies for, are for sale by all wholesale and retail dealers, and confidence is asked to test them. See advertisement.

To every barrel of Flour you can make thirty pounds more Bread or Biscuit (and much better) by using Herrick Allen's Gold Medal, than by yeast fermentation or any other Saleratus.—It is perfectly healthy, will not turn your cookery yellow, will strengthen weak stomachs, and cure dyspeptic persons. It is much better to use with cream tartar than soda. Try one paper, and you will be convinced. Most of the Grocers sell it. Depot 112 Liberty Street, New York.

THE MODEL COOK.

IS, IN FACT,

The Best Stove Out,

for economy, convenience and dispatch.

Many people think it best to use an old stove as long as possible, but it is far better to throw it away and purchase a MODEL COOK, than to keep it at the present high price of fuel.

One of our shrewdest citizens who purchased a MODEL COOK STOVE a year since, says he has saved more than its cost already.

A careful, prudent farmer purchased one, and after it had been in operation some days his son came into the store and said, "something was wrong at their house;" his father and himself used wood off the same pile, he burned three baskets full a day, and his father only one! We sold him a Stove before he left, and there has been no complaint since.

These Stoves are in use in many hotels and boarding houses, and in hundreds of private families in this city and vicinity, and give the best of satisfaction.

PRICES REDUCED.

Morning Chronicle.

DISSOLVING GENEROSITY.—Here is the last illustration given by Mons. Alphonse Karr, the celebrated French writer: "I have for my neighbor, in the country, a man who recently was seized with congestion of the brain. His old servant became alarmed, and had scarcely time to scream for help, when she fainted. A workman named Norman went by, he leaped into the window, lifted up the two dying people from the floor, restored the woman to her senses, jumped on a horse, galloped to town and brought back a physician. My neighbor's life was saved. The workman returned to his task. I said to my neighbor: 'But for Norman you would have been a dead man. I hope you intend to reward him liberally?' 'Yes, indeed, I intend to give him 40f.' I met my neighbor a few days afterwards, and said to him, 'Well, have you rewarded Norman?' 'No, not yet, but he will lose nothing by waiting. I said I would give him ten francs, and when I say a thing it is as good as done.' A week passed away. 'Have you seen Norman?' 'Norman—ah! Norman! No, I haven't met him yet; but I am fattening a rabbit—a first-rate rabbit. Oh! I'm not a man to forget a service.' A fortnight passed away. "Well, is your rabbit fat?" As fat as a partridge. I ate it yesterday, and, I tell you, it has been a long while since I had such a tit-bit in my mouth."

— Mrs. Caleb Haskell, of Newburyport, who is past three score years and ten, a few evenings since, while intending to pass from one chamber to another, mistook the door, opening one at the head of the stairs, down which she fell into the kitchen. Her head was cut badly, and her body bruised, but she was not dangerously hurt.

Roosters have sometimes been called preachers, owing to the fact they proclaim aloud the approaching day. What then shall we style the hens? Why, lay members to be sure.

RECOLLECT, sir," said a bar-keeper to a customer who was about leaving without paying the reckoning, "recollect, sir, if you lose your purse, you didn't pull it out here."

THE reason why a good many men don't get married is, they are afraid to come to the scratch.

DR. S. O. RICHARDSON'S

BLOOD ROOT ELIXIR

Has been thoroughly tested and proved in his medical practice, for a period of THIRTY YEARS, and is now presented to the public as an editorial cure for

COSTIVENESS,

and the best remedy ever prepared for

Diseases of the Liver,

SCROFULA,

All Humors and Impurities of the Blood, and Diseases of the Skin.

The preparing and combining the Blood Root Elixir, is attended with superior to medical science next in importance to the inhalation of ether in surgery. Roots and plants, in themselves pungent and disagreeable, are, by a new and scientific process of extracting (in vacuo,) rendered MORE EFFECTIVE IN THEIR OPERATION, entirely divested of the griping and distressing pain which attends the action of all other purgative medicine. They are also made to become HIGHLY PLEASANT AND AGREEABLE TO THE TASTE, and by their peculiar combination work so perfectly in HARMONY WITH NATURE that no unpleasant reaction will follow its operation. It also possesses which can only be attained by medicine in a fluid state. These are new elements in purgative medicine.

The hard and compact manner in which pills are prepared renders them indigestible—and when taken are forced through the stomach and bowels, half-dissolved, causing only PARTIAL ACTION, thereby creating irritation and pain to the parts connected with their passage.

One pill dissolved, occasion action, will produce more medicinal and physical effect than five in a crude state.

The BLOOD ROOT ELIXIR has no partial action upon the bowels, but is equally diffused there and throughout the whole circulation of the blood, imparting a healthy and invigorating action to the STOMACH AND BOWELS, LIVER, LUNGS, KIDNEYS, and gently stimulating dormant and morbid secretions through the whole system.

A single dose will produce a cheerful and exhilarating COMMOTION, which will inspire the patient with confidence and assurance of IMMEDIATE RELIEF. A second dose (if deemed required) will DRIVE the obscure and hidden humors to the surface of the skin, and relieve or check SCROFULOUS Affections—and by thus purifying and strengthening the blood, will remove the most fruitful

CAUSE OF CONSUMPTION.

It incites the various organs of the system to act their allotted part, removing the cause which induce RHEUMATISM AND NEURALGIA, DEBILITY, LOSS OF APPETITE, DYSPEPSIA, COSTIVENESS, and the various diseases which arise from a derangement of the Stomach and Bowels, and restricted circulation of the Blood.

COUGHS and COLDS, in their early stages, will immediately yield to the effect of the Elixir.

The BLOOD ROOT ELIXIR contains no mineral, no pernicious botanical element, no excitant, but stimulates the secretions by its mild diffusive action. It is a certain, safe and painless specific—has a decided, salutary action upon the Liver, and there has been no medicine prepared for consumers formerly so admirably suited.

Travellers, both by sea and land, will find the Elixir a complete antidote for the evils which they are obliged to endure from a change of climate, of water, or of diet.

See the pamphlet around each bottle for a history of this Elixir.

The proprietor of the Blood Root Elixir, (Dr. S. O. Richardson,) has been long and favorably known to the public by his celebrated SHERRY WINE BITTERS, the best tonic medicine ever discovered, and which has been in use over thirty years. He is a graduate of the New Hampshire Medical College, and many years associate member of the Massachusetts Medical Society, and has made the study of medicine his profession since 1829.

And so fully convinced is the Doctor of the wonderful curative effects of his Blood Root Elixir, that he hereby offers to each and every person who will use one-half of a bottle of Medicine and not be conscious of a good effect therefrom, to refund to said person the amount which he paid for the same, by returning the village bottle to his office.

Price $1.50 per Bottle.

Sold in Portsmouth by J. H. THACHER, opposite the Post Office, and No. 12 Market Square; and by Dealers in Medicine generally, and at Dr. Richardson's Office, No. 51 Hanover street, Boston. au6—3mcod&W

THE MAGEE COOKING STOVE.

The subscriber, having received his Fall stock of Stoves, would especially call the attention of the public to the

MAGEE COOK STOVE,

as the very best Stove yet made, and would invite those about purchasing or exchanging Stoves, to examine this, believing it to be far superior to any other Stove yet invented, the castings being heavier, and the oven larger than usual. The oven plates are covered with plaster, which renders it equal to the old-fashioned brick oven for perfection in baking.

There is a new style and very superior broiler and sad-iron heater combined, by which the odor of broiling meats are prevented from escaping into the room. With the extension top there is a large copper Reservoir for hot water; also a large tin warming-closet attached, in which any article can be kept warm, while the other parts of the Stove are occupied for other purposes.

The arrangements for sifting the coal and cleaning the grate are far superior to those of any other Stove now in use, as no dust can possibly escape into the room, and the shoveling up of the ashes is entirely dispensed with. The fire is regulated in the same manner as in the MAGEE PARLOR STOVE, and can be continued day and night for weeks together, thus saving the expense of re-kindling every day.

For economy, durability, ease of management, cleanliness and perfection in cooking, it cannot be surpassed by any other Stove, as hundreds of families in this city and vicinity, who are now using them, are willing to testify, and speak of them in the highest terms of praise.

We would refer to the following purchasers:

"MAGEE'S PATENT"

VENTILATING & AIR-WARMING

FURNACES.

The subscriber, being the Sole Agent in this vicinity for the manufacture and sale of this valuable Furnace, would ask those about remodelling or erecting buildings to examine this truly valuable invention.

For economy, purity of air and ease of management it has no equal, producing a current of warm air, moist and agreeable;—at the same time air which comes in contact with the fire-pots used for respiration, the tendency to produce headache so much complained of in other Furnaces, is entirely obviated.

The objects aimed at by the constructors of heating apparatus have been to obtain the greatest amount of heat from a given amount of fuel, and to prevent the escape of heat to the smoke pipe or chimney.

To accomplish this many complicated and expensive heating arrangements have been constructed, some possessing but little improvement over former methods, while many have proved a total failure. The reason for this is obvious. The combustible gases being lighter than the air, pass off into the pipe or chimney without being consumed. This objection, so common in other Furnaces, is obviated in the

MAGEE FURNACE.

The fire or pipe in this Furnace being below the fire-pot, the gases, from their specific gravity, cannot descend, and are burned up by the admission of cold air through the fire-pot, which ignites them as they pass off from the coal, thus saving at least 40 per cent. of the properties of the heat in the fuel.

No heating apparatus with the smoke-pipe or flue on the top of the cover can be made to consume the gases of the coal, as they pass off with a large amount of the heat generated, making the chimney the hottest part of your dwelling.

This Furnace does away with the great number of pipes and angles for the radiation of heat, which are so liable to fill up and get out of order, thus simplifying, while it increases the surface of radiation.

These Furnaces consume all the coal, make no clinkers, the sifting of coal is entirely dispensed with, and they will save from 30 to 50 per cent. of fuel over common Furnaces.

For ease of management, economy and purity of air these Furnaces have no equal. They can be regulated up as to give any amount of heat required, and the fire may be kept the entire season without once going out.

They give entire satisfaction wherever used.

We have in store the different sizes, Brick and Portable, to which we invite the attention of those in want of the best Furnace in the world,—and would refer them to the following named gentlemen, who have them now in use:

Samuel Cleaves, Esq.,	Albert R. Hatch, Esq.,
Aaron H. Hill,	Charles H. Mendum,
Henry F. Wendell,	John Sise, and others.

CHEROKEE REMEDY

—AND—

CHEROKEE INJECTION,

Compounded from Roots, Barks & Leaves.

CHEROKEE REMEDY, the great Indian Diuretic, cures all diseases of the urinary organs, such as Incontinence of the Urine, Inflammation of the Bladder, Inflammation of the Kidneys, Stone in the Bladder, Strictures, Gravel, Gleet, Gonorrhœa, and is especially recommended in those cases of Fluor Albus (or Whites in females) where all the old nauseous medicines have failed.

It is prepared in a highly concentrated form, the dose only being from one to two tablespoonfuls three times per day.

It is diuretic and alterative in its action; purifying and cleansing the blood, causing it to flow in all of its original purity and vigor; thus removing from the system all previous causes which have induced disease.

CHEROKEE INJECTION is intended as an ally or assistant to the CHEROKEE REMEDY, and should be used in conjunction with that medicine in all cases of Gonorrhœa, Gleet, Fluor Albus or Whites. Its effects are healing, soothing and demulcent; removing all scalding, heat, chordee and pain, instead of the burning and almost unendurable pain that is experienced with nearly all the cheap quack Injections.

☞ By the use of the CHEROKEE REMEDY and CHEROKEE INJECTION—the two medicines at the same time—all improper discharges are removed, and the weakened organs are speedily restored to full vigor and strength.

For full particulars get our pamphlet from any drug store in the country, or write us and we will mail free, to any address, a full treatise.

The Chronicle.

THE BRIDGE OF SIGHS. — "I stood in Venice on the Bridge of Sigha." — Byron. This is a name given to the inclosed archway which spans the narrow canal flowing between the Doge's Palace and the dark and massive prison on the Riva. The interior is divided longitudinally into a passageway — forming a means of communication between these two buildings — and a narrow cell. It is situated high above the canal, and the exterior stone work is of elaborate workmanship. In the days when but a low estimate was set upon the value of men's lives by the Oligarchy, it was across the bridge that the accused was led to receive his sentence, and it was often in the narrow cell upon the bridge that the executioner performed his work, though many of the prisoners were strangled in the Piozzi, or cells beneath the palace, in which they were confined. Hence the name which has shed around it such a melancholy interest to this day. After standing some moments in contemplative mood upon it, we find ourselves in a fit condition to descend and explore those horrid dungeons beneath the palace, in which the prisoners of State,

"To whom the godly earth and air
Were bann'd and barr'd — forbidden fare," were left to linger out their miserable existence; and we almost recoil with abhorrence when, by the aid of the torch, which our guide holds in his hands, we are enabled faintly to trace out the outlines of these concealed dungeons, into whose remote recesses the light of day never penetrates, and where one almost breathes with difficulty; and we feel a sensible relief when in the bright sunlight on the piazza we are enabled to shake off their infectious gloom.

A FEMALE RIOT IN BEVERLY. — It may not be generally known that a riot occurred in Beverly during the revolution, in which the gentler sex were the principle actors. The affair took place in 1777, when paper money was constantly depreciating. The particulars are thus given in "Stone's History of Beverly, Mass.:"

"The merchants having determined not to sell West India commodities at the stated prices, gave great offence, and during the excitement, a number of women resolved on the Higher Law. One cold winter's morning, sixty of them, wearing lambskin cloaks, with riding hoods, under three or four leaders, one bearing a musket, marched in regular order, down Main and Bartlett streets, to the wharves, attended by two ox carts, to the distil house, where a quantity of sugar, belonging to the estate of Stephen Cabot, deceased, was stored. The foreman, seeing their approach, locked the gates, and stood sentry within, to keep them out.

The woman called to their aid a reinforcement of men, who with axes soon demolished the gates. The foreman opposed them, till several of the women seized him by the hair, to execute summary vengeance, when he, thinking discretion was the better part of valor, shook them off by a dodge leaving his wig in their hands. With the aid of the men, these gentle expounders of "Women's Rights" forced the doors, rolled out two hogsheads of sugar, and loaded the carts. On seeing this, several other merchants came to terms with them, and agreed to sell a barrel of sugar each at the stipulated price and money. The sugar was carted off in triumph to the principal leader's house, who kept a shop, and the crowd then dispersed. She dealt it out in convenient parcels according to treaty, acting as agent between both parties, and to their satisfaction, having paid for the two hogs heads also."

— A species of "fast" slang is now much in vogue among a certain class of English ladies. The Court Journal complains of the new fashion and says:—"Expressions never meant for female lips are frequently indulged in, causing many a shudder to those of the old school, who remember the delicate and refined language of their own mothers and sisters."

— The Chinese priests who conduct what they call worship in the temple recently erected at San Francisco, shout, screech, yell, groan, spin around amid the racket of gongs, drums and fiddles, and smoke opium until they are quite drunk, when others relieve them. The finger nails of the chief priest are longer than his fingers and are twisted like an auger.

HOW COLUMBUS LOOKED.—The personal appearance of Columbus was not a bad index of his character. His general air expressed the authority which he knew so well how to exercise. His light gray eyes kindled easily at subjects of interest. He was tall and well formed. His complexion was fair and freckled, and inclined to be ruddy. Trouble soon turned his light hair gray, and at thirty years of age it was quite white. Moderate in food and simple in dress, temperate in language, bearing himself with courteous and gentle gravity, religious without being a formalist, repressing his irritable temper with a lofty piety, he was the model of a Christian gentleman. The devout reference of his success to the Divine favor, which he concludes the report of his first voyage to the sovereigns of Castile, is highly characteristic of the man.—Once a Week.

TO THE LADIES.
Dr. Teller still remains the only Agency in America, for the sale of Dr. Nichols's Italian Female Monthly Pills. The sale of more than 20,000 boxes establishes their reputation as a female remedy, unapproached, and far in advance of every other medicine—for stoppages, irregularities, and other obstructions in females.
CAUTION.—Married ladies in certain delicate situations should avoid their use. For reasons see directions which accompany each package, for the guidance of patients. On the receipt of $1, (the price per box,) these Pills will be sent, by mail or express, to any part of the world, secure from curiosity or damage.
Office hours from 8 A.M. to 8 P.M., and on Sundays from 2 to 5 P. M.
N. B.—Persons at a distance can be cured at home by addressing a letter to Dr. J. Teller, enclosing a remittance. Medicines securely packed from observation, sent to any part of the world. All cases warranted. No charge for advice.—N. B.—No students or boys employed. Notice this, address all letters to

American and Foreign Patents.
R. H. EDDY,
SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,
Late Agent of U. S. Patent Office, Washington, (under the Act of 1837.)
76 State street, opposite Kilby street,
Boston.
After an extensive practice of upwards of twenty years, continues to secure Patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Bonds Assignments, and all Papers or Drawings for Patents, executed on liberal terms, and with dispatch. Researches made into American or Foreign works, to determine the validity or utility of patents or inventions—also, legal or other advice rendered in matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any Patent furnished by remitting One Dollar. Assignments recorded at Washington.
The Agency is not only the largest in New England, but through it inventors have advantages for securing Patents, not containing the probability of inventions unsurpassed by, if not immeasurably superior to, any which can be offered them elsewhere. The Testimonials below prove that none is MORE SUCCESSFUL AT THE PATENT OFFICE than the subscriber; and as SUCCESS IS THE BEST PROOF OF ADVANTAGES AND ABILITY, he would add that he has abundant reason to believe, and can prove, that at no other office of the kind are the charges for professional service so moderate.
The immense practice of the subscriber during twenty years past, has enabled him to accumulate a vast amount of valuable information and official decisions relative to patents.
These, besides his extensive library of legal and mechanical works, put him at all points of advantage in the United States and Europe, render him able, beyond question, to offer superior facilities for obtaining Patents.
All necessity of a journey to Washington, to procure a patent, and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.
TESTIMONIALS.
"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse."
CHARLES MASON,
Commissioner of Patents.
"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a person more competent and trustworthy, and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office."
EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents
Mr. R. H. Eddy has made for me THIRTEEN applications, on all but one of which patents have been granted, and that is now pending. Such unmistakeable proof of great talent and ability, on his part leads me to recommend all inventors to apply to him to procure their patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases, and at very reasonable charges."
JOHN TAGGART.
During eight months, the subscriber, in course of his large practice, made on twice rejected applications SIXTEEN APPEALS, EVERY ONE of which was decided in his favor, by the Commissioner of Patents.

Morning Chronicle.

Portsmouth, N. H.

TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 8TH, 1864.

THE ELECTION.—To-day is to take place the Presidential Election,—one of the most important events in our nation's history; perhaps the most momentous which has ever occurred. We expect to be able to announce the result to-morrow morning—and have little doubt as to what that result will be. We don't think this American people will conclude to "swap horses while crossing the troubled stream": especially when the present "well done, good and faithful servant," has carried us so nearly over all our troubles.

THE N. Y. BANK DEFAULTER.—It is reported that Charles Windsor, the defaulting teller of the Mercantile Bank of New York city, has fled to South America or Europe, probably without any large proportion of the missing funds, which amount to nearly $300,000 ($207,000 in currency and $34,000 in gold.) The circumstances indicate that the robbery of the bank had been in progress for years, and that Windsor had adroitly managed to conceal his guilt until the last moment. Windsor resided in Factoryville, on the north shore of Staten Island, where he lived in a handsome house, beautifully situated, and adorned in a style equal to that of his neighbors, who are known to be in possession of large wealth. It was supposed in the neighborhood that the property he occupied belonged to his family, whose business affairs did not concern the public, so that the costly style of his living during the last year or two has excited no general suspicion. Some months ago Windsor's plain one-horse pleasure wagon gave place to a larger and more extensive establishment, and quite recently a still more dashing equipage appeared, while a corresponding amount of display was made at his home and elsewhere.

Windsor's personal appearance was such as to induce his neighbors and friends to give him their almost unlimited confidence. His face wore a thoughtful yet exceedingly ingenuous expression; there was not the slightest reason to infer from his conversation, his manners, or any circumstance from which his personal characteristics could be judged, that he was capable of performing an act of dishonesty, or that he possessed sufficient cunning to conceal a great crime. His business acquaintances were astonished beyond measure when they learned of the robbery and of his disappearance. His wife and children were in happy ignorance of his knavery. The teller had the keys of the vault of the bank, and helped himself the night before his departure, to a carpet-bag full of money in notes and gold. He then put on a natty gray travelling suit and quietly absquatulated.

The Mercantile Bank has still remaining a surplus of $472,000 over and above its capital of one million dollars, and has always sustained the reputation of a sound and prosperous institution.

A FRIEND OF DOUGLAS.—Col. Solomon Parsons, of Illinois, a democratic Senator in that State in 1854, and an intimate friend and zealous supporter of Mr. Douglas, in 1860, is out in a letter in reply to a proposition of certain alienated republicans to co-operate with them in opposing the re-election of Mr. Lincoln. Here are some of his sentences:

No one who has any regard for the memory of the lamented Douglas, can ever forget how he was defeated by Southern traitors and some of their Northern allies.

The fact that Mr. Lincoln has incurred the hostility of the ultraists among all the Parties, is evidence to me that he is nearly right.

I have been personally acquainted with the President for nearly thirty years, have been associated with him at the Bar and in a Legislative capacity, and while during the whole of that time I have been opposed to much of his policy, I have believed him to be a safe and able statesman, and I know, what I have never hesitated to declare, that a more honest, upright man never filled the Presidential chair.

Our late lamented leader, Douglas, came forward at a critical period in our country's history (and how terrible the danger, very few have ever known), and gave the Administration his cordial and hearty support; and he assured me a short time before his death that Lincoln desired to do right, and that, if we meant to be true patriots and save our country, we must sustain him.

With these views I decline any connection with an organization made up of the disaffected of all the other Parties, and whose only object appears to be the overthrow of the Present Administration and its policy; as I believe—nay, I know—that such a change at the present time would be most disastrous to the country.

Senseless appeals are made to the fears of the voters, in regard to taxes and drafts. Neither of them are to be changed by the election. Whoever is chosen, the government must be maintained, and money as well as men must be had. It will not increase or diminish the national debt by changing one party for the other, and the interest will be in gold or currency as provided for, after the 8th of November as before. Let nobody be deceived in the matter.

THE REBELLION.

Forrest has captured the gunboat Undine at Fort Harman on the Tennessee river, after a fight of six hours. Fourteen of the crew are reported to have been killed after the surrender.

Richmond papers report that after three days' hard fighting the Union gunboats passed up Middle river and came down the Blue river through a channel commanding the rear of Plymouth, N. C.; and the rebels, their forts being passed and all their guns dismounted, evacuated the place, under some shelling.

On the 3d inst. the rebel army under Hood attempted to cross the Tennessee River at the mouth of the Blue Water, but was repulsed by Gen. Sherman, with considerable loss.

Sherman is actively preparing for an offensive campaign from Atlanta. He sent one division to whip Hood.

Richmond papers have a report that Gen. Kilpatrick had been repulsed in an attack on Wheeler's cavalry.

Early has been reinforced by large numbers of conscripts, and is reorganizing his army at Newmarket.

☞ What with politics, war, and the Sailors' Fair, we found Boston a gay place to spend a day in, on Saturday. The Fair will open at the Boston Theatre on Wednesday evening; and besides all sorts of attractions therein, will be innumerable supplementary side-shows elsewhere, such as concerts on the great organ, etc. Everybody ought to go to this Fair, and everybody that is anybody will go, too.

Saturday noon, Mr. Jerome Hopkins, of New York, sported his brief hour on "the great organ" at the Music Hall—to his own satisfaction, no doubt, but not that of all his few hearers.

Then, in the afternoon, the German Opera troupe concluded their very brilliant and successful series of representations at the Boston Theatre, with a splendid performance of "Stradella"—about the most enjoyable opera we ever witnessed; in which the magnificent Karl Formes, among other prime ones, had a jolly, rollicking part just suited to him, and made fun alive. A bouquet being thrown to this superb basso, and a tenor equally good, after a duet, each declined to pick it up, in favor of the other; and Formes brought down the house by breaking it in two and dividing it between them. All the stars were in good humor, and answered the encores several times by repetitions of gems; and orchestra, chorus and all were more than usually satisfactory.

In the evening the Union torchlight procession made a splendid display; and their innumerable torches, lanterns and transparencies, together with the forest of street lamps, and the brilliant and extensive decorations of houses and streets, as seen from Beacon Hill, was almost magical; while the cheers of loyal thousands, and the music of half a score of martial Bands, made up a scene never to be forgotten.

In the evening we had the good fortune to hear a superior lecture at the Lowell Institute, from Rev. Mr. Zachos. It was one of a course he is delivering on the Poets—and the striking manner in which he exemplified, illustrated and glorified his pre-eminently favorite subject, Shakespeare, on this occasion, would have done good to the hearts of all worshippers at the shrine of the bard of Avon.

— Lombardy has been invaded by armed bands dressed in the Garibaldian uniform. The invaders took possession of the treasury of Spilembergo and Mariago, leaving behind them a formal receipt.

— George Francis Train, in one of his wildcat letters to Gen. McClellan, commences: "Cæsar had his Brutus, Charles the First his Cromwell, and George, if you keep on as you have begun, in November you won't have anybody."

NOT NOW.

Talk not of compromise or peace
To traitors with their dripping swords,
This glorious war can never cease
To waste our time in useless words.
What! speak of peace when nameless crime
Lifts up, unawed, its brazen brow!
No, freemen! this is not the time
To cry for peace—not now—not now!

Talk not of peace while dauntless souls
Are struggling on the battle plains,
Where Vengeance's fiery chariot rolls
Its gory wheels among the slain;
The battle must be fought and won,
Rebellion crushed—no matter how.
The war for freedom must go on,
It cannot stop—not now—not now!

When those who woke the sound of strife
Shall come the boon of peace to crave—
When those who sought the nation's life
Shall meekly sue their own to save—
When foemen lay their armor down,
And in submission humbly bow,
Then war may cease in wrath to frown,
But now it cannot cease—not now!

Let Northern dastards sue for peace,
While others fight their homes to save;
Let tories whisper war must cease,
While patriots find a bloody grave.
Heroes but firmer clutch the sword,
While traitors wrestle each victor's brow,
And freemen shout with one accord—
We must not fall nor falter now.

We seek no peace till every star
Bright in our constellation shine;
We stop not in the path of war
Until we gain the height sublime;
Our flag must float o'er hill and plain,
From Maine to the Pacific shore;
Nor treason's war-cloud rise again
To dim its glory evermore.

In the great Union procession at Springfield, Ill., last week, were ninety-three two-horse wagons loaded with wood. It was dumped in a pile for distribution to soldiers' families. Gen. Jo. Hooker, while riding up from the depot, met the procession, and was rather stunned by the 93 wood wagons. "Why, where can these farmers find a market for this immense quantity of fuel?" asked the hero. "Oh, General, it is a part of our procession. Every stick of that is going to the families of soldiers absent in the army." The tears gathered in Hooker's eyes — trembled a moment, then ran down the cheeks bronzed in a hundred battles, while he said, "My God! what a people you Illinoisans are! You not only furnish men without stint to fight the battles of the nation, but you take a father's care of their wives and children while they are absent! A war carried on by such a people "a failure?" — N. Y. Tribune.

The Richmond Enquirer states, (and some Northern papers copy the falsehood,) that only 26,029 votes were given at the Constitutional Election in Maryland—arguing, therefore, that nowhere near a majority of the voters came to the polls. The truth is widely different: There were 80,174 votes for, 29,799 against, 61 blank and 33 illegal votes offered—in all 60,067. The highest vote ever given was 92,502, in 1860. So it seems that about two-thirds of all the voters took action in the matter.—Tribune.

IRISH WIT.—Two Irishmen were riding in the Roxbury horse cars last week; one of them says to the other: "I shall vote for Lincoln for President. Sure, and hasn't he made a dollar in gold worth two dollars and a half?" The other retorted: "Well, I am for McClellan. He trated us well in the army. When we went into Virginia, if he came to a river, he was always the man to wait till it dried up before he made us cross it; and when we got to the swamps of the Chickahominy, didn't he wait three weeks for them to dry, and when he found they wouldn't do it, didn't he back right out of them? He's the man for me, long life to him."

HALE'S

Honey of Horehound Tar,

For the cure of Coughs, Colds, Influenza, Hoarseness, Difficult Breathing, and all Affections of the Throat, Bronchial Tubes and Lungs, leading to Consumption.

This sovereign remedy is compounded from the favorite recipe of an illustrious Physician and Chemist, who for many years used it with the most complete success in his extensive private practice.

He had long been profoundly impressed with the wonderful virtue of the honey of the plant Horehound, in union with the Cleansing and Healing properties of Tar extracted from the Life Principle of the forest tree Abies Balsamea, or Balm of Gilead. For years he was baffled in his attempts to blend these great medicinal forces into such a union that the original power of each would be preserved, the disagreeable qualities of common tar removed, and the price of the compound be within the means of all. At last after a long course of chemical experiments, he found that by adding to these few other ingredients, each one valuable in itself, he not only obtained the desired results but greatly increased the curative power of the compound. This having been thoroughly tested by practice, is now offered to the general public as a safe, pleasant and infallible remedy.

PRICE, 50 CENTS PER BOTTLE.

"A Wonderful Discovery."

DR. TEBBETS' "PHYSIOLOGICAL HAIR REGENERATOR" is compounded in strict accordance with the well known laws of Physiology and modern vegetable Chemistry. It is not a "Dye," and will not stain a particle. It will "RESTORE GRAY HAIR" in all cases to its original color. It promotes a luxuriant growth of new HAIR in all cases of BALD HEADS, when the glands or roots of the hair are not completely disorganized. It prevents the hair from falling off and removes all dandruff, humors and itching from the scalp. It keeps the hair soft, moist and perfectly healthy, and gives it a glossy and beautiful appearance. It is highly perfumed, and as a Dressing it has no superior. The "REGENERATOR" is warranted to produce the above results in all cases, if not the money to be refunded. With it every "GRAY HEAD" in New England can be restored in less than sixty days.

Address JOSEPH T. INMAN, Station D, Bible House, mh25—1y3m* New York City.

Local.

☞ A little chapter of accidents has happened at Fort Constitution within a few days past. Mr. Farnsworth, of Co. B, lost the forefinger of the right hand, by the accidental discharge of a gun. Martin D. Ricker of Co. K, lost the second finger, and injured the first, of the right hand by a cut, he being left handed. C. W. Brown Co. K, lost the lower half of his right ear, by the bite of a horse. C. E. Brackett, Co. K, was badly cut in the head by an accidental blow from an axe. All are doing well.

Besides these, Capt. John Vennard has met with two accidents within a few weeks, by having first one hand and then the other caught in a derrick, removing one finger and crushing another badly. Another workman also met with a similar mishap last week, thereby losing a finger.

☞ The screw sloop San Jacinto, Capt Richard W. Meade, from Portsmouth Navy Yard for Key West, Fla., encountered a very severe gale on the 28th and 29th ult., and put into Hampton Roads on the 1st inst. to repair the machinery. During the gale she lost the first, second and third cutters and two spare spars. The case has been examined by a board of survey, and the vessel will be detained but a few hours. The San Jacinto is to be the flag-ship of the East Gulf Blockading Squadron.

A QUICK DISCHARGE.—A few days since, a Cape Ann schooner with a cargo of granite for Fort Constitution, brought up at the wharf there, and made fast. And while the shipper was on shore, urging the immediate discharge of his freight, the strong tide and wind snapped his hawser, and swept the old craft up on the rocky beach, capsized her on her beam-ends, and crushed out part of her stony cargo through her side. The captain good-naturedly remarked that that was quicker done than he was bargaining for. The craft lies as she fell, badly stove.

☞ Among the improvements projected in this city during the past year, by Mr. John M. Davis—not least is the removal of the old Bath House on Hanover street, and the erection of a very neat and tasteful dwelling house on the site—which is just now completed. Mr. Davis intended it for his own residence; but so urgent is the call for medium-sized dwellings here, that he was induced to forego his personal preferences, by an argument which is generally found potent, when used in sufficiently strong doses.

☞ The afternoon train on the Concord & Portsmouth railroad now leaves this city at ten minutes past four, and Greenland at 4:20, arriving at New Market Junction at 4:40. The change was made on Monday.

☞ Quite a furore has been created in Manchester about Bidwell & Pike's Dramatic Company—so much so, that for their representations of Uncle Tom's Cabin, Monday and Tuesday evenings, every ticket was taken up in advance as early as Saturday!

— A little boy was recently drowned in Troy, N. Y., by the upsetting of a boat. His father soon became prostrated with grief, and died a few days afterward, and was followed in a short time by his wife, who could not bear up under this double affliction.

— Elliston, a somewhat noted pedestrian, undertook to walk in St. Stephen, N. B., for four consecutive days and nights, with but twenty minutes rest each day. He performed the feat, lacking about twenty minutes, though at last he was delirious. Can't such powers be put to some better use?

— The English steamer Lucy was captured off Wilmington on the 2d inst., with 414 bales of cotton and 25 tons of tobacco; the steamer Anna was captured Oct. 31, with 518 bales of cotton, 30 tons of tobacco, and 15 barrels of turpentine; making seven captures of blockade runners and four destroyed within the last thirty days.

EROSION OF LEAD BY INSECTS.—The fact that there are insects of different species which bore into lead has been heretofore known, but a correspondent of the London Times recalls attention to the subject. The insect which bored French bullets in the Crimea was not known in Russia, but is said to be common in the Jura, in France and in Germany and Sweden, as well as in England. It is a wood insect, and usually attacks silver firs and pines. It is the larvæ of the insect which attacks the lead — not the perfect insects, which die in the excavated passages even immediately after the metamorphosis, as very often occurs with insects in general. Roof and other sheet lead has been known to be bored by a species of Bostriche. The Sirex gigas also cuts its way into lead by means of its mandibles, and lead pipes have been perforated by an insect. The mandibles of some of these insects consist of a saw, toothed and cut like a file. Perforations in lead ascribed to corrosion may sometimes be the product of the mischievious industry of such insects.

NEW HAMPSHIRE ITEMS.

— Brig. Gen. Marston arrived in Exeter on Friday.

— Charles A. Cook, Co. A, 5th N. H. regiment, of Epping, died at a hospital in New York, last week, aged 21.

— The Exeter Savings Bank has declared an extra dividend of 10 per cent, payable in January next, on all deposits for the last five years.

— Col. Wheelock G. Veazey of Rutland, a native of Exeter, has been appointed by the Vermont Legislature reporter of the decisions of the Supreme Court.

— Seven of the companies of the New Hampshire Heavy Artillery Regiment are assigned to the Third Brigade of Gen. De Russy's Division in the defences of Washington, and located under command of Lieut. Barton, in various forts.

— The people of New Hampshire vote to-day upon the question of holding a convention to revise the constitution—to sit only ten days—the subjects to be acted upon to be only: 1st, to give soldiers in the field the right to vote; 5d, to abolish the religious test; 3d, to reduce the House of Representatives and enlarge the Senate; 4th, to provide for future amendments.

— The Concord Independent Democrat says:

The Selectmen of the celebrated Ward Five, in Manchester, since the draft has been made in that ward, have presented to the Provost Marshal of this District one hundred and thirty seven names on the enrollment list which they testify under oath, are either aliens or have not lived in the ward since the enrollment was made more than two years ago. Upon comparing these names with the check list used in that ward at the last March election, and where these same Selectmen presided at the polls, it was found that out of this number, seventy-five names are checked as having voted at our last election. These men have acknowledged the rascality that has been played in that ward for the last two years. Such base and flagrant corruption has been practiced, that Capt. Silvey, the Provost Marshal of the State, has ordered a new enrollment to be made, which will probably reduce the number of voters there three hundred.

— Gen. Grant observes in a letter of the 16th of August, that, "all we want now to insure an early restoration of the Union, is a determined unity of sentiment at the North." Vote that he may have it.

— It is stated that Hon. Robert J. Walker has contributed a large number of valuable pictures to the Sanitary Commission, which have been shipped from London to be sold in this country.

— "Well," said a Union orator, "I, too, am a peace man — but when peace comes, I pray God she may come in the form of a white-winged angel, and not in the form of a white-faced slave, chained under the bloody feet of an aristocratic rebel lion."

☞ A course of Assemblies will be given by the Odd Fellows, at Irving Hall, the present season, commencing Thursday evening, Nov. 10. MARCELLUS ELDREDGE, for the Committee.

A soft or green Quaker would be as great a curiosity as a dissipated Hebrew; but not so great a one after all as to find the woman who did not prefer the J. Monroe Taylor Gold Medal Soap to any other the world can produce. Wife says it makes old clothes look as well as new, and a cross man the pleasantest and most lovely creature on the globe.—Try it, and our word for it, you will always patronize the Gold Medal Soap. 26

HUNNEWELL'S STANDARD PREPARATIONS.—On our inside columns will be found a notice of these justly celebrated and standard preparations, of unbounded reputation in New England, profess only what they are remedies for, are for sale by all wholesale and retail dealers, and confidence is asked to test them. See advertisement.

To every barrel of Flour you can make thirty pounds more Bread or Biscuit (and much better) by using Herrick Allen's Gold Medal, than by yeast fermentation or any other Saleratus.—It is perfectly healthy, will not turn your cookery yellow, will strengthen weak stomachs, and cure dyspeptic persons. It is much better to use with cream tartar than soda. Try one paper, and you will be convinced. Most of the Grocers sell it. Depot 112 Liberty Street, New York.

DEATHS.

In this city, Nov. 7, Miss JOHANNA GOSNELL, aged 18 years.

☞ Funeral services will be performed in this city at house No. 18 High street, this (Tuesday) morning at 10 o'clock. Friends and relatives are invited to attend.

SAVE YOUR FUEL:

THE MODEL COOK.

IS, IN FACT,

The Best Stove Out,

for economy, convenience and dispatch.

Many people think it best to use an old stove as long as possible, but it is far better to throw it away and purchase a MODEL COOK, than to keep it at the present high price of fuel.

One of our shrewdest citizens who purchased a MODEL COOK STOVE a year since, says he has saved more than its cost already.

A careful, prudent farmer purchased one, and after it had been in operation some days his son came into the store and said, "something was wrong at their house;" his father and himself used wood off the same pile, he burned three baskets full a day, and his father only one! We sold him a Stove before he left, and there has been no complaint since.

These Stoves are in use in many hotels and boarding houses, and in hundreds of private families in this city and vicinity, and give the best of satisfaction.

PRICES REDUCED.

The subscriber has reduced the prices of the Model Cook Stoves FIVE DOLLARS each, to conform to the decline in gold.

Morning Chronicle.

☞ A recent Paris letter says—That "old friend of America," as M. Laboulaye styles himself with such good reason, publishes in the last number of the Revue Nationale, a vigorous, earnestly eloquent article, showing the vital importance of the success of the Union party in the coming political campaign, not only to the cause of the American Union and consequent political and civil liberty with us, but to the cause of free government and civil liberty the world over. Intelligent men with us, who are thinking that patriotism or even considerations of well understood material interest are reconcilable with the principles and want of them, represented by the Presidential candidate of our so-called Democracy, would do well to ponder Laboulaye's argument. No one can pretend that he is ignorant of our institutions, the study of which has been the occupation of his strong mind for years before our civil war. But M. Laboulaye—a man undoubtedly of superior mental powers, and exceptionally familiar with the theory and practice of American institutions—is not alone, is not one in a thousand, but is one of the thousands of European Liberals in his way of thinking and feeling on the American question. How can sincere American Democrats, still held by old party names and chains, explain to themselves the fact that their party, in its present degeneracy, is the pet and hope of the European aristocratic and autocratic parties; that it has for its partisan journals in Europe, all the newspaper organs of rulers and administrations, and classes instinctively hostile to popular government; and this other counter-fact that all classes of European Liberals, who have been used to defend the American Republic, to point to it as an exemplary proof of a nation's capacity to rule itself in freedom, to believe in our free institutions, and through their belief in and love for them to plead, and battle, and hope for the attainment of similar ones for their nations, should now all deprecate and dread the successful progress of our Democratic principles to administrative power? Is it these Europeans, who, without selfish interest or other conceivable rational motive, have changed their life-long convictions, and the very nature of their minds?

DR. S. O. RICHARDSON'S

BLOOD ROOT ELIXIR

Has been thoroughly tested and proved in his medical practice, for a period of THIRTY YEARS, and is now presented to the public as an effectual cure for

COSTIVENESS,
and the best remedy ever prepared for
Diseases of the Liver,
SCROFULA,
All Humors and Impurities of the Blood, and Diseases of the Skin.

The preparing and combining the Blood Root Elixir, is attended with results to medical science next in importance to the inhalation of ether in surgery. Roots and plants, in their natural state, are inert and disagreeable, are, by a new and scientific process of extracting (in vacuo,) rendered MORE EFFECTIVE THERAPEUTICAL AGENTS, entirely divested of the griping and distressing pain which attends the action of all other purgative medicine. They are also made to become HIGHLY PLEASANT AND AGREEABLE TO THE TASTE, and by their peculiar combination work so perfectly in HARMONY WITH NATURE that no unpleasant reaction will follow its operation. It also possesses which can only be attained by medicine in a fluid state. These are new elements in purgative medicines.

The hard and compact manner in which pills are prepared renders them indigestible—and when taken are forced through the stomach and bowels, half-dissolved, causing only PARTIAL ACTION, thereby creating irritation and pain to the parts connected with their passage.

One pill dissolved, secundum artem, will produce more medicinal and physical effect than five in a crude state.

The BLOOD ROOT ELIXIR has no partial action upon the bowels, but is equally diffused throughout the whole circulation of the blood, imparting a healthy and invigorating action to the STOMACH AND BOWELS, LIVER, LUNGS, KIDNEYS, and gently stimulating dormant and morbid secretions through the whole system.

A single dose will produce a cheerful and exhilarating COMMOTION, which will inspire the patient with confidence and assurance of IMMEDIATE RELIEF. A continuance for a short period will DRIVE the obscure and hidden humors to the surface of the skin, and relieve or check SCROFULOUS AFFECTIONS—and by thus purifying and strengthening the blood, will remove the most fruitful

CAUSE OF CONSUMPTION.

It incites the various organs of the system to act their allotted part, removing the causes which induce DYSPEPSIA, GOUT, NEURALGIA, HEADACHE, LOSS OF APPETITE, DYSPEPSIA, COSTIVENESS, and the various diseases which arise from a derangement of the Stomach and Bowels, and restricted circulation of the Blood.

COUGHS and COLDS, in their early stages, will immediately yield to the effect of the Elixir.

The BLOOD ROOT ELIXIR contains no mineral, no poisonous substance, but is a vegetable tonic, and stimulates the secretions by its mild diffusive action. It is an effective and painless aperient—has a decided, salutary action upon the Liver, and does less harm to the stomach, and is more generally prescribed for common family use which possesses equal merit.

Travellers, both by sea and land, will find the Elixir a valuable protector against the sickness they are obliged to endure from a change of climate, of water, or of diet.

See the pamphlet around each bottle for a history of this Elixir.

The proprietor of the Blood Root Elixir, (Dr. S. O. Richardson,) has been long and favorably known to the public by his celebrated SHERRY WINE BITTERS, the best tonic medicine ever discovered, and which has been in use over thirty years. He is a graduate of the New Hampshire Medical College, and many years associate member of the Massachusetts Medical Society, and has made the study of medicine his profession since 1828.

And so fully convinced is the Doctor of the wonderful curative effects of his Blood Root Elixir, that he hereby offers to each and every person who will use one-half of a bottle of his Elixir and not be conscious of a good effect therefrom, to refund to said person the amount which he paid for the same, by returning the village bottle to his office.

Price $1.50 per Bottle.

Sold in Portsmouth by J. H. THACHER, opposite the Post Office, and No. 12 Market Square; and by Dealers in Medicine generally, and at Dr. Richardson's Office, No. 54 Hanover street, Boston.

The situation is high and dry; the cellar built of Biddeford granite, being one of the very best in the city. The house possesses many advantages. Situate on one of the most pleasant avenues in the city, with a fine prospect from either side of the dwelling, amid pure and healthy surroundings, the location is one seldom found in the market.

The ROOMS are conveniently arranged, the stories being of good height, windows of fine proportions, and all the finish of the kind found in a first-class house.

THE MAGEE

COOKING STOVE.

The subscriber, having received his Fall stock of Stoves, would especially call the attention of the public to the

MAGEE COOK STOVE,

as the very best Stove yet made, and would invite those about purchasing or exchanging Stoves, to examine this, believing it to be far superior to any other Stove yet invented, the castings being heavier, and the oven larger than usual. The oven plates are covered with plaster, which renders it equal to the old-fashioned brick oven for perfection in baking.

There is a new style and very superior broiler and air-iron heater combined, by which the odor of broiling meats are prevented from escaping into the room. With the extension top there is a large copper Reservoir for hot water; also a large tin warming closet attached, in which any article can be kept warm, while the other parts of the Stove are occupied for other purposes.

The arrangements for sifting the coal and cleaning the grate are far superior to those of any other Stove now in use, as no dust can possibly escape into the room, and the shoveling up of the ashes is entirely dispensed with. The fire is regulated in the same manner as the the MAGEE PARLOR STOVE, and can be continued day and night for weeks together, thus saving the expense of re-kindling every day.

For economy, durability, ease of management, cleanliness and perfection in cooking, it cannot be surpassed by any other Stove, as hundreds of families in this city and vicinity, who are now using them, are willing to testify, and speak of them in the highest terms of praise.

We would refer to the following purchasers:

"MAGEE'S PATENT"

VENTILATING & AIR-WARMING

FURNACES.

The subscriber, being the Sole Agent in this vicinity for the manufacture and sale of this valuable Furnace, would ask those about remodelling or erecting buildings to examine this truly valuable invention.

For economy, purity of air and ease of management it has no equal, producing a current of warm air, pure and agreeable—and as none of the air which comes in contact with the fire-pot is used for respiration, the tendency to produce headaches so much complained of in other Furnaces, is entirely obviated.

The objects aimed at by the constructors of heating apparatus have been to obtain the greatest amount of heat from a given amount of fuel, and to prevent the escape of heat to the smoke pipe or chimney.

To accomplish this many complicated and expensive heating arrangements have been constructed, some possessing but little improvement over former methods, while many have proved a total failure. The reason for this is obvious. The combustible gases being lighter than the air, pass off into the pipe or chimney without being consumed. This objection, so common in other Furnaces, is obviated in the

MAGEE FURNACE.

The flue or pipe in this Furnace being below the fire-pot, the gases, from their specific gravity, cannot descend, and are burned up by the admission of cold air through the fire-pot, which ignites them as they pass off from the coal, thus saving at least 20 per cent. of the properties of the heat in the fuel.

No heating apparatus with the smoke-pipe or flue on the top of the cone can be made to consume the gases of the coal, as they pass off with a large amount of the heat generated, making the chimney the hottest part of your dwelling.

This Furnace does away with the great number of pipes and angles for the radiation of heat, which are so liable to fill up and get out of order, thus simplifying, while it increases the surface of radiation.

These Furnaces consume all the coal, make no clinkers, the sifting of coal is entirely dispensed with, and they will save from 30 to 50 per cent. of fuel over common Furnaces.

For ease of management, economy and purity of air these Furnaces have no equal. They can be regulated so as to give any amount of heat required, and the fire may be kept the entire season without once going out.

They give entire satisfaction wherever used. We have in store the different sizes, Brick and Portable, to which we invite the attention of those in want of the best Furnace in the world,—and would refer them to the following named gentlemen, who have them now in use:

Samuel Cleaves, Esq.,	Albert R. Hatch, Esq.,
Aaron H. Hill,	Charles H. Mendum,
Henry F. Wendell,	John Sise, and others.

CHEROKEE MEDICINES.

Cherokee Cure, the great Indian Medicine,

ROOTS, BARKS AND LEAVES.

An unfailing cure for Spermatorrhea, Seminal Weakness, Nocturnal Emissions, and all diseases caused by self-pollution; such as Loss of Memory, Universal Lassitude, Pains in the Back, Dimness of Vision, Premature Old Age, Weak Nerves, Difficult Breathing, Trembling, Wakefulness, Eruptions on the Face, Pale Countenance, Insanity, Consumption, and all the direful complaints caused by departing from the path of nature.

☞ This medicine is a simple vegetable extract and one on which all can rely, as it has been used in our practice for many years, and with thousands treated it has not failed in a single instance. Its curative powers have been sufficient to gain victory over the most stubborn cases.

☞ To those who have trifled with their constitution, until they think themselves beyond the reach of medical aid, we would say, Despair not! the CHEROKEE CURE will restore you to health and vigor, and after all quack doctors have failed!

☞ For full particulars, get a circular from any drug store in the country, or write the proprietors, who will mail free to any one desiring the same, a full treatment in pamphlet form.

CHEROKEE REMEDY

—AND—

CHEROKEE INJECTION,

Compounded from Roots, Barks & Leaves.

CHEROKEE REMEDY, the great Indian Diuretic, cures all diseases of the urinary organs, such as Incontinence of the Urine, Inflammation of the Bladder, Inflammation of the Kidneys, Stone in the Bladder, Stricture, Gravel, Gleet, Gonorrhœa, and is especially recommended in those cases of Fluor Albus (or Whites in females) where all the old nauseous medicines have failed.

It is prepared in a highly concentrated form, the dose only being from one to two tablespoonfuls three times per day.

It is diuretic and alterative in its action; purifying and cleansing the blood, causing it to flow in all of its original purity and vigor; thus removing from the system all pernicious causes which have induced disease.

CHEROKEE INJECTION is intended as an ally or assistant to the CHEROKEE REMEDY, and should be used in conjunction with that medicine in all cases of Gonorrhœa, Gleet, Fluor Albus or Whites. Its effects are healing, mild and demulcent; removing all scalding, heat, chordee and pain, instead of the burning and almost unendurable pain that is experienced with nearly all the cheap quack injections.

☞ By the use of the CHEROKEE REMEDY and CHEROKEE INJECTION—the two medicines at the same time—all improper discharges are removed, and the weakened organs are speedily restored to full vigor and strength.

For full particulars get our pamphlet from any drug store in the country, or write us and we will mail free, to any address, a full treatise.

HORSEFLESH, without doubt, must by-and-by become food in this and all other countries. And why not? Everybody knows the horse is a much cleaner feeding animal than the ox even, not to mention the horrid hog. The following significant remarks, we cut from a long article in the Boston Medical and Surgical Journal:

There is one source of flesh which deserves the attention of all interested in this matter among us, and which has for several years received the consideration of science in Europe. The horse is as strictly an herbivorous animal as the ox, and according to all who have tasted it his flesh is nearly as palatable as that of the latter. Indeed, its most nearly allied relatives in nature, the wild asses of Asia and the quagga of Africa, are hunted on account of their flesh, which is thought to be one of the greatest dainties. Many tons of good animal food are allowed to go to waste during the year in every community on account of our prejudice or ignorance regarding the fitness of this animal for food, which might otherwise help supply this deficiency we deplore.

Every horse, as soon as disabled by age or accident from service in his present capacity, could be easily fatted and slaughtered, and thus add greatly to his present value and the productiveness of the land. For ourselves we would as readily eat the flesh of the horse as of the ox, sheep, deer, or other vegetable feeder, and far rather than that of the filthy and parasite-breeding hog. We trust it will not be long before a slaughter-house for horses is established in this country, and that its flesh will become a regular article of diet, as in Vienna, Berlin, Lyons and Zurich.

SWALLOWING A CHRISTIAN.—A friend has a little girl, who, we are afraid, will make a strong-minded woman one of these days, so powerful already is the development of her reasoning faculties. Ever since Van Amburgh's bills have been posted, she has been in a fever of excitement on the subject of natural history, and everything relating to wild animals, has commanded her immediate and eager attention. At a neighbor's the other day, she was shown a print representing the early Christians being torn by wild beasts, in the Amphitheatre in Rome. The picture, with the explanations which were given her, made a profound impression upon her mind, as will be seen by what follows. Yesterday she was taken to the Menagerie, where she surveyed the collection with infinite delight until it came to that part of the performances where Prof. Langworthy entered the den of lions and tigers, when she became very sober and reflective. Upon returning home, the following dialogue took place between the young lady and her grandmother:

"Well, Fannie, what did you see at the Menagerie?"

"Oh, I saw aytings, grandma. I saw a great big tow, (the elephant) with the horns growing out of its mouth, and I saw the darlingest little ponies, and such funny little monkeys; and, grandma, I saw the lion swallow a tristian!"

"Saw the lion swallow a Christian, Fanny! Why, what do you mean?"

"I did, grandma. They put a "tristian" into the cage with the animals, and the lions and tigers began to jump on him, and one of the lions got his head in his mouth, and then I got frightened and shut my eyes just as tight as ever I could till the music stopped playing, and when I opened them again (drawing a long breath,) the poor tristian was gone!"

A SOLDIER ON SURGEONS.—"It don't matter the being cared for; they cared for me in Washington; but it's the way the caring's done. I'll just tell you how it is, in this war. We're all a set of ten-pins, stood up to have balls sent at us; along they come and down we go. No matter, get another set; but still it may save Uncle Sam to mend the broken ones, and use them again; the other members come along, pick you up, feel you all over, and see if you're worth mending; if so, you're patched up and stood in your place again. I've seen enough of it; but here comes this fellow—I beg your pardon, Miss, it's surgeon-in-charge I'm thinking you like him called—and he don't say much different from the other menders; but it's all in his eye—it says a lot more nor his tongue—it says, 'You're flesh and blood, you are, poor fellow! and I'm sorry to see you twisting about with pain like that, and it's all a bad business, this same, so it is.' Do you think I care what a man's tongue says, when his eyes say that? I tell you I feel better the whole day for one look like that. It's my belief that all the talk that's right from the heart comes out of the eye; and when men make you believe things not just so, it's their tongues they use."—Hospital Notes.

In Syphilis, Gonorrhœa, Gleet, Stricture, Enlargement of the testicles and Spermatic Cords Bubo, Ulcerated Throat, Nose, Nose, Tender Shin Bones, Cutaneous Eruptions, Biles, Ulcers, Abscesses, and all other impurities of the system, are perfectly under the control of the Doctor's Medicines, and have been tested in more than 20,000 cases annually, with immense Success.
YOUNG MEN.
Young Men addicted to secret habits, who have impaired their health and destroyed the vigor of their minds, thus depriving themselves of the pleasure of the Married Life, are notified that in consulting Dr. J. Teller, they will find a friend to console and a Physician who has cured thousands, in almost every part of the United States, who applied to Dr. T. broken down in health, now rejoice in all that makes life desirable and man happy. The reader is of course aware that the delicacy of this subject will prevent a more minute description of this terrible disease.

American and Foreign Patents.
R. H. EDDY,
SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,
Late Agent of U. S. Patent Office, Washington, (under the Act of 1837,)
76 State street, opposite Kilby street,
Boston.
After an extensive practice of upwards of twenty years, continues to secute Patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Bonds Assignments, and all Papers or Drawings for Patents, executed on liberal terms, and with dispatch. Examinations made into American or Foreign works, to determine the validity or utility of patents or inventions—and legal or other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any Patent furnished by remitting One Dollar. Assignments recorded at Washington.
The Agency is not only the largest in New England, but through it inventors have advantages for securing Patents, or ascertaining the patentability of inventions unsurpassed by, if not immeasurably superior to, any which can be offered them elsewhere. The Testimonials below given prove that no one is MORE SUCCESSFUL AT THE PATENT OFFICE than the subscriber; and as SUCCESS IS THE BEST PROOF OF ADVANCED SKILL AND ABILITY, he would add that he has abundant reason to believe, and can prove, that at no other office of the kind are the charges for professional service so moderate.
The immense practice of the subscriber during twenty years past, has enabled him to accumulate a vast collection of specifications and official decisions relative to patents.
These, besides his extensive library of legal and mechanical works, and full access to the documents granted in the United States and Europe, render him able, beyond question, to offer superior facilities for obtaining Patents.
All necessity of a journey to Washington, to procure a patent, and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.
TESTIMONIALS.
"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse."
CHARLES MASON,
Commissioner of Patents.
"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a person more competent and trustworthy, and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office."
EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents.
Mr. R. H. Eddy has made for me THIRTEEN applications, on all but one of which patents have been granted, and that is now pending. Such unmistakeable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend all inventors to apply to him to procure their patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases, and at very reasonable charges."
JOHN TAGGART.
During eight months, the subscriber, in course of his large practice, made on twice rejected applications SIXTEEN APPEALS, EVERY ONE of which was decided in his favor, by the Commissioner of Patents.

Portsmouth, N. H.

WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 9TH, 1864.

PRESIDENTIAL ELECTION.

On Tuesday twenty-five States participated in one of the most eventful elections ever held in this country. The issue was presented plainly and boldly, whether the people would have a government of the people, for the people and by the people, or a disintegrated nation, with an oligarchy, based on ownership in man, to dictate the future policy of the continent.

The 25 loyal states are entitled to 233 electoral votes, requiring 117 for a choice.

New Hampshire voted in March last: Union 37,006, dem. 31,340, scat. 79. Many soldiers were then at home to vote; now they vote in the field, although many of those in hospitals have returned.

Below we give the returns obtained up to the hour of going to press. Our thanks are due to the Telegraph Operator and to the Union committee for courtesies and facilities extended. Also to the Ward Clerks of this city, and the Town Clerks and other friends in neighboring towns.

In Boston districts, for Members of Congress, Rice, Union, 2940 majority; Hooper, Union, 2404 majority.

Boston, Nov. 8th, 6:30 P. M.—Majority for Gov. Andrew in Boston 5000; about the same for Lincoln. Rice is re-elected to Congress in the 3d District by nearly 3000 majority, and Hooper in the 4th District by a heavy majority. This gives Massachusetts a unanimous delegation in Congress. The State has gone overwhelmingly for Lincoln, as was anticipated.

— Hull voted 21 for Lincoln, 20 for McClellan.

We have as yet few returns from Maine. Portland voted 2814 for Lincoln, 1814 for McClellan.—a Union gain of 25 since September. Returns from Maine indicate a majority of about 20,000 for Lincoln, being a gain on the vote for Cony in September. Nothing definite yet from other States.

Boston, 9:30 P. M.—The whole vote of New York city, 117,000; McClellan's maj. 35,000. The State has gone Republican, and Seymour is defeated.

115 towns in Massachusetts give Lincoln 71,511, McClellan 30,805.

Baltimore gives 12,000 Union majority, and the Union majority in Maryland will be from 5000 to 10,000.

Boston, 10:40 P. M.—34 towns in Vermont show an increased vote on the September election. Net gain on the Union vote, 2260.

175 towns in Massachusetts give Lincoln 88,817, McClellan 36,285. The majorities in Springfield are overwhelmingly Union. The city was claimed by the Democrats, but the total footings give Lincoln 1585 majority. The Union men expected but 500 majority, and are exceedingly jubilant over the result. Every man voted for by them is elected, although A. N. Merrick, of Springfield, for County Commissioner, falls 535 behind his ticket in that city. An immense Union meeting is in progress there at City Hall, and the greatest enthusiasm prevails.

Boston, 11:50 P. M.—New Haven, Conn., gives 395 majority for McClellan. Of 13 towns in that county, 6 give Lincoln 428 majority, and 7, including New Haven, give McClellan 983 majority. 31 towns in Connecticut, including New Haven, Hartford, Bridgeport, Waterbury, Norwich and New London, give Lincoln 1116 majority.

Seventeen wards in New York, complete, give McClellan 26,618 majority. The city will probably give 35,000 majority for McClellan. Elmira, N. Y., give Lincoln 116 majority.

Returns from Indiana show a Union majority of 30,000. No returns for the press have yet been received from the West or the South.

Boston, 1 A. M.—110 towns in New Hampshire give Lincoln 22,395, McClellan 20,291. Democratic gain in these towns, 2050. The above embraces nearly two-thirds of all the towns in the State.

89 towns in Maine give Lincoln 23,261, McClellan 14,085,—Union gain over September vote 1513. 111 towns in Maine give Lincoln 29,796, McClellan 17,975.

Returns from Baltimore show a heavy Union gain over the Constitutional election. Lincoln's majority in the city will not be less than 11,000.

Boston, 1:30 A. M.—Scattering returns from Ohio and Indiana indicate Union gains over the October elections, and that Lincoln has carried the two States by heavy majorities.

Eleven wards in Philadelphia give a Union gain of 924. The entire majority in the city will be about 11,000.

Frederick City, Md., gives 452 majority for Lincoln, a gain of 98 compared with the October election. Webster, for Congress, is undoubtedly elected by a large maj.

Fifty towns in Vermont give Lincoln 16,644, McClellan 4869; Union majority 11,775; Union gain on the vote of September 571. The State is good for 30,000 majority for Lincoln.

In Connecticut, Tolland county gives Lincoln 2193, McClellan 1840; Middlesex county, Lincoln 3083, McClellan 3207. A dispatch from Danbury says the election passed off quietly in that part of the state. Danbury gives 132, Bethel 93, Ridgefield 79, Redding 41, and Milton 83 majority for Lincoln; New Fairfield 32, Sherman 66, Brookfield 56, Newtown 141, and Milford 3 maj. for McClellan.

The total vote of New York city is, Lincoln 36,442, McClellan 73,329. McClellan's majority in the city is 36,887. 19 towns in the state, thus far heard from, give Lincoln an aggregate majority of 2403. 8 towns give McClellan 1286 maj.

Providence, R. I., gives Lincoln 2200 majority, and Newport 376 maj. Returns from nearly the whole of Rhode Island show a majority for Lincoln of about 5000.

The agent at Chicago reports the wires in Illinois, Iowa, Wisconsin and Minnesota, working so badly at 11 o'clock, that there will be few if any returns from those States to-night unless the weather improves.

Boston, 3 A. M.—The indications are sure that we have carried Pennsylvania for Lincoln on the home vote. Philadelphia has done nobly.

120 towns in New Hampshire give Lincoln 23,961, McClellan 21,667. The State goes for Lincoln by 2500 majority on the home vote.

Wilmington, Del., gives Lincoln 1700 majority. Lincoln has carried Delaware; his majority in Massachusetts is 50,000, in Connecticut probably 6000, and in Maryland probably 8000.

Boston, 3:30 A. M.—All the towns in Rhode Island give Lincoln 2011 majority, and the soldiers' vote will increase it.

Brooklyn, N. Y., gives Lincoln 18,191, McClellan 23,515. 65 towns and 2 counties give Lincoln 10,611 majority; 30 towns give McClellan 4734 majority,—all outside of New York and Brooklyn. The World claims New York State for the Democrats, by a majority of from 10,000 to 20,000. The Times claims to have carried the State by a Republican majority of 10,000. The Times also says the returns indicate that the Republicans have carried New Jersey, and certainly carried Maryland, Delaware, Pennsylvania, Massachusetts, Indiana, Vermont and Maine, and that it is not probable that McClellan has carried any State except Kentucky. The Tribune gives Lincoln's majority in Connecticut at 3000, and in Maryland at 5000.

A private dispatch says Delaware will give Lincoln 3 electoral votes.

The Union clubs are parading the streets in Philadelphia. The Democratic headquarters are darkened. Pennsylvania is generally conceded as having given her vote for Lincoln.

Detroit gives 1000 Dem. majority, and scattering returns from the Western states show small Dem. gains. Chicago complete gives Lincoln 1745 maj. Cook county, Ill., gives about 4000 Union majority. Returns come in slowly. Those received show gains over Lincoln's maj. in 1860. Leading Union men claim 20,000 majority in the State.

Boston, 4 A. M.—It is estimated by Republicans that Wisconsin has given Lincoln 10,000 majority on the home vote, which will be largely increased by the soldiers'.

Leading Republicans claim and Democrats admit that Iowa has gone for Lincoln by 25,000.

Leading Republicans claim 5000 majority for the State of Minnesota.

Bradford county, Penn., gives 3500 Union majority.

Cleveland gives 3500 Union majority on the home vote.

Essex county, N. J., has gone Union by over 150 majority, making a Union gain of 1000 from last year.

Michigan is claimed to be Republican by 10,000 on the home vote, which the soldiers' vote is expected to increase to 15,000.

Partial returns from 28 counties in Kentucky, excluding Jefferson, give Lincoln 250 maj. Louisville, Lincoln 1849, McClellan 4873.

Returns from all parts of Indiana show large Union gains over October. Lincoln's maj. from 30,000 to 35,000.

Returns from Missouri are meagre. The Republicans estimate Lincoln's majority at 4000 to 5000 on the home vote. The opposition concede him 1500 to 2000 maj.

The Tribune claims New York by from 5000 to 10,000 Union maj. It also says N. Jersey has probably given a small majority for McClellan, while Pennsylvania has given at least 10,000 Union majority on the home vote.

York, Penn., 9th, 3:15 a. m. A dispatch from St. Louis states that Lincoln has undoubtedly carried the State.

Additional from Kentucky. Returns are meagre, but indicate Democratic successes.

Additional Indiana. The State has gone for Lincoln, by not less than from 27,000 to 30,000 majority.

Additional from Pennsylvania. Alleghany Co., forty-five districts, including Pittsburg and Alleghany City, give Lincoln an increase of 1500 over the October election. His majority in the entire Co. will be 8,510. The Philadelphia Press claims from 8000 to 10,000 majority for Lincoln in the State. The Age also claims the State the same.

THE REBELLION.

Mrs. Thos. J. Hutchins, a Baltimore woman of some prominence, has been arrested for procuring a sword to be presented to Harry Gilmer, the raider.

The N. Y. Herald's Martinsburg correspondent says: "While Gen. Sheridan, Col. Comstock of Gen. Grant's staff, Capt. T. W. Moore and others were visiting Col. Edwards at Winchester, they were suddenly taken with symptoms of poisoning by corrosive sublimate. By the prompt use of antidotes they were relieved, though their cases at one time were almost hopeless. The poison is supposed to have been contained in some cheese of which all had partaken freely."

The Tribune's City Point correspondent says the rebels in their charge on the 3d division of the 2d corps on Saturday night, were repulsed with heavy loss. The loss on our side was slight. We took 100 prisoners.

A DROP LETTER.—No. 5.

LEXINGTON, Mass., Nov. 4.

Such a smoke as has prevailed here for nearly a fortnight past would have entirely disabused the people of Portsmouth of any fear of the spread of yellow fever, had said smoke visited that locality in company with Yellow Jack last summer. A stifling, bitter, choking smoke, as if all the shoe-makers in the world were burning refuse scraps. It is caused by the burning of some peat beds which accidentally caught fire, and which two heavy rains have proved inadequate to quench.

Among the pleasant drives from this point, that to Spy Pond in West Cambridge is not the least interesting, the road along the shore of that beautiful sheet of water being skirted by some very fine residences. That of Addison Gage, the great ice-dealer (whose wealth has been drawn from the surface of this pond), excels all others in a sort of barbaric magnificence; but I think it far in the rear of many of less pretensions, so far as beauty is concerned. Here many of the pleasures with which wealth delights to surround itself may be enjoyed by poor as well as rich. The beautiful gardens, lawns, hedges and groves, on which so much time, money and labor have been spent, may be seen by the passer, and the architectural beauties of the different residences afford him study in the contemplation of the vast strides we as a people have made in this direction within twenty years.

But be careful in your selection of companions, or you may suffer, as I did when on the road to Spy Pond a day or two since. Passing a well, on the curb of which some Boston clothing dealer's advertisement was painted, I either asked: "Why is that advertisement like the railroad for which Grant has done so much hard fighting?" and on our confessing our inability to discover the similarity, informed us that it was because it was Wel(l)don(e).

Among other means of rendering the evenings pleasant at the Lexington House, Dr. Lewis gives one or two lectures a week, on subjects named by the audience. Last evening the "Tomato as an Article of Food" was the topic, and the Doctor cited numerous cases from his own experience, as well as from the published works of other physicians, showing that this fascinating edible when partaken of freely is sure to produce evil results, such as congestion of the mucous membrane, loosening of the teeth, &c. Dr. Lewis does not go as far as some physicians, and pronounce the tomato positively poisonous, but opines that a little may be used as sauce, in the same manner that we use mustard and other relishes.

The day is such as to justify all the ill-natured things that have ever been said or sung about November, and the contrast, the landscape of to-day presents to that of a fortnight since is but a foreshadowing of the still greater change soon to be. ION.

CONSPIRACY.—The military authorities in Chicago on Sunday night arrested a number of secession sympathizers, and seized a large quantity of arms and ammunition in their possession. Their intention was to liberate the Camp Douglas prisoners, fire the city and control the election. Among those arrested are Judge Buckner Morris and a brother of the rebel General Marmaduke. They are confined in Camp Douglas.

Intelligence of their coming was communicated by a telegram to Hon. John Wentworth. Col. Sweet, commanding Camp Douglas, was communicated with, and orders were at once issued for the arrest of the desperadoes on their arrival. The fact leaked out and the faithful found means to apprize their friends, and they left the train at the city limits and escaped in various directions.

A propeller also arrived on Monday with nearly 100 suspicious charters from Canada. The police and military authorities scoured the city and vicinity, and arrested a number of both parties. In one house there were found and seized 200 stand of arms, with all the necessary ammunition, and two cart-loads of large revolvers loaded and capped, ready for use. In another house two boxes of guns were found. The Democratic committee, fearful of the effect of such a conspiracy on all reasonable and well-minded men, issued an address of the Uriah Heap order, in which they express their entire ignorance of the raiders and their objects, and come to the sage conclusion that it is a political trick of the Union party!

The citizens, however, organized a mounted patrol of 500 men, who were all to be on duty on Monday night. There was a considerable military force in the city, also.

CAPTURE OF THE PIRATE FLORIDA.—The United States steamer Kearsarge arrived in the harbor of Boston on Monday night, with most gratifying news. The Kearsarge has just returned from a cruise to the southward of the Equator in search of the pirate Florida, and has as passenger W. W. Williams, Assistant Paymaster of the Wachuset, bearer of dispatches of the circumstances attending the capture of the Florida in the port of Bahia. The barque Mondamon, from Rio, was captured by the Florida off Pernambuco about Sept. 28, and burned. This was the only American vessel captured by the Florida since her departure from Teneriffe. The following is a brief account of the capture of the pirate:

The Florida arrived at Bahia, Bay of San Salvador, on the 5th ult. On the night of the 7th ult., Capt. Collins, having held a consultation with his officers, determined to sink the Florida in port. Accordingly at about 3 o'clock the cables were slipped and the Wachuset steered for the Florida, hitting her on the quarter without doing great injury. Capt. Collins now called out to those on board the pirate to surrender or he would sink her. This demand was replied to by the First Lieutenant that "under the circumstances he surrendered." A hawser was now made fast, chain slipped and the Florida towed to sea. In the melee several pistol shots were fired, and, accidentally, two guns from the Wachuset.

Capt. Morris and half the Florida's crew were ashore on liberty. No lives were lost. The Florida was taken completely by surprise, seventy of her men, it was known, being on shore, and the others just returned from liberty were asleep and half intoxicated. The blow carried away the mizzen mast and main yard, which fell on the awning, preventing any one from getting up from below. So unconscious was the officer of the deck of the intention of the Wachuset's Captain, that he sang out: "You will run into us, if you don't take care!" at the same time calling for a light. Twelve officers and fifty-eight of the crew of the Florida were captured. The Surgeon and twenty of the crew are on board the Kearsarge. The Wachusett and Florida were to leave St. Thomas on the 2d inst. for New York.

The port of Bahia, or San Salvador de Bahia, is situated on the Bahia de Todos-os-Santos, (All Saints' Bay,) on the northern coast of Brazil, about 880 miles N. N. E. from Rio Janeiro, being in lat. 13 South, lon. 38 1-2 West.

HALE'S

Honey of Horehound Tar,

For the cure of Coughs, Colds, Influenza, Hoarseness, Difficult Breathing, and all Affections of the Throat, Bronchial Tubes and Lungs, leading to Consumption.

This sovereign remedy is compounded from the favorite recipe of an illustrious Physician and Chemist, who for many years used it with the most complete success in his extensive private practice.

He had long been profoundly impressed with the wonderful virtue of the honey of the plant Horehound, in union with the Cleansing and Healing properties of Tar extracted from the Life Principle of the forest tree Abies Balsamea, or Balm of Gilead. For years he was baffled in his attempts to blend these great medicinal forces into such a union that the original power of each would be preserved, the disagreeable qualities of common tar removed, and the price of the compound be within the means of all. At last after a long course of chemical experiments, he found that by adding to these five other ingredients, each one valuable in itself, he not only obtained the desired results but greatly increased the curative power of the compound. This having been thoroughly tested by practice, is now offered to the general public as a safe, pleasant and infallible remedy.

PRICE, 50 CENTS PER BOTTLE.

"A Wonderful Discovery."

DR. TEBBETTS' "PHYSIOLOGICAL HAIR REGENERATOR" is compounded in strict accordance with the well known laws of Physiology and modern vegetable Chemistry. It is not a "DYE," and will not stain a particle. It will "RESTORE GRAY HAIR" in all cases to its original color. It promotes a luxuriant growth of new HAIR in all cases on BALD HEADS, when the glands or roots of the hair are not completely disorganized. It prevents the hair from falling off and removes all dandruff, heat, humors and itching from the scalp. It keeps the hair soft, moist and perfectly healthy, and gives it a glossy and beautiful appearance. It is highly perfumed, and as a Dressing it has no superior. The "REGENERATOR" is warranted to produce the above results in all cases, if not the money to be refunded. With it every "GRAY HEAD" in New England can be restored in less than sixty days.

THE ELECTION.

The town meetings in this city, on Tuesday, were orderly, still, and almost dull. A number of the most determined Copperheads staid away from the polls, whether in disgust at their nominations, or in despair of their success, we cannot say. The meetings in all three wards were adjourned by 6 o'clock in the evening; as we hope they may always be hereafter. The city stands nearly as it did last March: the Union vote varying a single one: while the slight gain on the other side will be more than counterbalanced by the soldiers' vote.

The vote of Ward One, on Tuesday, was, Lincoln 504, McClellan 219,—Union majority 285. Last March, when many soldiers were at home (not voting in the field, as now,) the vote stood Union 510, Democratic 219.

Ward Two voted, Lincoln 522, McClellan 246. Last March it was, Union 520, Democratic 234.

Ward Three voted, Lincoln 202, McClellan 213. Last March—Union 199, Democratic 206.

The entire vote of the city in March was, Union 1229, Democratic, 659; Total 1888. On Tuesday it was, Union 1228, Democratic 678; Total 1906. Union maj. 550.

On the question, "Is it expedient that a convention be called to revise the Constitution?" the vote was: Ward 1, yes 496, no 6; Ward 2, yes 510, no 51; Ward 3, yes 199, no 196. In the city, yes 1205, no 253.

In the evening members of each of the political parties met at their club-rooms to hear and talk over the returns as they came in. The Republicans in great force assembled at Rechab Hall, Market street. The Portsmouth Cornet Band was in attendance, and discoursed finely at intervals during the meeting, which was kept up till a late hour. Speeches were made by Rev. Messrs. Patterson, Waterhouse and Medbury, Col. Sam'l Webber, J. P. Morse, Esq., and others.

The Democrats assembled at their headquarters on Daniel street. Less enthusiasm was manifested here than with the Republicans, the chief interest being to count the Democratic gains over the last State and National elections.

The devotees of Bacchus in goodly numbers worshipped at his shrine, and as a consequence the police station obtained more than its usual number of nightly occupants. But no very serious disturbances marked the day or night in any part of the city, so far as we have learned.

GOSPORT, Nov. 8, 1864.

Messrs. Editors:—Whole number of votes cast, 24; Lincoln & Johnson, 20; McClellan & Pendleton, 4; scattering none. Copper is scarce with us.

ORIGIN S. CASWELL, Town Clerk.

☞ The New City Rooms, in the Jefferson Market Building on the Square, are just completed, and we are informed will be open for public inspection on Thursday evening. A historical address, we hear, is to be given by Charles W. Brewster, Esq., and a supper will be served by the city authorities at the Rockingham House. The City business will be transacted at the new rooms after Thursday. Whatever may be thought of this use of old Jefferson Hall, there is no question but our City Fathers will have better quarters than ever before — and they needed them too. The chief interest the public feel in the matter is, whether the remodeling of the old Hall, will promote or retard the building of a new City Hall, which we need so much. If it only hastens that auspicious event, as we hope it may, we shall rejoice with exceeding great joy.

☞ Acting Ensign Henry S. Lambert, of this city, has been promoted to the position of Acting Master in the U. S. Navy.

☞ Don't forget the auction of Ice Houses, business, tools, &c., this morning, as advertised.

☞ Those interested will please remember that the Theatre opens this evening.

NEW HAMPSHIRE ITEMS.

—— The Monitor learns that the Manchester Hospital will be ready for occupancy next week. It is hoped that N. H. soldiers furloughed to come and vote, will be ordered to report there.

—— The up train from Manchester, Saturday evening, while stopping at Franklin, was run into by a freight train going in the same direction. The cars were badly smashed, the ends of several being stove in. John Emery, of Andover, was the only person hurt.

— Lieut. Wm. B. Cushing, the young naval hero who blew up the rebel ram Albemarle, and who has been the leader in many romantic and brilliant exploits, was born in Fredonia, N. Y., and is a nephew of Dr. J. H. Batchelder, of Salem, Mass. His mother is a native of Boston. He is a fine specimen of a man physically, as well as in the qualities of courage and daring.

ITEMS—NEW AND OLD.

— Mormonism is spreading in Scotland.

— The monitor Comanche will be launched at San Francisco Nov. 14.

— Two cousins were arrested, a few days since, in Baltimore, charged with stealing $10,000 from a hotel in Cincinnati.

Do you not see that never any man made his own cunning and practice his foundation, but he overbuilt himself, and in the end made his house a windfall.—Lord Bacon.

— The Cork Examiner says an army clothing factory at Limerick recently made sixty thousand suits of clothing for the Confederacy, and shipped them on blockade runners.

— In the early stage of the fire at Eastport, Captain Barr, of the revenue cutter, begged to be allowed to blow up some buildings and stay the progress of the flames; but the Chief Engineer refused to allow it.

— In one of the Newburyport Sabbath School concerts, on Sunday, a clergyman asked if any of the scholars could tell who was David's grandmother. Thereupon a little girl responded—"a woman, sir!"

— Colorado decides not to enter the Union at present. The official canvass of the vote on the State question shows about 800 majority against the proposition for forming a State Government.

OLD SIGN BOARDS.—"A Cat with a Wheel" is the corrupt emblem of St. Catherine's Wheel; the "Bull and Gate" was originally intended as a trophy of the taking of Boulogne by Henry VIII.—it was the Boulogne Gate; and the "Goat and Compasses" has taken the place of the fine old Puritan sign-board, "God encompasseth us."

— A Piano Forte manufactory has recently been established in Sanford, York county, Me., by Hiram Lord. He now makes about two per week, and proposes soon to enlarge his business. All of his work is for Chickering of Boston.

— The Russian telegraph from Omsk to Irkoutsk is completed—a distance of 3,285 miles. This renders the great telegraph chain between the most westerly part of Great Britain and the most easterly part of Asia complete.

— Some merchants of Baltimore have been charged and tried for selling goods to blockade runners. The Judge Advocate, in his address, stated that these contrabandists had made a fortune by fraudulent practices and should be severely punished—the country says amen.

☞ A course of Assemblies will be given by the Odd Fellows, at Irving Hall, the present season, commencing Thursday evening, Nov. 10. MARCELLUS ELDREDGE, for the Committee.

A soft or green Quaker would be as great a curiosity as a dissipated Hebrew; but not so great a one after all as to find the woman who did not prefer the J. THE MODEL COOK.

IS, IN FACT,

The Best Stove Out,

for economy, convenience and dispatch.

Many people think it best to use an old stove as long as possible, but it is far better to throw it away and purchase a MODEL COOK, than to keep it at the present high price of fuel.

One of our shrewdest citizens who purchased a MODEL COOK STOVE a year since, says he has saved more than its cost already.

A careful, prudent farmer purchased one, and after it had been in operation some days his son came into the store and said, "something was wrong at their house;" his father and himself used wood off the same pile, he burned three baskets full a day, and his father only one! We sold him a Stove before he left, and there has been no complaint since.

These Stoves are in use in many hotels and boarding houses, and in hundreds of private families in this city and vicinity, and give the best of satisfaction.

PRICES REDUCED.

The subscriber has reduced the prices of the Model Cook Stoves FIVE DOLLARS each, to conform to the decline in gold.

FITZ-GREEN HALLECK ON LITERARY STYLE.—An Andover correspondent of the Independent writes as follows:

Among the pleasures of a short residence in Guilford, Ct., was an acquaintance I formed with Fitz-Green Halleck, the author of "Marco Bozzaris." [illegible]

Meeting him one day in the street, he stopped me and said: "I learn that you are going to be a minister. I want you to call upon me. I wish to read you a sermon, that I deem a model for man of your profession.

I promised to call, and the next morning I went to the poet's house and was shown into the sitting-room, where the poet bade me welcome. He beckoned me to a chair, and then took down from the shelf a volume, and began to read in that sonorous, dreamy, undulatory tone of voice so peculiar to him. The volume was "Charter's Sermons." (Charter was a Scotch preacher, located at Wilton, Scotland.)

The poet read from a sermon on the text, "I would not live alway." He read until the tears gathered in his eyes and coursed down his cheeks. He finished the sermon, laid aside the book and asked, "How do you like it?"—"Very much," was my reply. Said he, "That sermon is what I call a perfect poem." I then ventured to remark, "Its great charm in my opinion, is its simplicity. Many of the sentences, I notice, are composed wholly of monosyllables."

"I think so, too," said Halleck, "and that reminds me of an incident that came under my observation while in New York. While there, a letter fell into my hands which a Scotch servant-girl had written to her lover. Its style charmed me. It was fairly inimitable. I wondered how, in her circumstances in life, she could have acquired so elegant and perfect a style. I showed the letter to some of my literary friends in New York, and they unanimously agreed that it was a model of beauty and elegance. I then determined to solve the mystery, and I went to the house where she was employed, and asked her how it was that in her humble circumstances in life, she had acquired a style so beautiful that the most cultivated minds could but admire it. 'Sir,' she said, 'I came to this country four years ago. Then I did not know how to read or write. But since then I have learned how to read and write, but I have not yet learned how to spell; so always, when I sit down to write a letter, I choose those words which are so short and simple that I am sure I know how to spell them.' There was the whole secret. The reply of this simple minded Scotch girl condenses a world of rhetoric into a nut-shell. Simplicity is beauty. Simplicity is power."

I would that every man could read this anecdote. How many words, how much bombast, would this principle, here inculcated, eliminate from ambitious sermons and addresses.

BLOOD ROOT ELIXIR

Has been thoroughly tested and proved in his medical practice, for a period of THIRTY YEARS, and is now presented to the public as an effectual cure for

CONSTIVENESS,
and the best remedy ever prepared for

Diseases of the Liver,
SCROFULA,
All Humors and Impurities of the Blood, and Diseases of the Skin.

The preparing and combining the Blood Root Elixir, is attended with results to medical science next in importance to the inhalation of ether in surgery. Roots and plants, in themselves unpalatable and disagreeable, are, by a new and scientific process of extracting (in vacuo,) rendered MORE EFFECTIVE IN THEIR OPERATION, entirely divested of the griping and distressing pain which attends the action of all other purgative medicine. They are also made to become HIGHLY PLEASANT AND AGREEABLE TO THE TASTE, and by their peculiar combination work so perfectly in HARMONY WITH NATURE that no unpleasant reaction will follow its operation. It also possesses which can only be attained by medicine in a fluid state. These are new elements in purgative medicine.

The hard and compact manner in which pills are prepared renders them indigestible—and when taken are ejected through the stomach and bowels, half-dissolved, causing only PARTIAL ACTION, thereby creating irritation and pain to the parts connected with their passage.

The pill dissolved, secondary action, will produce more medicinal and physical effect than five in a crude state.

The BLOOD ROOT ELIXIR has no partial action upon the bowels, but is equally diffused there and throughout the whole system of the blood, imparting a healthy and invigorating action to the STOMACH AND BOWELS, LIVER, LUNGS, KIDNEYS, BLADDER, SKIN, and all the secretory and excretory organs through the whole system.

A single dose will produce a cheerful and exhilarating COMPOSURE, which will require the patient to take a second, for the assurance of IMMEDIATE RELIEF. A continuance for a short period will DRIVE the obscure and hidden humors to the surface of the skin, and will cure the most SCROFULOUS AFFECTIONS—and by thus purifying and strengthening the blood, will remove the most fruitful

CAUSE OF CONSUMPTION.

It invites the various organs of the system to act their allotted part, removing the causes which induce DYSPEPSIA, LIVER COMPLAINT, HEADACHE, LOSS OF APPETITE, DYSPEPSIA, COSTIVENESS, and the various diseases which arise from a derangement of the Stomach and Bowels, and restricted circulation of the Blood.

COUGHS and COLDS, in their early stages, will immediately yield to the effect of the Elixir.

The BLOOD ROOT ELIXIR contains no mineral, no pernicious botanical element, no excitant, but stimulates the secretions by its mild diffusive action. It is an effective and painless aperient—has a decided, salutary action upon the Liver, and there has been no medicine prepared for common family use which possesses equal merit.

Travellers, both by sea and land, will find the Elixir a complete antidote for the evils which they are obliged to undergo from a change of climate, of water, or of diet.

See the pamphlet around each bottle for a history of this Elixir.

The proprietor of the Blood Root Elixir, (Dr. S. O. Richardson,) has been long and favorably known to the public by his celebrated SHERRY WINE BITTERS, the best tonic medicine ever discovered, and which has been in use over thirty years. He is a graduate of the New Hampshire Medical College, and member of the Massachusetts Medical Society, and has made the study of medicine his profession since 1829.

THE MAGEE
COOKING STOVE.

The subscriber, having received his Fall stock of Stoves, would especially call the attention of the public to the

MAGEE COOK STOVE,

as the very best Stove yet made, and would invite those about purchasing or exchanging Stoves, to examine this, believing it to be far superior to any other Stove yet invented, the castings being heavier, and the oven larger than usual. The oven plates are covered with plaster, which renders it equal to the old-fashioned brick oven for perfection in baking.

There is a new style and very superior broiler and sad-iron heater combined, by which the odor of broiling meats are prevented from escaping into the room. With the extension top there is a large copper Reservoir for hot water; also a large tin warming-closet attached, in which any article can be kept warm, while the other parts of the Stove are occupied for other purposes.

The arrangements for sifting the coal and cleaning the grate are far superior to those of any other Stove now in use, as no dust can possibly escape into the room, and the shoveling up of the ashes is entirely dispensed with. The fire is regulated in the same manner as the MAGEE PARLOR STOVE, and can be continued day and night for weeks together, thus saving the expense of re-kindling every day.

For economy, durability, ease of management, cleanliness and perfection in cooking, it cannot be surpassed by any other Stove, as hundreds of families in this city and vicinity, who are now using them, are willing to testify, and speak of them in the highest terms of praise.

We would refer to the following purchasers:

"MAGEE'S PATENT"
VENTILATING & AIR-WARMING
FURNACES.

The subscriber, being the Sole Agent in this vicinity for the manufacture and sale of this valuable Furnace, would ask those about remodelling or erecting buildings to examine this very valuable invention.

For economy, purity of air and ease of management it has no equal, producing a current of warm air, moist and agreeable;—and as none of the air which comes in contact with the fire-pot is used for respiration, the tendency to produce headache so much complained of in other Furnaces, is entirely obviated.

The objects aimed at by the constructors of heating apparatus have been to obtain the greatest amount of heat from a given amount of fuel; and to prevent the escape of heat to the smoke pipe or chimney.

To accomplish this many complicated and expensive heating arrangements have been constructed, some possessing but little improvement over former methods, while many have proved a total failure. The reason of this failure with the combustible gases being lighter than the air, pass off into the pipe or chimney without being consumed. This objection, so common in other Furnaces, is obviated in the

MAGEE FURNACE.

The flue or pipe in this Furnace being below the fire-pot, the gases, from their specific gravity, cannot descend, and are burned up by the admission of cold air through the fire-pot, which ignites them as they pass off from the coal, thus saving at least 20 per cent. of the properties of the heat in the fuel.

No heating apparatus with the smoke-pipe or flue on the top of the dome can be made to consume the gases of the coal, as they pass off with a large amount of the heat generated, making the chimney the hottest part of your dwelling.

This Furnace does away with the great number of pipes and angles for the radiation of heat, which are liable to fill up and get out of order, thus simplifying, while it increases the surface of radiation.

These Furnaces consume all the coal, make no clinkers, the sifting of coal is entirely dispensed with, and they will save from 30 to 50 per cent. of fuel over common Furnaces.

For ease of management, economy and purity of air these Furnaces have no equal. They can be regulated so as to give any amount of heat required, and the fire may be kept the entire season without once going out.

They give entire satisfaction wherever used. We have in store the different sizes, Brick and Portable, to which we invite the attention of those in want of the best Furnace in the world,—and would refer them to the following named gentlemen, who have them now in use.

Samuel Cleaves, Esq.,	Albert R. Hatch, Esq.,
Aaron H. Hill,	Charles H. Mendum,
Henry F. Wendell,	John Sise, and others.

CHEROKEE MEDICINES.
Cherokee Cure, the great Indian Medicine,

An unfailing cure for Spermatorrhœa, Seminal Weakness, Mental Anxiousness, and all diseases caused by self-pollution; such as Loss of Memory, Universal Lassitude, Pains in the Back, Dimness of Vision, Premature Old Age, Weak Nerves, Difficult Breathing, Trembling, Wakefulness, Eruptions on the Face, Pale Countenance, Insanity, Consumption, and all the direful complaints caused by departing from the path of nature.

☞ This medicine is a simple vegetable extract and one on which all can rely, as it has been used in our practice for many years, and with thousands treated it has not failed in a single instance. Its curative powers have been sufficient to gain victory over the most stubborn cases.

☞ To those who have trifled with their constitution, until they think themselves beyond the reach of medical aid, we would say, despair not! the Cherokee Cure will restore you to health and vigor, and after all quack doctors have failed!

☞ For full particulars, get a circular from any drug store in the country, or write the proprietors, who will mail free to any one desiring the same, a full treatment in pamphlet form.

CHEROKEE REMEDY
—AND—
CHEROKEE INJECTION,
Compounded from Roots, Barks & Leaves.

CHEROKEE REMEDY, the great Indian Diuretic, cures all diseases of the urinary organs, such as Incontinence of the Urine, Inflammation of the Bladder, Inflammation of the Kidneys, Stone in the Bladder, Strictures, Gravel, Gleet, Gonorrhœa, and is especially recommended in those cases of Fluor Albus (or Whites in females) where all the old nauseous medicines have failed.

It is prepared in a highly concentrated form, the dose only being from one to two tablespoonfuls three times per day.

It is diuretic and alterative in its action; purifying and cleansing the blood, causing it to flow in all of its original purity and vigor; thus removing from the system all pernicious causes which have induced disease.

CHEROKEE INJECTION is intended as an ally or assistant to the CHEROKEE REMEDY, and should be used in conjunction with that medicine in all cases of Gonorrhœa, Gleet, Fluor Albus or Whites. Its effects are healing, soothing and diuretic; removing all scalding, heat, chordee and pain, instead of the burning and almost unendurable pain that is experienced with nearly all the cheap quack injections.

☞ By the use of the CHEROKEE REMEDY and CHEROKEE INJECTION—the two medicines at the same time—all improper discharges are stopped, and the weakened organs are speedily restored to full vigor and strength.

For full particulars get our pamphlet from any drug store in the country, or write us and we will mail free, to any address, a full treatise.

Price—CHEROKEE REMEDY, $2 per bottle or three bottles for $5.

The Chronicle.

DO ANIMALS REASON?—Do animals reason? I have no doubt that they do. They have memory, certain. They can be instructed up to a certain point. What is called the "cunning of the fox" is nothing but his quick sagacity. A multitude of stories—even enough to make quite a volume—could be gathered, illustrating the sagacity of the elephant, the horse, the dog, and other animals. Even the stupid "ass knoweth his master's crib."

A fox has been known—so I have been told—to carry off a small pig. In course of his way back to the woods he had to cross a deep creek, setting up from the sea. He could jump over it himself. But could he jump over it with the pig in his mouth? That was the problem to be solved. He went off a little way and came back with a knot, a piece of broken limb, in his mouth. It was just about as heavy as his pig. "Now," says he, "if I can jump across this creek with this knot in my mouth, I also can with the pig." In a moment he gave the leap and over he went. He then laid down his knot, jumped back again, seized his pig, and stood a moment as if weighing and comparing the two. He hesitated but a moment, when presto! he was over—pig and all. Was not this reasoning and logic? Could a philosopher or a divine have drawn a more acute inference?

A dog had been accused of killing sheep. His and his master were very fond of each other. It was a long time ere the owner could be made to believe the ill report about his favorite. At last he was convinced that poor Rover was guilty. As he could not bear to kill him himself, he came into the room one morning and said, "Peter, you may take the dog after breakfast and shoot him. Mind and kill him dead." The dog was in the room and heard it. In an instant he darted out of the room and was off in a straight line. No calling or shouting could cause him to turn his head. Straight as an arrow he shot across the lots and went out of sight. Every hour they expected him back. At nightfall would certainly come. But no, he never returned. Many months after his master was riding on horseback in a wild, lonely place. Just as he came between the two banks through which the road had been cut, he saw poor Rover standing on one of the banks. His heart yearned toward the old friend, and he spoke to him very kindly. But Rover's heart was hardened. He gave one growl, snapped his teeth at his old master, and again scampered off at the top of his speed. His master never saw him again! Unforgiving Rover! Thy memory was good, and thy will was strong, and thine anger lasting!

One more example. A neighbor of mine had a very knowing cat. Of course Tab was a very great favorite with all the family. At a time when Tab had a family of kittens, beautiful kittens too, and when it seemed as if it was too much for her to take care of them, one of them was given away to a neighbor. Little kit was carried off in a basket, and warmly welcomed. In a day or two, the door being opened, in walked Mrs. Tab, who seized her kitten and made off with it—seeming delighted to find her child. In about three weeks she came back again, tugging her kitten and laying it down at the feet of the mistress of the house, seemed to say, "Madam, this kit was too young when you took it before. It needed my care. But now it is grown up, and can get along very well. You may now have it." With that, Mrs. Tab walked off, leaving her kitten, and never returned for it.—Rev. Dr. Todd.

BULBOUS FLOWERS.—Many persons who hail with pleasure the early blooms of the crocus and snow-drop, while the snow banks still lie along the fences, and who admire the gaudy hues of the tulip, the unique form and fragrant odor of the hyacinth, not to mention the tribe of lilies, narcissus, iris, crown imperial, &c., are not aware that this is the season for planting them. Florists and seedsmen often receive orders for these bulbs in the spring, when, of course, they have none for sale, because it is useless to plant at that season. Many others, who do know when to plant, yet hesitate for fear of failure, the books giving such a formidable formula for a mixture of loam, sand, peat, manure, &c., in which to grow them. Now bulbs can be grown just as easily as roses or pinks. Any ordinary garden that is not wet, will answer for them. Dig it up well, working in a liberal dressing of old manure, selecting that from the cow stable when convenient. If the soil is inclined to clay, and sand can be easily had, surround the bulb with a handful or two in planting, and if one has a quantity of peat, a portion may well be mixed with the manure when worked in. But none of these are absolutely necessary. In planting, if the bed is circular or oval, place the taller growing sorts in the center and the lower ones on the outside. A crown imperial in the center, followed by a row of tulips, 15 inches from it, and 10 inches apart, then one foot from this a row of hyacinths, 9 or 10 inches apart, finishing with an outer row, one foot from the last, made up of alternate snow drops and crocuses, six inches apart, forms a good collection for a person with limited space. Cover the large bulbs with three or four inches of soil, and the smaller ones with two inches. A little coarse manure straw, leaves or brush, thrown over the bed late in the Fall will prevent deep freezing, and cause an earlier start in Spring. If not already growing every one with even a small garden should have a bed of bulbs, and remember that October and November are the months in which they should be planted.

VERNATELLA.
Warranted to make the Soles of Boots and Shoes water and dampness proof, and wear two third longer.
VERNATELLA
is a preparation from Copper, having no grease, linseed oil, or anything of the kind, and when the soles are once saturated with it, water can no more get through them than through copper itself. Price 25 Cents Per Bottle, and for sale by all retail dealers everywhere.
But its cost to the purchaser is really NOTHING, as it makes the soles wear enough longer to more than pay for it, leaving a net gain the making of them Water and Dampness Proof, and the preservation thereby of that priceless gem, the healthy.
LADIES, READ THIS!
SAVE YOUR HEALTH.
Use Vernatella on the Soles of your Shoes. It makes them water proof and thereby protects your feet from dampness, for the ground is always more or less wet, either from rain or the morning and evening dew.

American and Foreign Patents.
R. H. EDDY.
SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,
Late Agent of U. S. Patent Office, Washington, (under the Act of 1837,)
76 State street, opposite Kilby street,
Boston.
After an extensive practice of upwards of twenty years, continues to secure Patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Reissues, Extensions, Reissues, Assignments, and all Papers or Drawings for Patents, executed on liberal terms, and with despatch. Research made into American or Foreign works, to determine the validity or utility of patents or inventions—and legal or other advice rendered in all matters relating thereto. Copies of the claims of any Patent furnished by remitting One Dollar. Assignments recorded at Washington.
The Agency is not only the largest in New England, but through it inventors have advantages for securing Patents, or ascertaining the patentability of inventions unsurpassed by, if not immeasurably superior to, any which can be offered them elsewhere. The Testimonials below given prove that not a MORE SUCCESSFUL AGENT THE PATENT OFFICE than the subscriber; and as SUCCESS IS THE BEST PROOF OF ADVANTAGES AND ABILITY, he would add that he has abundant reason to believe, and can prove, that at no other office of the kind are the charges for professional service so moderate.
The immense practice of the subscriber during twenty years past, has enabled him to accumulate a vast collection of specifications and official decisions relative to Patents.
These, besides his extensive library of legal and mechanical works, and full accounts of patents granted in the United States and Europe, render him able, beyond question, to offer superior facilities for obtaining Patents.
All necessity of a journey to Washington, to procure a patent, and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.
TESTIMONIALS.
"I regard Mr. EDDY as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse."
CHARLES MASON,
Commissioner of Patents.
"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a person more competent and reasonable, and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office."
EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents
Mr. R. H. Eddy has made for me THIRTEEN applications, on all but ONE of which patents have been granted, and that is now pending. Such unmistakeable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend all inventors to apply to him to procure their patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases, and at very reasonable charges."
JOHN TAGGART.
During eight months, the subscriber, in course of his large practice, made on twice rejected applications SIXTEEN APPEALS, EVERY ONE of which was decided in his favor, by the Commissioner of Patents.

Morning Chronicle.

Portsmouth, N. H.

THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 10TH, 1864.

THAT'S IT.—"Dr. Loring in a speech in Salem, the other day, said he felt better since he had got his lips unsealed. We don't believe he felt any better than we do, (says the Herald,) that the election, being past, has sealed up the lips of ranting, raving politicians, who from morning till night repeated the twaddle of the caucus rooms, without any thought of the first principles of government. God be thanked that the public attention can now be devoted to industry—to business, to religion, to war, to efforts to restore our country, make happy the communities in which we dwell, and improve mankind." Just so—"Eternal vigilance is the price of liberty," we know; but eternal vigilance is a great price to pay, even for the precious boon of liberty.

☞ The Jewish Messenger states that "Mr. Belmont is simply the New York correspondent of the house of Rothschild; that though a Jew by birth, he married out of the faith many years ago, is not connected with a Jewish congregation, and is universally repudiated as a Jew; that the Rothschilds have never assisted the Rebel Treasury to the extent of a dollar; that their sympathies and active cooperation have been with the Government based on liberty as its main principle, as stated by Baron Rothschild, of Frankfort, to the United States Consul-General, Mr. Murphy; that the only banker of any note who upholds the Confederate cause in Europe is Mr. Erlanger, of Paris, who used to be a 'Jew,' but was converted to 'Christianity' and married Mr. Slidell's daughter."—Rather a sorry sort of christian, after all.

☞ Five men belonging to the schooner Narraganset, lying in the bay near New York City, were on Saturday evening arrested by the harbor police on charge of having for some time past been engaged in numerous robberies along the Hudson River shore. The special charge on which the accused were seized is the alleged robbery of seventy tuns of pig iron from the Syracuse Iron Company, at Croton, twenty tuns of which were found on board the schooner. All the accused will be transferred to Croton for trial. Two of them have, it is stated, made partial confessions. Some thirty persons are said to be implicated in the various robberies alluded to.

—The wife of Governor Harvey, of Wisconsin, who has actively administered to the wants of the Wisconsin soldiers during the war, was complimented at Vicksburg a few days ago, with the gift of a handsome gold watch, purchased by the Second Wisconsin cavalry. Her little speech in reply to the presentation address contained this pretty passage:

"Soldiers! May your every heart-throb be as strong, steady and true as the tick of your treasured gift; your every wish pure as its polished gold; every loyal aspiration full and free as my gratitude is to you!"

— Charles Sumner pronounces the result of the election to be a great Abolition victory. He says that "by the triumphant election of Tuesday, the people of the United States echoed back the great letter of the President, 'to whom it may concern;' and to whom it might concern, to the angels in heaven, and to the devils below, the tidings were going forth that slavery must die."

— The Emperor of Russia has issued five decrees, containing a series of liberal measures relative to public instructions in Poland, the creation of a university at Warsaw, and the establishment of numerous superior, middle, and primary schools, and of a free school for women. The Poles are, moreover, to preserve their national language, while the penal code is to be mitigated and corporal punishment is to be abolished.

— Com. Rogers, U. S. N., has written a letter proposing that every soldier in the Army of the Potomac, the James, the Shenandoah, and every sailor in the blockading fleet on the coast shall be provided with a thanksgiving dinner.

— August Belmont, Chairman of the Democratic National Committee, on going to the polls in New York to deposit his ballot, was challenged on the ground of having made bets on the election, and he was obliged to leave without voting.

— The population of the British North America Provinces that are uniting is but little short of 3,300,000. The Catholic religion is held by considerably more than two-fifths of the number.

— The latest dates from Australia represent that the colonies are much excited because the Home Government has determined to continue sending convicts there.

— Apprehensions are felt in Canada of a revolution instigated by the Fenian brotherhood. Some of the leaders have been arrested, and arms taken at Toronto.

— In the Southeastern part of Massachusetts, there are 12,000 women employed in bonnet factories.

THE ELECTION.

President Lincoln is re-elected by a very large majority; while there will be more than two thirds Union majority in the next Congress, thus securing the requisite number for the prohibition of slavery by constitutional amendment.

[illegible] towns in Maine give 11,821 Union majority—a gain of 734 over September.

50 towns in Vermont give Lincoln 11,775 majority.

153 towns in New Hampshire give Lincoln 27,493, McClellan 25,152; Union majority thus far on home vote, 2341.

307 towns in Massachusetts give a Union majority of 70,814. The Union men have elected every Congressman, every Senator, every Councillor, every County Officer, and all but six representatives.

Connecticut, with 13 towns to hear from, gives Lincoln 2294 majority.

Rhode Island, complete, except Block Island, gives Lincoln 5011 majority. The soldiers' vote will increase it.

New York is still in doubt. Leading Union men claim the State by at least 2000 majority. Fernando Wood and James Brooks are defeated for Congress. The delegation will stand 22 Union to 9 Democrats; present delegation 15 Union to 16 Democrats.

Kentucky has given McClellan from 15,000 to 20,000 majority.

Tennessee voted nearly unanimously for Lincoln.

Delaware is still in doubt.

New Jersey votes for McClellan. Orange, the residence of McClellan, gives a majority against him.

The N. Y. Herald says Lincoln will have 216 electoral votes—leaving Kentucky and New Jersey alone for McClellan.

The Tribune claims New England, New York, Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland, Ohio, Indiana, Michigan, Illinois, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Iowa and Kansas for Lincoln. Total, 190 electoral votes—independent of the Pacific States, which, it says, have probably chosen 11 Lincoln electors. The World concedes Lincoln's election, claiming only New York, New Jersey, Missouri and Kentucky for McClellan, with Pennsylvania, Delaware, Oregon, California and Nevada in doubt, but most likely for Lincoln. The Times claims 133 electoral votes for Lincoln, with a probability of all the rest, except Kentucky, Missouri and New Jersey.

THE PRESIDENT SERENADED. — By midnight of Tuesday the Washington democrats abandoned hope and went home, while the Union men became more and more jubilant as return after return was read at the Union League rooms. It was finally decided to serenade the President at once, and about 2 o'clock, A. M., a band struck up "Hail to the Chief," in front of the War office, where Mr. Lincoln had been receiving returns over the military telegraph. He at first declined saying anything, but the appeals of the delighted crowd could not be resisted.

He said the results as shadowed by the returns received, conveyed to him the gratifying intelligence that a majority of his fellow citizens had at least given him credit for having honestly endeavored to discharge his official duties, but the patriotism of those citizens who had voted differently should not be impeached. They had doubtless acted in accordance with their convictions of right, and as we should expect their acquiescence in the result, we should not question their motives.

LONGFELLOW'S WORKINGMEN.

There is a grandeur in the following apostrophe to the American Union, unequalled by any other lines on the same theme in the whole range of our literature. What a magnificent rebuke they contain to the traitorous heart and hand that would see our ship of state stranded on the shores of dissunion and decay:

THE SHIP OF STATE.

BY HENRY W. LONGFELLOW.

Thou, too, sail on, O Ship of State!
Sail on, O Union strong and great!
Humanity, with all its fears,
With all the hopes of future years,
Is hanging breathless on thy fate!
We know what Master laid thy keel,
What workmen wrought thy ribs of steel,
Who made each mast, and sail, and rope,
What anvils rang, what hammers beat,
In what a forge and what a heat
Were shaped the anchors of the hope!
Fear not each sudden sound and shock,
'Tis of the wave and not the rock;
'Tis but the flapping of the sail,
And not a rent made by the gale!
In spite of rock and tempest's roar,
In spite of false lights on the shore,
Sail on, nor fear to breast the sea!
Our hearts, our hopes are all with thee;
Our hearts, our hopes, our prayers, our tears,
Our faith triumphant o'er our fears,
Are all with thee—are all with thee!

GOOD FOR CRŒSUS.—There never was a more graceful rejoinder than that which the putative Father of History tells of Cræsus, carried off from his hoards, and dragged about among the lords in waiting of Cambyses. "Cræsus," asked the crazy tyrant, "which is the greater man—I or my father?" The captive must have known that if his adroitness failed him, he would probably be offered an immediate mark for the scimitars of the escort; but it did not. "Cyrus," he replied, "was greater than you. If in other respects you are your father's equal you will never have so great a son."

THE REBELLION.

The Goldsboro' (N. C.) Journal says the Albemarle went down in a few minutes, but the water being shallow, her port holes are not submerged, and though her gun deck is under, her guns still command the channel, up and down. The injury can be repaired in two or three weeks, including the raising of the vessel. But Plymouth having been since captured, all this will be done not by the rebels.

The rebels attacked Gen. Grant's extreme left Sunday forenoon, but were quickly sent back within their own lines.

Early has superseded Ewell, and it is said intends to assume the offensive immediately.

Atlanta, Ga., has been burned, and Gen. Sherman is en route for Charleston, S. C. The Indianapolis Journal says Sherman returned to Atlanta early last week with five corps of his army, leaving two in Tennessee under Gen. Thomas to watch Hood. Sherman destroyed the railroad from Chattanooga to Atlanta, sending the iron to the former place.

THE YANKEES IN JAPAN.—The following is an extract from a letter written by an officer on board one of her Majesty's ships on the Japan station:

"August 5th.—The American Minister has been in Yeddo for some time, and has the marines from his ship landed to protect him. Some of these marines met with an adventure which, as far as they were concerned, was very amusing. One of the swell daimios was being carried along in his norimom (chair-palanquin) accompanied by a host of retainers, when at a place near a cross road they saw a party of the Americans coming in, who, if they had kept straight on, would have come into the grandest part of the daimio procession, and have no doubt caused a shindy. The Yankees thereupon wheeled about to avoid a collision. In doing this there was a clanking of arms—a noise not agreeable to the Japanese. As frightened as babies, they dropped the norimom and its inmate, took to their heels and ran as fast as their legs would carry them, in spite of the daimio's entreaties to stop. But the poor old gentleman could not prevail upon them to check their flight, although he, less foolish than the rest, knew that no harm was intended, and that the clanking of arms was intended to be complimentary. No one would return until the Americans had got clear off. This comedy had a tragical ending. Fifteen retainers were permitted to perform the Harikari,—Anglice, were compelled to disembowel themselves."

The Richmond Whig wants to know why some member of the indomitable Chicago Democracy does n't assassinate President Lincoln. The poor Copperheads! to what a steep test their beautiful Rebel friends would put them. They offer, the devoted Copperheads! to do almost anything—to falsify and breed riots, and burn, and dig up dead men to vote, and smash ballot-boxes, and make mean speeches, and lick the feet of the traitors, and call the President hard names, and vouch for the political chastity of "the wayward sisters" as John Van Buren calls them; but when they have done considerably more than becomes men, the "wayward sisters," transmogrified into so many Lady Macbeths, insist upon their committing murder! They must give proof of their devotion by dabbling in a cold-blooded, deliberate homicide!—they must play George Barnwell and shoot "Uncle Abe!" The proposition will be declined. The spirit may be willing, but the flesh is weak. — Tribune.

RATHER CHEEKY.—A man entered the War Claim Agency of W. S. Sawyer, Esq., last week, and said he had been requested by one of his neighbors, a soldier in the 13th Maine Regiment, to make application for his back pay and bounty. On inquiry it was found that the applicant had enlisted at the time of the organization of that regiment, but at the time of its departure was too feeble to go with his Company, and was given a pass by his Captain and approved by the Colonel giving him permission to go to his home in ——, and remain until discharged. After remaining at home the whole three years of his term of service, working on his own account, not knowing, much less caring for the fate of his comrades, who were nobly performing their duty in the field, he has the unmitigated cheek and impudence to come forward and claim from the Government, $694, the sum allowed a soldier, for the full term. This man has not received his discharge, and is therefore a soldier (?) of the U. S., but one whose services will not be missed. It is needless to say that no such claim will be prosecuted by the above named gentleman. Portland Courier.

LOTTERIES.—There lies before us a ticket for what is called "The Grand Annual Bazaar, organized by the commercial young men of Dublin," the progressive number being over 300,000. It is a scheme to raise the wind for the "St. Vincent Female Orphanage," by means of a lottery. Among more than 500 prizes offered are a "Roman cameo neck pendant of our Saviour's head," a "magnificent oil painting, value 200 guineas!" and "a pair of beautiful ponies, a handsome new phaeton with silver-mounted harness to suit, value ninety guineas." These tickets are hawked at public houses for sixpence each!—Exchange.

HOW A CLERGYMAN CURED HIS APPETITE FOR TOBACCO. — I had a deep well of very cold water, and whenever the evil appetite craved indulgence I resorted immediately to fresh drawn water. Of this I drank what I desired, and then continued to hold water in my mouth, throwing out and taking in successive mouthfuls, until the craving ceased. By a faithful adherance to this practice for about a month I was cured! and from that time to this have been entirely free from any appetite for tobacco. — Med. and Surg. Reporter.

HALE'S

Honey of Horehound Tar,

For the cure of Coughs, Colds, Influenza, Hoarseness, Difficult Breathing, and all Affections of the Throat, Bronchial Tubes and Lungs, leading to Consumption.

This sovereign remedy is compounded from the favorite recipe of an illustrious Physician and Chemist, who for many years used it with the most complete success in his extensive private practice.

He had long been profoundly impressed with the wonderful virtue of the honey of the plant Horehound, in union with the Cleansing and Healing properties of Tar extracted from the Life Principle of the forest tree Abies Balsamea, or Balm of Gilead. For years he was baffled in his attempts to blend these great medicinal forces into such a union that the original power of each would be preserved, the disagreeable qualities of common tar removed, and the price of the compound be within the means of all. At last after a long course of chemical experiments, he found that by adding to these few other ingredients, each one valuable in itself, he not only obtained the desired results but greatly increased the curative power of the compound. This having been thoroughly tested by practice, is now offered to the general public as a safe, pleasant and infallible remedy.

PRICE, 50 CENTS PER BOTTLE.

"A Wonderful Discovery."

DR. TEBBETTS' "PHYSIOLOGICAL HAIR REGENERATOR" is compounded in strict accordance with the well known laws of Physiology and modern vegetable Chemistry. It is not a "DYE," and will not stain a particle. It will "RESTORE GRAY HAIR" in all cases to its original color. It promotes a luxuriant growth of new HAIR in all cases on BALD HEADS, when the glands or roots of the hair are not completely disorganized. It prevents the hair from falling off and removes all dandruff, heat, humors and itching from the scalp. It keeps the hair soft, moist and perfectly healthy, and gives it a glossy and beautiful appearance. It is highly perfumed, and as a Dressing it has no superior. The "REGENERATOR" is warranted to produce the above results in all cases, if not the money to be refunded. With it every "GRAY HEAD" in New England can be restored in less than sixty days.

Local.

A NARROW ESCAPE.—The bark Celeste Clark, 33 days from Liverpool, Eng., was spoken on the 8th inst., in a thick fog, off Little Boar's Head, Hampton, by the keeper of the Isles of Shoals Light, who was in a boat bound to Hampton. The captain of the bark said he supposed he was off Boston Harbor, and was looking out for a pilot. He immediately changed his course and stood away for Boston. The keeper says if he had not fallen in with the bark, the vessel would have struck on the rocks off Boar's Head in half an hour.

☞ Some workmen at the Navy Yard have recently constructed a Miniature Gun Boat, named the Kearsarge, after the model of which famous vessel it is built. It is manned by 180 minute figures, representing Officers, Marines and Sailors. It has been completed and will be forwarded to Boston for the Sailors' Fair this (Thursday) morning. It was exhibited at the City Rooms last evening for the benefit of the Fair. It is an ingenious and beautiful piece of work.

☞ We learn that our home Books are to have a place on the Portsmouth Table at the National Sailors' Fair. Among the collection are Laighton's Poems, Brewster's Rambles, Aldrich's Works, Head's Jewels and Home Pastimes, Drown's Poems, Shillaber's and Fields' Works, and if possible the Poets of Portsmouth.

☞ We notice in the window of Mr. Harding's fruit store, on Congress st., somewhat of a curiosity, in the shape of a potato, or rather a cluster of eleven potatoes, each united to the others. The weight of this queer sample of agricultural produce is seventeen ounces. It was raised on a farm on Rattlesnake Hill, Manchester, this State.

DIVIDENDS.—First National Bank of this city pays a dividend of 4 per cent., payable Nov. 1st. National Mechanics & Traders Bank, 6 per cent, (4 months' business), payable Nov. 15.

☞ The issue of this Chronicle Wednesday morning contained the most full and thorough reports to be procured, of the Election returns—probably as complete as any other paper in the land, and later than most others. And yet, with all our extra trouble and expense, some few of the public, hungry for news, thought a ten cent bit too much to give for it. But when our hands work all night to make up such a valuable paper, we don't believe transient copies can be had for any less than that.

NEW HAMPSHIRE ITEMS.

—— The whole number of votes in 137 towns in New Hampshire, is 53,396. For Lincoln, 28,183; McClellan, 25,213, majority for Lincoln, thus far, 2970.

—— Capt. Josiah Cram, of Raymond, in a large crop of potatoes, had one bushel composed of 29 potatoes only, weighing 60 lbs. Many bushels could be selected from the crop, of 40 potatoes to the bushel.

—— The venerable Mr. Samuel Barker, of Hampton, aged 82 years, and one of the most estimable and respected townsmen, voted for Lincoln & Johnson on Tuesday—it being, singularly enough, the first ballot he ever threw for a Presidential candidate. "Old men for counsel, young men for war."

—— The 1st N. H. Heavy Artillery voted — Lincoln 412, McClellan 205.

THE HERO OF THE ALBEMARLE.—A correspondent in North Carolina writes as follows:

"It was on the night of the 27th ult. that Lieut. Cushing, acting under orders of Rear-Admiral Porter, sallied forth with twelve other men in a little boat, no longer than an ordinary ship's launch, and with no other armament than one 12-pound howitzer, to destroy the Albemarle. On going up the canal he found the lock broken, but discovered a creek, leading he hardly knew where, but which was the only route open to him. Fortunately, this creek after some difficult windings, led back into the canal, by which he managed to find his way to the Roanoke river. Here he discovered that the Southfield which was sunk by the Albemarle last spring, had been converted into a defence, and a rebel picket stationed on her. He, of course, expected to be hailed by them, and he made every preparation for an attack, but owing to the darkness of the night, he passed them unperceived. He then went unmolested up the river until he arrived at the City of Plymouth about 2.30 A. M.

Now he came securely upon the object of his search, securely fastened to the wharf, but surrounded by a number of logs, about thirty feet from her, and denying all approach for the purpose of blowing her up. The rebels not knowing what to make of their strange visitor called out frequently; "What boat is that?" but the only response was a rattling discharge of grape from the little howitzer, as the dauntless boat's crew went feeling round the logs, to see if there were any means of ingress to the ram, amid a shower of bullets from the now aroused enemy.

Finding no possible ingress, and determined not to be baulked in his object, Lieut. Cushing resolved to put his boat at and over the logs to get into the enclosure. In this almost insanely daring effort he very nearly succeeded, but not quite, for the stern of the boat caught and was held fast by the logs in her miraculous leap. Conceive the coolness and determination of men, in such a position, deliberately going to work to plant a torpedo under the Albemarle. They did it! As it struck the bottom and by some mechanical contrivance informed Lieut. Cushing exactly when to pull the string, a ball struck the wrist of his right hand which held the string, fortunately only grazing the skin, for had his hand been disabled the Albemarle would be now existence. The string was pulled—the dead sub-aquerous report took place, knocking a hole clean through the bottom of the enemy, which at the same instant of time, and as she went down, sent a terrific discharge from a large gun and howitzer into the launch, knocking it to pieces and sending its inmates wounded and floundering in the water.

It was now a question of sauve qui peut. All that Lieut. Cushing remembers is taking off his coat and boots, and, being an expert swimmer, striking as best he could for the opposite shore, in the darkness of the night, and under cover of the intense prevailing excitement.

The most astounding part of this narrative is that the hero of it is a youth of only 22 years of age, with a record already summed up of which many gray heads would be proud. When introduced to him, I could scarcely reconcile the fact that the unassuming young man before me, with his frank, open countenance and long hair thrown wildly back behind his ears, looking like some student just escaped from college for a little frolic, was the man whose name is already and so justly prominent before the public. Apart from the glory which such episodes as these throw around the character of our navy, this destruction of the rebel ram Albemarle is really an important affair. It has for months past kept employed in watching and at bay at least five of our double-enders and some five or six other vessels, which will now be released for any other kind of duty."

IS, IN FACT,

The Best Stove Out,

for economy, convenience and dispatch.

Many people think it best to use an old stove as long as possible, but it is far better to throw it away and purchase a MODEL COOK, than to keep it at the present high price of fuel.

One of our shrewdest citizens who purchased a MODEL COOK STOVE a year since, says he has saved more than its cost already.

A careful, prudent farmer purchased one, and after it had been in operation some days his son came into the store and said, "something was wrong at their house;" his father and himself used wood off the same pile, he burned three baskets full a day, and his father only one! We sold him a Stove before he left, and there has been no complaint since.

These Stoves are in use in many hotels and boarding houses, and in hundreds of private families in this city and vicinity, and give the best of satisfaction.

PRICES REDUCED.

The subscriber has reduced the prices of the Model Cook Stoves FIVE DOLLARS each, to conform to the decline in gold.

STRONG-MINDED. — A square-headed woman, with a fixed, rather hard, but not unkindly face, wearing spectacles, short petticoats, scant crinoline, if any, carrying an umbrella and a roll of papers — is she not a British Museumite, and one familiar with the printer's devil — a practical, strong-minded, clear-brained authoress, ready, for any work, and with energy enough for any vocation, and with half a hundred missions, of which, however, womanly subserviency or submission does not form one? As she sits there, with her strongly-marked features, and her watchful eyes that see everything, yet are not of the quick and roving kind, rather wide and steady, I can read her history too, like the rest, perhaps more clearly than she can read mine, though I meet her big gray eyes fixed on me, and know that I am being photographed for future use.

One thing I see, which has no business there, and that is, a wedding-ring on her left hand. Her husband, poor man, has a hardish time of it, be sure; for those deep dints in the forehead between the eyes, and the furrow from the nostril to the mouth, and the look of pain and experience, and the unrest of a battle always going on and never-ended, are not eloquent of rose leaves and cider down; and I fear that my literary friend's matrimonial possessor may at times find a strongly-minded woman, making her one share of the family income, rather more of a helpmate than a sweetheart. And yet she is not bad. When women will leave off exaggerating good qualities, they will have achieved a more thorough freedom than even the most emancipated dream of, and that is, freedom from the tyranny of their own weaknesses. — All the Year Round.

A CURIOUS DWELLING HOUSE. — The Newburyport Herald says:

Major Ben. Perley Poore has purchased a sufficient quantity of lumber from the Tracy house to finish an entire room; and also the front stairs, over which walked the noble Washington, the illustrious Lafayette, that brave Girondist, Brissot, the subtle Talleyrand, and the learned John Quincy Adams. Already he has on his Indian Hill estate material from the old Province House in Boston, for another room, and he designs at no distant day to build a house on the hill, overlooking Newburyport and all the towns adjacent about, and having a charming view of the sea, the inside finish of which shall all be taken from such sources, with not a board that shall not be older than the Government of the United States.

— An exchange says: To get rid of bed-bugs, wash the bedstead with salt and water, filling the cracks where they frequent with salt, and you may lock in vain for them. Salt seems inimical to bed-bugs, and they will not trail through it.

DR. S. O. RICHARDSON'S

BLOOD ROOT ELIXIR

Has been thoroughly tested and proved in his medical practice, for a period of THIRTY YEARS, and now presented to the public as an effectual cure for

COSTIVENESS,

and the best remedy ever prepared for

Diseases of the Liver,

SCROFULA,

All Humors and Impurities of the Blood, and Diseases of the Skin.

The preparing and combining the Blood Root Elixir, is attended with results to medical science next in importance to the inhalation of ether in surgery. Blood Root, of itself, is a powerful tonic, and disagreeable, are, by a new and scientific process of extracting (in vacuo) rendered MORE EFFECTIVE IN THEIR OPERATION, entirely divested of the griping and distressing pain which attends the action of all other purgative medicine. They are also made to become HIGHLY PLEASANT AND AGREEABLE TO THE TASTE, and by their peculiar combination work so perfectly in harmony with the LIVER, that no unpleasant reaction will follow its operation. It also possesses which can only be attained by medicine in a fluid state. These are new elements in purgative medicines.

The hard and compact manner in which pills are prepared renders them indigestible, and when taken are forced through the stomach and bowels, half-dissolved, causing only PARTIAL ACTION, thereby creating irritation and pain to the parts connected with their passage.

One pill dissolved, secundum artem, will produce more mechanical and physical effect than five in a crude state.

The BLOOD ROOT ELIXIR has no partial action upon the bowels, but is equally diffused throughout the entire system, by the circulation of the blood, imparting a healthy and invigorating action to the STOMACH AND BOWELS, LIVER, LUNGS, KIDNEYS, and greatly stimulate the dormant and morbid secretions through the whole system.

A single dose will produce a cheerful and exhilarating COMMOTION, which will inspire the patient with confidence in the certainty of IMMEDIATE RELIEF. A continuance for a short period will DRIVE the obscure and hidden humors to the surface of the skin, and eradicate all their SCROFULOUS AFFECTIONS—and by thus purifying and strengthening the blood, will remove the most fatal

CAUSE OF CONSUMPTION.

It incites the various organs of the system to act their allotted part, removing the causes which induce RHEUMATISM, GOUT AND NEURALGIA, HEADACHE, LOSS OF APPETITE, DYSPEPSIA, COSTIVENESS, and the various diseases which arise from a derangement of the Stomach and Bowels, and restricted circulation of the Blood.

COUGHS and COLDS, in their early stages, will immediately yield to the influence of this Elixir.

The BLOOD ROOT ELIXIR contains no mineral, no pernicious botanical element, no excitant, but stimulates the secretions by its mild diffusive action. It is as effective and painless aperient—has a decided, salutary action upon the Liver, and there has been no medicine prepared for common family use which possesses equal merit.

Travellers, both by sea and land, will find the Elixir a complete antidote for the evils which they are obliged to endure from a change of climate, of water, or of diet.

See the pamphlet around each bottle for a history of the Elixir.

The proprietor of the Blood Root Elixir, (Dr. S. O. Richardson,) has been long and favorably known to the public by his celebrated SHERRY WINE BITTERS, the best tonic of the kind ever discovered, and which has been in use over thirty years. He is a graduate of the New Hampshire Medical College, and many years a member of the Massachusetts Medical Society, and has made the study of medicine his profession since 1820.

And so fully convinced is the Doctor of the wonderful curative effects of his Blood Root Elixir, that he hereby offers to each and every person who will use one-half of a bottle of his Elixir and not be conscious of a good effect therefrom, to refund to said person the amount which he paid for the same, by returning the village but tle to his office.

Price $1.50 per Bottle.

Sold in Portsmouth by J. H. THACHER, opposite the Post Office, and No. 12 Market Square; and by Dealers in Medicine generally, and at Dr. Richardson's Office, No. 51 Hanover street, Boston. aug5—3moeod&W

THE MAGEE

COOKING STOVE.

The subscriber, having received his Fall stock of Stoves, would especially call the attention of the public to the

MAGEE COOK STOVE,

as the very best Stove yet made, and would invite those about purchasing or exchanging Stoves, to examine this, believing it to be far superior to any other Stove yet invented, the castings being heavier, and the oven larger than usual. The oven plates are covered with plaster, which renders it equal to the old-fashioned brick oven for perfection in baking.

There is a new style and very superior broiler and sad-iron heater combined, by which the odor of broiling meats are prevented from escaping into the room. With the extension top there is a large copper Reservoir for hot water; also a large tin warming-closet attached, in which any article can be kept warm, while the other parts of the Stove are occupied for other purposes.

The arrangements for sifting the coal and cleaning the grate are far superior to those of any other Stove now in use, as no dust can possibly escape into the room, and the shovelling up of the ashes is entirely dispensed with. The fire is regulated in the same manner as in the MAGEE PARLOR STOVE, and can be continued day and night for weeks together, thus saving the expense of re-kindling every day.

For economy, durability, ease of management, cleanliness and perfection in cooking, it cannot be surpassed by any other Stove, as hundreds of families in this city and vicinity, who are now using them, are willing to testify, and speak of them in the highest terms of praise.

We would refer to the following purchasers:

"MAGEE'S PATENT"

VENTILATING & AIR-WARMING

FURNACES.

The subscriber, being the Sole Agent in this vicinity for the manufacture and sale of this valuable Furnace, would ask those about remodelling or erecting buildings to examine this truly valuable invention.

For economy, purity of air and ease of management it has no equal, producing a current of warm air, moist and agreeable;—and as none of the air which comes in contact with the fire-pot is used for respiration, the tendency to produce headache so much complained of in other Furnaces, is entirely obviated.

The objects aimed at by the constructors of heating apparatus have been to obtain the greatest amount of heat from a given amount of fuel, and to prevent the escape of heat to the smoke pipe or chimney.

To accomplish this many complicated and expensive heating arrangements have been constructed, some possessing but little improvement over former methods; while many have proved a total failure. The reason for this is obvious. The combustible gases being lighter than the air, pass off into the pipe or chimney without being consumed. This objection, so common in other Furnaces, is obviated in the

MAGEE FURNACE.

The flue or pipe in this Furnace being below the fire-pot, the gases, from their specific gravity, cannot descend, and are burned up by the admission of cold air through the fire-pot, which ignites them as they pass off from the coal, thus saving at least 25 per cent. of the properties of the heat in the fuel.

No heating apparatus with the smoke-pipe or flue on the top of the cone can be made to consume the gases of the coal, as they pass off with a large amount of the best generated, making the chimney the hottest part of your dwelling.

This Furnace does away with the great number of pipes and angles for the radiation of heat, which are so liable to fill up and get out of order, thus simplifying, while it increases the surface of radiation.

These Furnaces consume all the coal, make no clinkers, the sifting of coal is entirely dispensed with, and they will save from 30 to 50 per cent. of fuel over common Furnaces.

For ease of management, economy and purity of air these Furnaces have no equal. They can be regulated so as to give any amount of heat required, and the fire may be kept the entire season without once going out.

They give entire satisfaction wherever used. We have in store the different sizes, Brick and Portable, to which we invite the attention of those in want of the best Furnace in the world,—and would refer them to the following named gentlemen, who have them now in use:

Samuel Cleaves, Esq.,	Albert R. Hatch, Esq.,
Aaron H. Hill,	Charles H. Mendum,
Henry F. Wendell,	John Sise, and others.

CHEROKEE REMEDY, the great Indian Diuretic, cures all diseases of the urinary organs, such as Incontinence of the Urine, Inflammation of the Bladder, Inflammation of the Kidneys Stone in the Bladder, Stricture, Gravel, Gleet, Gonorrhœa, and is especially recommended in those cases of Fluor Albus (or Whites in females) where all the old nauseous medicines have failed.

It is prepared in a highly concentrated form, the dose only being from one to two tablespoonfuls three times per day.

It is diuretic and alterative in its action; purifying and cleansing the blood, causing it to flow in all of its original purity and vigor; thus removing from the system all pernicious causes which have induced disease.

CHEROKEE INJECTION is intended as an ally or assistant to the CHEROKEE REMEDY, and should be used in conjunction with that medicine in all cases of Gonorrhœa, Gleet, Fluor Albus or Whites. BRITISH VIGILANCE.—"Shields, Oct. 5. Mr. Cleghorn, tide surveyor, found to-day, when rummaging the Italian brig Laia No. 1, Oliveira, arrived here from Bremen, 22 lbs. of contraband tobacco; and as none of the men will confess any knowledge on the subject, it is expected the whole of the crew will have to be sent to prison, and the ship put under arrest."

We quote the above paragraph from the London Shipping Gazette, for the purpose of showing the vigilance of the British Government where it conceives its interest concerned. But such paragraphs are common in British papers, for in every seaport the utmost vigilance is observed in the enforcement of the revenue laws. We have no doubt, before this century closes, the British Government will have cause to regret that it was not equally vigilant in preventing its privateers from making war upon our commerce.

Neither our people nor our Government have been deceived by the excuses for the building and equipment of the 290, alias Alabama, and other pirates which have been fitted out in England and manned by British subjects, who falsely in the name of our rebels have made war upon us. We know that the departure of any of these vessels from British ports would have been impossible, if the Government had issued orders for their detention. But to gratify the greed of their shipowners, not only were these pirates permitted to depart but were afterwards recognized confederate vessels of war, even while they remained recorded in British custom houses as British property.

All that the British Government could do short of going to war with us has been done in defiance of our remonstrances. British shipowners, nearly the whole press, and many of the most eminent statesmen have lauded the heroic achievements of the rebels; but they ignore the infamous share they have had in supplying them with munitions of war, and making war upon our commerce.

We have had to contend against the interference of nearly the whole shipping interest of England in all ports of the world. Even the British pilots on the Hooghly, since our troubles, seemed to have joined hands with their pirate countrymen in destroying our vessels. Nearly every American ship bound to or from Calcutta, has been more or less damaged by being laid aground while in charge of British pilots. Several fine ships have also been burned in Calcutta, under circumstances to excite well-grounded suspicion of foul play.

Nor is this all, for let it be remembered that of all the nations of the earth Great Britain alone has persistently tried to break our blockade of the rebel ports. Her moneyed and influential classes have been eager for our destruction that they might make money out of it. If they had observed a strict neutrality the war and the bloodshed, about which they are continually whining, would have ceased years ago. So notorious has been and still is the enmity of the British aristocracy — with only a few honorable exceptions — against us, that our whole people are beginning to regard them with more detestation than even the rebels. — Com. Bulletin.

BEES IN BATTLE.—Let me inform the Admiralty of a new arm which in extremity may be used in naval warfare. A small privateer, with forty or fifty men, having on board some hives full of bees, was pursued by a Turkish galley manned by five hundred seamen and soldiers. As soon as the latter came alongside, the crew of the privateer mounted the rigging with their hives, and hurled them down on the deck of the galley. The Turks, astonished at this novel mode of warfare, and unable to defend themselves from the stings of the enraged bees, became so terrified that they thought of nothing but how to escape their fury, while the crew of the small vessel, defended by masks and gloves, flew upon their enemies, sword in hand, and captured the vessel almost without resistance. During the confusion occasioned by a time of war, mob of peasants in Hohnstein, in Thuringia, attempted to pillage the house of the parish minister, who, having in vain employed all his eloquence to dissuade them from their design, ordered his domestics to fetch his bee-hives and throw them in the midst of the furious mob. The effect was what might have been expected: they where immediately put to flight, and happy to escape unstung.—A Bee-master in the Times.

About "Fashions" a modish writer thus discourses: The two reigning styles of deep postillions and the broad belt still strive for mastery with successful rivalry. No change has taken place in the style and size of sleeves, which just admit of a small under sleeve, or are closed at the wrist. Trimming with cords and tassels is new and graceful. Velvet in applique, on the corsage and sleeves, surrounded by gimp put on in fantastic shapes, is very pretty and effective, and very easily managed by those debarred from the privileges of New York shopping and New York modistes. Round buttons are yielding to the new passion for square ones; thus square, large buttons are the rage for the present. Plaids are very fashionable, and of course will be adopted by all, regardless of size or figure.

— A new stock company has been organized, called the New England Screw Steamship Co., to prosecute the steam freighting and passenger business between New York and Portland, with a capital stock of $250,000.—Three quarters of the stock is owned in Portland, and the balance in New York.

VERNATELLA.
Warranted to make the Soles of Boots and Shoes water and dampness proof, and wear one-third longer.
VERNATELLA
Is a preparation from Copper, having no grease, linseed oil, or anything of the kind, and when the soles are once saturated with it, water can no more get through them than through copper itself. Price 25 Cents Per Bottle,
At retail everywhere.
But its cost to the purchaser is really NOTHING, as it makes the soles wear enough longer to more than pay for it, leaving a net gain the making of them Water and Dampness Proof, and the preservation thereby of that priceless gem, the health.
☞ LADIES, READ THIS! ☜
SAVE YOUR HEALTH.
Use Vernatella on the Soles of your Shoes. It makes them water and dampness proof, keeps your feet from dampness, for the ground is always more or less moist, either from rain or the morning and evening dew.

American and Foreign Patents.
R. H. EDDY,
SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,
Late Agent of U. S. Patent Office, Washington, (under the Act of 1837.)
76 State street, opposite Kilby street,
Boston.
After an extensive practice of upwards of twenty years, continues to secure Patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Transfers, Assignments, and all Papers or Drawings for Patents, executed on liberal terms, and with despatch. Researches made into American or Foreign works, to determine the validity or utility of patents or inventions—and legal or other advice rendered on all matters relating thereto. Copies of the claims of any Patent furnished by remitting One Dollar. Assignments recorded at Washington.
The Agency is not only the largest in New England, but through it inventors have advantages for securing Patents, or ascertaining the patentability of inventions unsurpassed by, if not immeasurably superior to, any which can be offered them elsewhere. The Testimonials below given prove that no other agency has SUCCESSFUL AT THE PATENT OFFICE than the subscriber; and as SUCCESS IS THE BEST PROOF OF ADVANTAGE, and BUSINESS TALLIES, he would that he has abundant reason to believe, and can prove, that at no other office of the kind are the charges for professional service so moderate.
The immense practice of the subscriber during twenty years past, has enabled him to accumulate a valuable collection of specifications and official decisions relative to patents.
These, besides his extensive library of legal and mechanical works, and full accounts of patents granted in the United States and Europe, render him able, beyond question, to offer superior facilities for obtaining Patents.
All necessity of a journey to Washington, to procure a patent, and the usual great delay there are here saved inventors.
TESTIMONIALS.
"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse."
CHARLES MASON,
Commissioner of Patents.
"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a person more competent and trustworthy, and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office."
EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents.
Mr. R. H. Eddy has made for me THIRTEEN applications, on all but one of which patents have been granted, and that is now pending. Such unmistakeable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend all inventors to apply to him, to procure their patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases, and at very reasonable charges."
JOHN TAGGART.
During eight months, the subscriber, in course of his large practice, made on twice rejected applications SIXTEEN APPEALS, EVERY ONE of which was decided in his favor, by the Commissioner of Patents.

Portsmouth, N. H.

FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 11TH, 1864

☞ It is well to hold fast to that which is good: it is also wise to prove all things. So it is well not to change anything without cause; but that consistency, which persists in doing wrong because we are in a habit, is as foolish as it is wicked. The stupid and ignorant reverence for a party name, and the blind following of a party leader, were well shown up in the following item from a loyal paper on election day:

The issue is presented to the people whether they will have a government of the people, for the people, and by the people, or a disintegrated nation, with an oligarchy, based on ownership in man, to dictate the future policy of the continent. This is the main issue, disguise it as men may. That thousands of democrats will vote, as they suppose, for the government established by their fathers, we do not doubt; but at the same time, the platform upon which their candidates stand, and which they will endorse by voting for them, strikes at the very foundation of that government, and forever obliterates all the old landmarks of genuine democracy.

The people decided to keep their government alive; to be a nation, not a bundle of confederate states, tied with a rope of sand; to be the United States, and not a disjointed jumble of crazy sovereignties.

PROPHECY A FAILURE.—A bitter proslavery paper in Maine, said, last August:

Early did we proclaim our belief that Lincoln will not get a solitary electoral vote for the next Presidency in all the Union.

The Portland Argus said only a few days before election:

The abolitionists [Union men] will display the national colors next week "just once." They will be red with excitement when the voting commences, pale with dismay when the returns begin to come in, and they will certainly be very blue the next morning.

The Copper organs in New Hampshire called for a free ballot or a free fight! and insisted that they would have one or the other.

Now, the Concord Patriot of Nov. 9 says,

We have yet but few details of the election.—barely enough to indicate beyond doubt the triumph of Lincoln by an overwhelming majority of the electoral vote.

Then, speaking of New Hampshire democrats, the Patriot says:

If none but fair and legal means had been employed against them, they would have triumphantly carried the State.

According to this they did not get their free ballot: but where's the free fight?

The Patriot gives returns from 152 towns in New Hampshire, and a majority for Lincoln, 2,476, in nearly four fifths of the whole vote of the State.—It then remarks:

The towns to come in will reduce this majority considerably; we think the majority for Lincoln will not be over 1,750, showing a Democratic net gain of about 4000 over the vote of last March.

The reader will see that all this refers to the home vote, while the soldiers' ballots are yet to be counted, and will vary the result.

☞ On the morning following election day, the Boston Courier had an advertisement on its first page, headed thus:

"This day published—splendid New Lithograph, Columbia, assisted to rise by McClellan and Pendleton.

The second page of the same paper begins in this way:

It will be a day or two before the result of the sham election which has just taken place can be accurately ascertained.

This same day Gen. McClellan is said to have resigned his commission and laid down his sword. He and P. didn't assist Columbia very much,—they only aided the erring sisterhood a very little.

PROVIDED FOR.—The furious copperhead orators and newspapers suggested before election that, if "Little Mac" is defeated at the polls, he most place himself at the head of a half a million of men and capture Washington, depose President Lincoln, &c. When Mr. Lincoln was told of this threat he quietly remarked:

"Oh, we can fix all that. We have those quaker guns and the stove-pipe artillery that bothered Mac so long at Munson's hill, and we'll just mount them. Mac won't venture to attack us with such defences."

— The law just passed by the Vermont Legislature relative to vagrants provides that all idle persons, not having visible means to maintain themselves, shall be deemed vagrants; that all persons who shall have their faces painted or otherwise disguised in a manner calculated to prevent identification, and who shall appear in any road or enclosure shall be deemed vagrants, liable to arrest, and six months imprisonment.

— A carpenter was recently scared by a cassowary at the Sydenham Palace, near London. He was repairing its house, and left a large basket of tools while he went in doors to fetch something. On his return he missed a chisel, and supposing some one from the house had taken it, he was going back, when the cassowary approached, and at one gulp bolted a screw-driver and gimlet, while the terrified artist in wood bolted himself.

THE REBELLION.

Sherman is making an important movement toward the southern coast, but it is not certain that he is en route for Charleston, as reported. It is stated that Thomas has a sufficient army to take care of Hood and is already prepared to fight him. The N. Y. Times' dispatch says Sherman's destination is Savannah. The distance is 200 miles, with no rivers to pass and through the most flourishing part of Georgia. He will have 36 days' rations, but expects to feed supplies and rations on the route. Thousands of slaves will be freed, if he successfully makes this movement. Troops have gone from Atlanta to Tennessee to destroy all the bridges and all the important railroad routes. Rome will be evacuated and damaged, but we shall hold the outposts in Georgia west of Chattanooga to guard East Tennessee. A few days will show whether this is all mere speculation or fact.

The rebel papers are discussing the anticipated attack on Wilmington; while they claim that the defences are very strong, they regard the situation with anxiety. The capture of that port would cripple the rebels greatly.

The Monadnock, Adm. Porter's flag-ship, has sailed from Hampton Roads.

THE NATIONAL SAILORS' FAIR, at the Boston Theatre, opened on Wednesday evening, and the papers devote nearly all their space not occupied by election returns and guesses to an exposition of its attractions and excellencies. Hon. A. H. Rice, chairman of the Managing Committee, presided, and eloquent addresses were made by Edward Everett, Robert C. Winthrop, Richard H. Dana, Jr., Richard Frothingham, Jr., and John P. Hale. At the close of Mr. Hale's remarks nine cheers were given for the army and navy. Capt. Winslow and his associate officers of the Kearsarge were then presented to the audience by the chairman, and greeted with loud applause. Capt. Winslow briefly returned his thanks for the hearty reception, and hoped the people would be animated by enthusiasm in supporting the Fair. Capt. Worden, of the original Monitor, and Adm. Stringham, the hero of the first brilliant naval achievement of the war, at Hatteras, were successively introduced, and heartily received.

Two dispatches from President Lincoln were received. In one he says:

"Allow me to wish you great success. With the old fame of the navy, made brighter in the present war, you cannot fail. I name none lest I wrong others by omission. To all, from Rear Admiral to Honest Jack, I tender a nation's admiration and gratitude."

The donor of the mammoth ox, "Gen. Grant," had presented him to the President of the United States, the gift to take effect Nov. 8th, 1864. In a dispatch, the President, after alluding to the donation, says: "I present the mammoth ox to the Sailors' Fair as a contribution."

There is a long array of city tables; and New Hampshire and Portsmouth have each their own. There is a Cape Cod table, but it is devoted mainly to an exhibition of beautiful articles of foreign manufacture brought home by seamen, and not to the peculiar "products" of that delectable locality. The Fair bids fair fairly to eclipse the renowned Sanitary Fair. All Boston and the rest of mankind are expected to attend it this week or the next.

A PIRATE CHASED.—Steamer Arago, at New York from Hilton Head, reports that on the 6th inst., being at the time in company with the U. S. war steamer Huntsville, sighted a suspicious steamer, when both gave chase, the strange vessel crowding on all steam and sail. The Huntsville opened fire upon the chase, which was replied to. The U. S. steamer Banshee soon joined in the chase, thus hemming in the supposed privateer, all the vessels rapidly approaching the land to the eastward of Cape Lookout. At half past 3 P. M., the Arago kept on her course to New York. The steamer chased is supposed to have been captured or sunk or driven ashore before sunset, as all the steamers, when last seen, were less than ten miles from land.

— Pro. L. D. Williams, of Alleghany College, Meadville, Penn., is investigating the geological evidences of the existence of coal oil in Southern Ohio. It is his opinion that it will be found as abundant there as in Pennsylvania and West Virginia, and that the coal oil region extends into Southern Indiana.

— Archbishop Denison proposed the following comprehensive toast at a recent harvest-home festival in England:

Here's a health to all those that we love.
Here's a health to all those that love us.
Here's a health to all those that love them
That love those that love them
That love us.

— The long bridge at Washington, commenced about fifteen months ago, is completed. It is 4,045 feet long, has two draws, each 78 feet long, which are so constructed as to require but two minutes to be opened and shut again. The cost of the bridge is only about $150,000.

— The Boston Post, since the election, "believes that if Mr. Lincoln will earnestly set himself to the work of crushing out the rebellion per se, without regard to the clamors of radicals, he can restore peace with the Union and the Constitution before the close of the first year of his new administration."

— A gang of guerillas made a raid upon Rocky Hill, on the Louisville and Nashville Railroad last week, seized a negro, forced him into a box-car on the track, and then set it on fire. The demons stood by, watched the burning of the car, heard the wild agonizing shrieks of their victim, and clapped their hands with delight.

— A Brussels merchant recently sent a letter by post, with money in it, to a distant town, and the same was not delivered, which made him very unhappy. It was found at the dead letter office of the town where directed, but as he had addressed it to his own name by mistake the owner had not been found.

THE ELECTION.

205 towns in New Hampshire give Lincoln 33,176, McClellan 30,635; Union majority 2541.

Returns from all but 15 towns in Massachusetts give Lincoln 74,126 majority.

The Unionists in New Jersey gain one member of Congress. The State Senate will be Democratic, but the House Union by one or two majority. The Union party has gained nearly 9000 on the vote of 1862.

There is now little doubt about the State of New York. The World has sunk its claim from 10,000 to 2000, while the Union papers claim the State by from 5000 to 8000 majority. The Union men gain seven members of Congress. James Brooks is elected by four majority. Gov. Seymour is defeated,—a Union victory second in importance only to the election of President Lincoln. The latest reports say the State is sure for Lincoln,—probably by a majority of 5000. Mr. Fenton runs ahead of the electoral ticket, and is elected Governor over Seymour by a majority of about 7500. Both branches of the Legislature are Union.

The Union majority in Pennsylvania on the home vote is 15,000 or 20,000, which the soldiers' vote will increase to over 40,000.

West Virginia gives Lincoln 20,000 majority.

Wisconsin elects one Democratic and five Union Congressmen.

Missouri has gone for Lincoln; and he probably has carried every State except New Jersey, Delaware and Kentucky.

Pennsylvania in October elected 16 Union and 8 Democratic Congressmen, as the official returns show. The seats of three Democrats will be contested. The present delegation is equally divided.

— A Muller case has taken place in India on the railroad between Ahmoodpore and Bhulpore; a gentleman traveling in a second-class carriage having been suddenly attacked by a person traveling in the same carriage, and robbed of his watch. After being beaten severely he was thrown out of the window, but contrived to lay hold of the footstep of the carriage, and by clinging to the buffer held on till the train reached the station. The man who committed the outrage is in custody.

— Cyrus McCormick, who invented the reaper that bears his name, was the Democratic candidate for Congress, in the Chicago district, on Tuesday. His reaper has done more good to the country, than he could do as a politician. He is worth from three to five million dollars, and his income is now estimated at two thousand per day.

Honey of Horehound Tar,

For the cure of Coughs, Colds, Influenza, Hoarseness, Difficult Breathing, and all Affections of the Throat, Bronchial Tubes and Lungs, leading to Consumption.

This sovereign remedy is compounded from the favorite recipe of an illustrious Physician and Chemist, who for many years used it with the most complete success in his extensive private practice.

He had long been profoundly impressed with the wonderful virtue of the honey of the plant Horehound, in union with the Cleansing and Healing properties of Tar extracted from the Life Principle of the forest tree Abies Balsamea, or Balm of Gilead. For years he was baffled in his attempts to blend these great medicinal forces into such a union that the original power of each would be preserved, the disagreeable qualities of common tar removed, and the price of the compound be within the means of all. At last after a long course of chemical experiments, he found that by adding to these five other ingredients, each one valuable in itself, he not only obtained the desired results but greatly increased the curative power of the compound. This having been thoroughly tested by practice, is now offered to the general public as a safe, pleasant and infallible remedy.

PRICE, 50 CENTS PER BOTTLE.

"A Wonderful Discovery."

DR. TEBBETTS' "PHYSIOLOGICAL HAIR REGENERATOR" is compounded in strict accordance with the well known laws of Physiology and modern vegetable Chemistry. It is not a "DYE," and will not stain a particle. It will "RESTORE GRAY HAIR" in all cases to its original color. It promotes a luxuriant growth of new HAIR in all cases on BALD HEADS, when the glands or roots of the hair are not completely disorganized. It prevents the hair from falling off and removes all dandruff, heat, humors and itching from the scalp. It keeps the hair soft, moist and perfectly healthy, and gives it a glossy and beautiful appearance. It is highly perfumed, and as a Dressing it has no superior. The "Aqua Nanandah" is warranted to produce the above results in all cases, if not the money to be refunded. With it every "GRAY HEAD" in New England can be restored in less than sixty days.

—— Lt. Col. Randlett, 3d N. H. regiment, in a letter to the Mirror mentions the following instance of bravery and coolness manifested by Philip Francis of Co. C, in the fight Oct. 7:

Francis was wounded, a ball passing through his leg below the knee. He could not retreat, but concealed himself beneath a log; the enemy charged over him, met our own line, got terribly slaughtered, fell back over him to the same line they started to charge from, thinking they held the ground where our skirmish line had been established previous to their charge. They came out to gather their wounded, when three of the rebels passed by Francis' hid ing place. He leveled his rifle and demanded their surrender; they did it, and he started to bring them in. Seeing me on the same line, he leveled his piece on me and demanded that I come to him, taking me to be a rebel officer.

I took shelter behind a tree, thinking the man was crazy and had gone over to the rebels, but calling my name, he cried out, "all right." I then started for him. He had turned towards the enemy's line and again levelled his rifle, crying out, "Come this way or I will shoot you," with epithets that sounded more becoming than they would look in print. Two Johnnies who were bearing a wounded comrade of theirs to the rear immediately faced about and surrendered to him. We lost no time in regaining our own lines, this hero alone capturing six rebel prisoners. Francis was taken to the hospital, and we have not heard from him since. His wound was not considered dangerous, although severe.

—— Orestes R. Topliff, Esq., of Freedom, a young but enterprising member of the Carroll County Bar, died suddenly of erysipelas last week. Mrs. Topliff was visiting at her father's in Massachusetts, where she was taken sick about the same time as her husband, and died soon after.

—— The 1st Parish, of Dover, have invited Rev. Avery S. Walker to become their Pastor, and he will be installed on the evening of Nov. 16, at half-past six o'clock. Sermon by President Smith, of Dartmouth College.

—— We must mention one more big potato,—raised by Mr. Sanborn Blake, of East Concord, and weighing five pounds and one ounce. That must close the list for this year.

—— The Exeter News Letter states that eighteen men intend to leave East Kingston next week, to seek their fortunes in the West.

— Seventy-four petroleum lamps burst in succession recently at the Ulm Theatre, to the roof of which they were suspended, and the burning oil fell like a shower of fire on the spectators, among whom were a number of ladies. In a moment the dresses of twenty of them were in flames, and most serious burns were the consequence. One of the females was so dreadfully burned that she died in a few hours after.

A ONE SIDED GAME. — Some one tells a story of a Georgia greenhorn who took a crop of cotton to New Orleans, received the proceeds and started forth to investigate the 'mysteries' of that unholy city.

He tried the tiger and did n't like it, and thought he'd take a sly at a game, familiar to him by name only, called roulotte. One turn of roulette, you know, makes the whole world win! He started out in quest of the game, only knowing that roulette had something to do with roll. On the first corner of the street he met a barrel-organ man grinding away for dear life.

Our Georgia friend thought he'd found his game. Stepping briskly up, he laid a dollar down on the box. The organ man's eyes opened — he bagged the bill and ground away with renewed vigor. Our Georgian imagined he had lost, and "doubled up," laid down a two dollar bill. That was bagged, and the barrel organ went whirling around as though there were several barrels inside.

The thing went on, and the Georgian "doubled up" — the organ-grinder pocketing the money all the time; until he had "nary" another dollar left.

As he saw the last of his currency bagged by the delighted organ-grinder, he remarked:

"Well, of all the games I ever bucked against that is the darndest."

SHERIDAN'S RIDE.

BY THOMAS BUCHANAN READ.

Up from the South at break of day,
Bringing to Winchester fresh dismay,
The affrighted air with a shudder bore,
Like a herald in haste to the chieftain's door,
The terrible grumble and rumble and roar,
Telling the battle was on once more,
And Sheridan twenty miles away.

And wider still those billows of war
Thundered along the horizon's bar,
And louder yet into Winchester rolled
The roar of that red sea uncontrolled,
Making the blood of the listener cold,
As he thought of the stake in that fiery fray,
And Sheridan twenty miles away.

But there is a road from Winchester town,
A good, broad highway leading down;
And there, through the flush of the morning light,
A steed, as black as the steeds of night,
Was seen to pass as with eagle flight,—
As if he knew the terrible need
He stretched away with his utmost speed;
Hill rose and fell—but his heart was gay,
With Sheridan fifteen miles away.

Still sprung from those swift hoofs, thundering south,
The dust, like the smoke from the cannon's mouth,
Or the trail of a comet sweeping faster and faster,
Foreboding to traitors the doom of disaster;
The heart of the steed and the heart of the master
Were beating like prisoners assaulting their walls,
Impatient to be where the battlefield calls
Every nerve of the charger was strained to full play,
With Sheridan only ten miles away.

Under his spurning feet, the road
Like an arrowy Alpine river flowed,
And the landscape sped away behind,
Like an ocean flying before the wind;
And the steed, like a bark fed with furnace ire,
Swept on, with his wild eyes full of fire.
But, lo! he is nearing his heart's desire—
He is snuffing the smoke of the roaring fray,
With Sheridan only five miles away.

The first that the General saw were the groups
Of stragglers, and then the retreating troops;—
What was done—what to do—a glance told him both,
Then striking his spurs with a terrible oath,
He dashed down the line mid a storm of huzzas,
And the wave of retreat checked its course there, because
The sight of the master compelled it to pause.
With foam and with dust the black charger was gray;
By the flash of his eye and his red nostrils' play,
He seemed to the whole great army to say:
"I have brought you Sheridan all the way
From Winchester down to save the day!"

Hurrah, hurrah for Sheridan!
Hurrah, hurrah, for horse and man!
And when their statues are placed on high,
Beneath the dome of the Union sky,
The American soldiers' Temple of Fame,
There, with the glorious General's name,
Be it said in letters both bold and bright:
"Here is the steed that saved the day
By carrying Sheridan into the light
From Winchester—twenty miles away!"
—New York Tribune.

Some idiosyncratic person in Ward 2, cast a ballot, yesterday, which began "For Governor, Gen. Sheridan; for Lieut. Governor, Gen. Sheridan; for Secretary of the commonwealth, Gen. Sheridan," and kept on in that way to the end of the chapter, with the single exception that James E. Russell and not Gen. Sheridan was the candidate for Register of Deeds. Think of Gen. Sheridan for County Commissioner!—Springfield Republican.

THE MODEL COOK.

IS, IN FACT,
The Best Stove Out,
for economy, convenience and dispatch.

Many people think it best to use an old stove as long as possible, but it is far better to throw it away and purchase a MODEL COOK, than to keep it at the present high price of fuel.

One of our shrewdest citizens who purchased a MODEL COOK STOVE a year since, says he has saved more than its cost already.

A careful, prudent farmer purchased one, and after it had been in operation some days his son came into the store and said, "something was wrong at their house;" his father and himself used wood off the same pile, he burned three baskets full a day, and his father only one! We sold him a Stove before he left, and there has been no complaint since.

These Stoves are in use in many hotels and boarding houses, and in hundreds of private families in this city and vicinity, and give the best of satisfaction.

PRICES REDUCED.

The subscriber has reduced the prices of the Model Cook Stoves FIVE DOLLARS each, to conform to the decline in gold.

INDIAN SUMMER.

Light as love smiles, the silvery mist at morn
Floats by loose flakes along the limpid river;
The blue-bird's notes upon the soft breeze borne,
As high in air he carrols, faintly quiver;
The weeping birch, like dancers idly waving,
Bends to the streams its spicy branches laving,
Beaded with dew, the witch-elm's tassels shiver;
The timid rabbit from the furze is peeping,
And from the springy spray with the squirrels gayly leaping.

I love thee, Autumn, for thy scenery, ere
The blasts of Winter chase the varied dyes
That richly deck the slowly declining year;
I love the splendor of thy sunset skies,
The gorgeous hues that tinge each falling leaf,
Lovely as beauty's cheek, as woman's love, too, brief;
I love the note of each wild bird that flies,
As on the wind he pours his parting lay,
And wings his loitering flight to Summer climes away.

O, Nature, still I fondly turn to thee,
With feelings fresh as ere my childhood's were;
Though wild and passion-tossed my youth may be,
Toward thee still the same devotion bear:
To thee—to thee—though health and hope no more
Life's wasted verdure—may to me restore—
I still can, exhilirated, come at eve when in prayer
I bowed my head upon a mother's knee,
I deemed the world, like her, all truth and purity

THE MAGEE
COOKING STOVE.

The subscriber, having received his Fall stock of Stoves, would especially call the attention of the public to the

MAGEE COOK STOVE,

as the very best Stove yet made, and would invite those about purchasing or exchanging stoves, to examine this, believing it to be far superior to any other Stove yet invented, the castings being heavier, and the oven larger than usual. The Oven plates are covered with plaster, which renders it equal to the old-fashioned brick oven for perfection in baking.

There is a new style and very superior broiler and sad-iron heater combined, by which the odor of broiling meats are prevented from escaping into the room. With the extension top there is a large copper Reservoir for hot water; also a large tin warming-closet attached, in which any article can be kept warm, while the other parts of the Stove are occupied for other purposes.

The arrangements for sifting the coal and cleaning the grate are far superior to those of any other Stove now in use, as no dust can possibly come into the room, and the shovelling up of the ashes is entirely dispensed with. The fire is regulated in the same manner as in the MAGEE PARLOR STOVE, and can be continued day and night for weeks together, thus saving the expense of re-kindling every day.

For economy, durability, ease of management, cleanliness and perfection in cooking, it cannot be surpassed by any other Stove, as hundreds of families in this city and vicinity, who are now using them, are willing to testify, and speak of them in the highest terms of praise.

We would refer to the following purchasers:

"MAGEE'S PATENT"
VENTILATING & AIR-WARMING
FURNACES.

The subscriber, being the Sole Agent in this vicinity for the manufacture and sale of this valuable Furnace, would ask those about remodelling or erecting buildings to examine this very valuable invention.

For economy, purity of air and ease of management it has no equal, producing a current of warm air, moist and agreeable;—and as none of the air which comes in contact with the fire-pot is used for respiration, the tendency to produce headache so much complained of in other Furnaces, is entirely obviated.

The objects aimed at by the constructors of heating apparatus have been to obtain the greatest amount of heat from a given amount of fuel, and to prevent the escape of heat to the smoke pipe or chimney.

To accomplish this many complicated and expensive heating arrangements have been constructed, some powerful but little improvement over former methods, while many have proved a total failure. The reason for this is obvious. The combustible gases, being lighter than the air, pass off into the pipe or chimney without being consumed. This objection, so common in other Furnaces, is obviated in the

MAGEE FURNACE.

The flue or pipe in this Furnace being below the fire-pot, the gases, from their specific gravity, cannot descend, and are turned up by the admission of cold air through the fire-pot, which ignites them as they pass off from the coal, thus saving at least 20 per cent. of the properties of the heat in the fuel.

No heating apparatus with the smoke-pipe or flue on the top of the cone can be made to consume the gases of the coal, as they pass off with a large amount of the best generated, making the chimney the hottest part of your dwelling.

This Furnace does away with the great number of pipes and angles for the radiation of heat, which are so liable to fill up and get out of order, thus simplifying, while it increases the surface of radiation.

These Furnaces consume all the coal, make no clinkers, the sifting of coal is entirely dispensed with, and they will save from 20 to 50 per cent. of fuel over common Furnaces.

For ease of management, economy and purity of air these Furnaces have no equal. They can be regulated so as to give any amount of heat required, and the fire may be kept the entire season without once going out.

They give entire satisfaction wherever used. We have in store the different sizes, Brick and Portable, to which we invite the attention of those in want of the best Furnace in the world.—and would refer them to the following named gentlemen, who have them now in use:

Samuel Cheney, Esq., Albert R. Hatch, Esq.,
Aaron H. Hill, Charles H. Mendum,
Henry F. Wendell, John Sise, and others.

CHEROKEE REMEDY

CHEROKEE INJECTION,

CHEROKEE REMEDY, the great Indian Diuretic, cures all diseases of the urinary organs, such as Incontinence of the Urine, Inflammation of the Bladder, Inflammation of the Kidneys, Stone in the Bladder, Stricture, Gravel, Gleet, Gonorrhœa, and is especially recommended in those cases of Ulcer Albus or Whites in females; where all the old, nauseous medicines have failed.

It is prepared in a highly concentrated form, the dose only being from one to two tablespoonfuls three times per day.

It is diuretic and alterative in its action; purifying and cleansing the blood, causing it to flow in all of its original purity and vigor; thus removing from the system all pernicious causes which have induced disease.

CHEROKEE INJECTION is intended as an aly or assistant to the CHEROKEE REMEDY, and should be used in conjunction with that medicine in all cases of Gonorrhœa, Gleet, Ulcer Albus or Whites. Its effects are healing, soothing and demulcent; removing all scalding, heat, chordee and pain, invested of the burning and almost unbearable pain that is experienced with nearly all the cheap quack injections.

☞ By the use of the CHEROKEE REMEDY and CHEROKEE INJECTION—the two medicines at the same time—all improper discharges are removed, and the weakened organs are speedily restored to full vigor and strength.

VICES OF GENIUS. — Coleridge was such a slave to liquor that he had to be kept an unwitting prisoner, by Christopher North, on an occasion when some literary performance had to be completed by a certain time, and on that very day, without even taking leave of any member of the family, he ran off at full speed down the avenue at Ellerary, and was soon hidden, not in the groves of the valley, but in some obscure den, where, drinking among low companions, his magnificent mind was soon brought to a level with the vilest of the vile. When his spree was over he would return to the society of decent men."

De Quincey was such a slave to the use of opium, that his daily allowance was of more importance than eating. "An ounce of laudanum a day prostrated animal life during the forenoon. It was no unfrequent sight to see him asleep on the rug before the fire in his own room, his head on a book, his arm crossed on his breast. When this torpor from the opium had passed away, he was ready for company about daylight. In order to show him off, his friends had to arrange their supper parties so that, sitting until three or four in the morning, he might be brought to that point at which in charm and power of conversation, he was so truly wonderful.

Burns was not less a drunkard than Coleridge. It was the weakness of Charles Lamb. And who can remember the last day of Poe without an irrepressible regret? He was on his way to marry a confiding woman, stopped in Baltimore, and was found by a gentleman who knew him, in a state of beastly intoxication, unconscious as a log, and died in the ravings of delirium tremens. Douglas Jerrold was a devotee of gin. Byron was a tippler, and his vile Don Juan was written under the inspiration of rum.

Steele, the brilliant author of the Christian Hero, was a beastly drunkard. Men wrote of him that very often he would dress himself, kiss his wife and children, tell them a lie about his pressing engagements, heel it over to a groggery called "The Store," and have a revel with his bottle companions. Rollin says of Alexander the Great, that the true poison which brought him to his end, was wine. The Empress Elizabeth, of Russia, was completely brutified with strong liquors. She was often in such a state of baccaic ecstacy during the day, that she could not be dressed in the morning, and her attendants would loosely attach some robes, which a few clips of the scissors would disengage in the evening.

"TIT FOR TAT."—Squire M. had a friend to visit him on business and was very much annoyed to be interrupted by his wife, who came to ask him what he wanted for dinner.

"Go away! let us alone!" impatiently said the Squire.

Business detained his friend till dinner-time, and the Squire urged him to remain. The Squire was a generous provider, proud of his table; and he complacently escorted his friend to a seat. A little to the surprise of both, they saw nothing on the board but a huge dish of salad, which the good wife began quietly to serve up.

"My dear," said the Squire, "where are the meats?"

"There are none to-day," replied his lady.

"No meats! What in the name of poverty! The vegetables then. Why don't you have the vegetables brought in?"

"You didn't order any vegetables."

"Order—I didn't order anything," said the amazed Squire.

"You forgot," cooly answered the housewife. I asked you what we should have, and you said, 'Lettuce alone!' Here it is."

"Wife, I give it up. I owe you one. Here is the fifty dollars you wanted for that carpet, which I denied you." The Squire forked over. "Now, let's have peace—and some dinner."

The good woman pocketed the paper, rang the bell, and a sumptuous repast of fish, poultry and vegetables was brought in.

A few days afterwards the Squire remained working in his garden some time after the usual tea hour. His wife grew impatient of delay, and went to find him.—His excuse, when she asked what he was waiting for, threw her into a flutter of excitement.

"Some one's to come to supper!" she exclaimed. "Why didn't you tell me? I declare you are the provokingest man!"

And without asking which of his friends was expected, she hastened to change her dress and "slick up" her hair for the occasion. This done, she came out and found the Squire seated at the table, reading his newspaper.

"Where's your company?"

"My company? I haven't any company!"

"But you said you expected somebody to supper!" exclaimed the indignant wife.

"My dear, I said no such a thing. You asked me what I was waiting for, and I said, 'Nummons to come to supper'—that's what I said I was waiting for, my dear.—And I came at once."

"And you have made me go and change my dress!" Oh, I'll pay you for this!"

"No matter about it, my dear. I owed you, remember, for that lettuce."

American and Foreign Patents.
R. H. EDDY.
SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,
Late Agent of U. S. Patent Office, Washington, (under date of 1837,)
76 State street, opposite Kilby street,
Boston.
After an extensive practice of upwards of twenty years, continues to secure Patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Bonds, Assignments, and all Papers or Drawings for Patents, executed on liberal terms, and with dispatch. Researches made into American or Foreign works, to determine the validity or utility of patents or inventions—and legal or other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any Patent furnished by remitting One Dollar. Assignments recorded at Washington.
The Agency is not only the largest in New England, but through it inventors have advantages for securing Patents, or ascertaining the patentability of inventions unsurpassed by, if not immeasurably superior, to any which can be offered them elsewhere. The Testimonials below given prove that none is MORE SUCCESSFUL AT THE PATENT OFFICE than the subscriber; and as SUCCESS IS THE BEST PROOF OF ADVANTAGES AND ABILITY, he would add that he has every reason to believe, and can prove, that at no other office of the kind are the charges for professional service so moderate.
The immense practice of the subscriber during twenty years past, has enabled him to accumulate a vast collection of specifications and official decisions relative to patents.
These, besides his extensive library of legal and mechanical works, and full accounts of patents granted in the United States and Europe, render him able, beyond question, to offer superior facilities for obtaining Patents.
All necessity of a journey to Washington, to procure a patent, and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.
TESTIMONIALS.
"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse."
CHARLES MASON,
Commissioner of Patents.
"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a person more competent and trustworthy, and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them in early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office."
EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents
Mr. R. H Eddy has made for me THIRTEEN applications, on all but one of which patents have been granted, and that is now pending. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend all inventors to apply to him to procure their patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases, and at very reasonable charges."
JOHN TAGGART.
During eight months, the subscriber, in course of his large practice, made on twice rejected applications SIXTEEN APPEALS, EVERY ONE of which was decided in his favor, by the Commissioner of Patents.

Portsmouth, N. H.

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 12TH, 1864.

BEFORE AND AFTER.— A nameless and shameless organ of treason, bad in its issue just before the election, these words, viz:—

The Great Avalanche Coming.— Unless all signs are as deceptive and hypocritical as Abolition honesty and patriotism, this administration is bound to hear the judgment of condemnation next Tuesday that will send it reeling home to its ignoble reward among the condemned of eternity.—The people are moving in awful power. On the wings of the wind and the lightning's pace, we hear the rumbling sound of the millions of our countrymen marshaling for the grand conflict which is to decide the fate of all our liberties and rights. Though we may have some glimmering doubts of the result, yet our faith is strong, and our earnest, solemn prayer to God is, that it may prove an anchor to the soul both sure and steadfast.

The same organ, in its issue since the election, has the three following sentences, in as many different articles. We put them together, for the reader's amusement.

(1) The result of the Presidential election so far as known, and that is far enough to decide the whole thing, is nearly a clean Lincoln, Abolition, Emancipation and Confiscation triumph. (2) Finally, to sum all up, it looks this Thursday, as though Lincoln would have a popular majority of at least a quarter of a million votes. (3) We have the consolation that the brave old third ward, the Sebastopol of Democracy, stands firm.

The signs of the above prophet, were lying signs, and having deceived his readers, he deceived himself.

The administration has heard the judgment of approval.

The people have moved in awful power —and they have decided for liberty and against slavery. There was a rumbling sound of the millions, and a majority of 250,000 stands recorded against copperhead treason.

The prophetic faith did not prove strong enough to hold anything but the brave old third ward, The Five Points and three States out of ever so many; this "consolation" only remains,—till a new book of Lamentations must be penned, at the downfall of chattel slavery, by which the rebel aristocracy used to grow fat, and as they feasted, used to throw a few crumbs to their obedient spaniels at the north.

All this is spoilt now, on their own showing, for they say,—"the whole thing is nearly a clean Lincoln, Abolition, Emancipation, and Confiscation triumph."

Even so. Let the government now prosecute the war with vigor,—and treat rebels, pirates and traitors with rigor. Soon may this course lead to an honest, enduring peace; with government based on justice, equality and true religion; with good human laws, and a due regard to the higher law of the Great Lawgiver who judges in the earth, and rewards men according to their works. And let all the people say Amen

U. T.

It is of no use to raise our umbrella — the Lincoln reign we must endure four years longer, and stand in out of the shower until the Abolition cloud passes over. —Boston Post.

The above item is not bad. The shower from the Abolition cloud will purify the land from "the sum of all villany," and wash away a domestic institution which John Wesley styled "the vilest under the sun." It is a refreshing shower to the patriot, the philanthropist and the christian. It is dreadful only to the traitor, the rebel, and the hypocrite.

U. T.

NEW HAMPSHIRE ITEMS.

—— The Amoskeag National Bank has been organized in Manchester, with a capital $100,000.

—— A voter in Concord tore the name of Pendleton from a Democratic ticket which he cast, because he couldn't endorse him.

—— The Union citizens of Concord propose to jubilate on Monday evening, by a Torchlight Procession, fireworks, cannonading, illuminations, marching, countermarching cheering, and hurraing generally—to conclude with speeches from Hon. Daniel Clark, Hon. A. H. Cragin, Hon. M. W. Tappan, Col. Walter Harriman, and others.

☞ The Union Clubs in Washington serenaded Pres. Lincoln on Thursday night, and he made a pleasant and characteristic speech. After alluding to the loyalty and strength of our people, who had demonstrated the ability of a people's government to sustain a national election in the midst of a great civil war, he said:

But the rebellion continues, and now that the election is over, may not all, having a common interest, reunite in a common effort to save our common country? For my own part I have striven and shall strive to avoid placing any obstacle in the way. So long as I have been here I have not willingly planted a thorn in any man's bosom. While I am duly sensible to the high compliment of a re-election, and duly grateful, as I trust, to Almighty God for having directed my countrymen to a right conclusion, as I think, for their good, it adds nothing to my satisfaction that any other man may be disappointed by the result. May I ask those who have not differed with me to join with me in this same spirit towards those who have.

THE REBELLION.

The monitor Monadnock has unexpectedly turned up at New York.

A Nashville dispatch says Gen. Gillem has utterly routed the enemy in East Tennessee, driving them in great confusion 44 miles. His advance is 90 miles east of Knoxville. The rebels are at Bristol.

Hood's exact whereabouts are now known to our military leaders, and the Union movements will be developed in due time.

ITEMS—NEW AND OLD.

— Gold 240 1-4.

— 4802 workmen at Charlestown Yard.

— The Czar of Russia travels with twenty-eight servants.

— Brignoli was hissed off the stage at Madrid for refusing to repeat an air.

— In England they manufacture eighty miles of Atlantic telegraph cable every week.

— Grau, the operatic manager, has had seven suits brought against him to recover promised salaries.

— Important discoveries of gold and coal mines have recently been made in Colorado.

— Jean Ingelow has a new volume in press in England, entitled "Home thoughts and home scenes."

— The Boston merchants are to give a dinner to the officers of the Kearsarge, at the Revere House, on Tuesday.

— The barbarities practiced on Union prisoners at Andersonville, are repeated at Florence, S. C.

— The dwelling house of Walter W. Upham, in Dover, Mass., was burnt on Thursday morning, and his mother, 70 years of age, perished in the flames.

— Perley telegraphs that McClellan forwarded his resignation to Washington by mail on election day, but it has not yet been laid before the President.

— Two Brooklynites made a bet on the election, of a beaver hat, to be 24 inches high and 7 in breadth of brim, the winner to wear the hat during the Presidential term.

— Semmes' new vessel, the Sea King, is said to be very fast, built of wood, with iron frame, about one thousand tons burden, three masts, heavily sparred, and machinery abaft the mainmast.

— A fire in Charleston has destroyed a large number of mechanical shops, together with the tools, which cannot be replaced. A large stock of leather, small arms, and cannon were also destroyed.

— $50,000 in gold and a large amount of Confederate bonds, all belonging to the rebel government, were thrown overboard during the chase, from the blockade-runner Annie, recently captured off Wilmington.

— In the gardens of a certain nobleman's country-house there happen to be fixed up at different spots painted boards with this request — "Please not to pluck the flowers without leave." Some wag got a paint brush and added an s to the last word.

— Godey's Lady's Book for December is a capital number, — as all his numbers are. A new volume commences next month. Terms $3 per year; two copies $5.50; eleven copies $27.50, and an extra copy to the person sending the club.

— A New York Newspaper man, who recently went to the opera, says: Some of the ladies sported a profusion of powder, their heads looking as if they had just come out of a flour bin. We have rarely seen more finery in any place of amusement. There was plenty of glare, but very few evidences of taste.

— Prominent men from the Northern States are at Quebec, urging the Canadian Government to an energetic co-operation with the American authorities to preserve the peace of the frontier. Efficient measures on the part of the Canadian Government have been taken.

— In the recent railroad accident near Lafayette, Ind., the baggage car was about 14 inches narrower than the passenger car behind it, and the force of the collision was such as to drive the baggage car entirely through the passenger car, tearing off the top but leaving the sides intact. Every person in the car was instantly killed.

— The guard at Springfield armory has been doubled, lest rebel emissaries should set fire to the establishment. A union man of respectability and veracity, who has recently escaped from the South, affirms his personal knowledge of several men who have been sent North, for the avowed purpose of burning the buildings; and some of these men, it is believed, are now employed at the armory as workmen.

— A horse-flesh banquet took place lately at Lyons, a large number of guests being present, and to them were served up no less than 11 dishes, all of horse beef. These were two soups, bouilli, horse a la mode, truffled sausages, fried brains, lion a l'Italienne, cauliflower, au jus de cheval, cold horse pie, and other chevaline delicacies The fare was generally approved. Among the guests were merchants, manufacturers, professional men, journalists, veterinary surgeons, and physicians—these last, it is added, were not numerous.

THE ELECTION.

The Democratic association in Washington has hauled in its flag, given up its ball (as well as its all) ordered the sale of its personal effects, and adjourned sine die.

225 towns in New Hampshire give Lincoln 2438 majority. Seven towns have not been heard from. The 1st company of Heavy Artillery voted—for Lincoln 96, for McClellan 00. The 6th regiment gave Lincoln 100, McClellan 20; the 9th, Lincoln 100, McClellan 17; the 11th, Lincoln 134, McClellan 54.

In New York the election of Mr. Fenton to the office of Governor appears to be acknowledged by all parties. He has run ahead of the Presidential ticket from 1000 to 2000 votes, while Gov. Seymour will hardly lead the Democratic electoral ticket 1000 throughout the State.

The New York City delegation in Congress stands two Union, two War Democrats, and two regular Democrats. Brooks' majority is 159; Raymond's, 381. Brooks' seat is to be contested. The State has certainly gone Union by from 5000 to 7000.

Maryland gives 6000 Union majority on the home vote, which the soldiers' vote will increase to 9000.

Missouri is conceded to Lincoln by a handsome majority. The radical State ticket is also elected. Four Union Congressmen, and perhaps two others, are elected. The Legislature will be largely Union. The Convention question is carried, and a large majority of radical delegates are elected.

East Tennessee voted unanimously for Lincoln.

According to returns received, the popular majorities for Lincoln in some of the Western States are: Illinois, 30,000; Indiana, 30,000; Iowa, 15,000; Michigan, 15,000; Minnesota, 5000; Ohio, 30,000; Wisconsin, 10,000. The McClellan majorities are: Delaware, 450; Kentucky, 25,000; New Jersey, 5000.

Twenty five election commissioners were arrested in Grant's army on Tuesday evening, and placed in confinement.

The election passed off quietly throughout Grant's army, and firing was almost entirely suspended during the day, even by the rebels. The vote of the Pennsylvania regiments was much heavier than in October. Two agents from Philadelphia were arrested by the Provost Marshal at Gen. Miles's headquarters, on the charge of having in their possession blanks with names of electors spelt wrong and one name left out. 18,000 of Grant's soldiers give Lincoln 6000 majority. The soldiers at Atlanta voted nearly 4 to 1 for Lincoln.

The next Congress will probably stand as follows: Union, 38; Democrats, 14. House—Union, 140; Democrats, 44. New Hampshire, Connecticut, Rhode Island and Kentucky have yet to elect. Probable administration majority, 70.

Gen. Wright, elected to Congress by the Democrats from the 5th New Jersey district, died on Thursday morning. Hon. J. P. Elton, one of the Electors chosen in Connecticut, died on the same day.

JEFF. DAVIS' MESSAGE to the rebel Congress, which assembled on the 7th inst., reviews the campaigns of the Federal Generals and deduces notable consolation from his own statement of facts that the Federal successes have not been commensurate with the power put forth and the sacrifices incurred. In regard to rebel successes he is extremely reticent.

In regard to the rebel finances he says that the currency has become so depreciated that Congress must provide some remedy; and he informs Congress that there is absolutely no hope of any help from abroad. He gives foreign nations loud and lofty scolding for their lack of sympathy with the struggling Confederacy, and comforts the Confederacy with the assurance that the rebellion must rely solely upon its own resources.

It is plain, from the attention he gives to the subject of arming the slaves, that the recruitment of the rebel army is an extremely urgent matter. He opposes in general the arming of negro slaves, and says he cannot see the propriety or necessity of arming them while there are so many white men out of the ranks. He would only drill and arm such negroes as are already employed in the Quartermaster and Commissary Departments, &c., and fill the places of such by a draft of negroes from planters. He would give only the reward of manumission to such slaves as shall have served efficiently with arms in the field. In regard to this point the Richmond Whig says a proposition is deducible which it cannot for a moment believe Jeff. would deliberately give his sanction to, and that is, that the condition of freedom is so much better for the slave than that of servitude that it may be bestowed upon him as a reward and boon. Thus, it says, "is repudiation of the opinion held by the whole South, and a large portion of mankind in other countries, that servitude is the divinely appointed condition for the highest good of the slave. We hold it to be an act of cruelty to deprive the slave of the care and guardianship of a master. If the slave must fight he should fight for the blessing he enjoys as a slave, and not for the miseries that would attend him if freed."

And the rebel papers generally are dissatisfied with the document. The Richmond Examiner characterizes it as "a paper intended to be cautious, but which is in fact on several points indiscreet."

OBITUARY.—We have already chronicled the decease of Mr. Bleecker, who was recently for several years stationed at Portsmouth Navy Yard, as Paymaster; but we desire to add a word of farewell to an old friend of our own, and one who leaves a very large number of friends and acquaintances in this city and vicinity, who will deeply regret his early demise, and sincerely mourn his loss. John Van Benthuysen Bleecker, of the U. S. Navy, Purchasing Paymaster of the Mississippi Squadron, died in New York, 8th instant, aged 39 years, of disease contracted at the West. The Funeral services were held at Trinity Church, on Thursday afternoon, and were largely attended. Mr. B., although so young, was one of the "oldest" Paymasters in the regular service, having been appointed in 1847, and ranking with Captains. He was thoroughly loyal and in earnest, and his death is a loss to the service and to the country. He was the son of Anthony J. Bleecker, of New York, and leaves a wife and a large family of young children to lament him. His great musical talent, with his artistic tastes and love of the fine arts generally, cultivated and developed by his wide travels; his sociability and exhaustless good humor; rendered him a welcome companion and favorite acquaintance on all hands, and will cause him to be widely mourned.

HALE'S
Honey of Horehound Tar,

For the cure of Coughs, Colds, Influenza, Hoarseness, Difficult Breathing, and all Affections of the Throat, Bronchial Tubes and Lungs, leading to Consumption.

This sovereign remedy is compounded from the favorite recipe of an illustrious Physician and Chemist, who for many years used it with the most complete success in his extensive private practice.

He had long been profoundly impressed with the wonderful virtue of the honey of the plant Horehound, in union with the Cleansing and Healing properties of Tar extracted from the Life Principle of the forest tree Abies Balsamea, or Balm of Gilead. For years he was baffled in his attempts to blend these great medicinal forces into such a union that the original power of each would be preserved, the disagreeable qualities of common tar removed, and the price of the compound be within the means of all. At last after a long course of chemical experiments, he found that by adding to these two other ingredients, each one valuable in itself, he not only obtained the desired results but greatly increased the curative power of the compound. This having been thoroughly tested by practice, is now offered to the general public as a safe, pleasant and infallible remedy.

PRICE. 50 CENTS PER BOTTLE.

For sale by B. Hutchings, Portsmouth, and all Druggists.

"A Wonderful Discovery."

DR. TEBBETTS' "PHYSIOLOGICAL HAIR REGENERATOR" is compounded in strict accordance with the well known laws of Physiology and modern vegetable Chemistry. It is not a "DYE," and will not stain a particle. It will "RESTORE GRAY HAIR" in all cases to its original color. It promotes a luxuriant growth of new HAIR in all cases on BALD HEADS, when the glands or roots of the hair are not completely disorganized. It prevents the hair from falling off and removes all dandruff, heat, humors and itching from the scalp. It keeps the hair soft, moist and perfectly healthy, and gives it a glossy and beautiful appearance. It is highly perfumed, and as a Dressing it has no superior. The "REGENERATOR" is warranted to produce the above results in all cases, if not the money to be refunded. With it every "GRAY HEAD" in New England can be restored in less than sixty days.

EDITORIAL SORROWS. — Be an editor; let the "devil" be waiting for copy; sit down to write an article, and get a few sentences done. Then let an aquaintance drop in and begin to tell you stories and gossips of the town; and let him sit, and sit, and SIT. — That is the quickest way we can think of to go raving distracted mad. — States & Union.

Pshaw! Br. Foster, "that don't begin" to be vexatious. We could hint or tell the loafers to leave, if we had any troublesome ones; and a printed admonition we long ago borrowed from Rev. Mr. Humphries and placed over our desk, "Be brief — my time is my estate," has proved to be worth more than its weight in gold. Neither are we troubled beyond endurance by advertisers wanting their notices all in the biggest type and the best place. Nor do our patrons hesitate to come down with the dust in the most handsome manner. Nor do we trouble ourselves by trying to suit everybody in our paper — nor anybody but ourselves, as to that matter. Nor are we afraid of hard work, and a plenty of it — of all sorts, from chore-boy's to editor's.

No, none of these things trouble us much. But we'll tell you what does bother us, and many another man about town, most confoundedly — and that is, getting our and their papers carried. Aye, there's the rub — and we are almost rubbed out, too. We have serious thoughts of taking a partner whose sole business shall be to guarantee faithful delivery of the subscribers' lists, we doing all the rest of the work and business of the office.

There are a few minor perplexities, to be sure. Four o'clock, which has generally been our hour for commencing office business for fifteen years or more, is pretty good season, especially in winter — and oh dear! a majority of people are so loth to get up early; and of half a dozen men and boys constituting our press-gang, it is a trifle vexatious to have from one to three of them, including ourselves turn up tardy, or not at all, occasionally or oftener. But we can stand that, too; and if one press-boy don't come at all, we can lay on the sheets in his place; yes indeed, and many's the time we have laid on at both ends of the press, for part or all our edition. [An d more yet, one of our partners, and a brother, years ago, also used to do this, and on one occasion at least, did actually feed on at both ends, and turn the wheel for the printing besides, for several hundred papers! And, as a smart feat in printing, we will also mention of him that we have known that slight man to print at half press, on the hardest-running hand-press that we ever saw, 1000 programmes, between the close of one day's work at 6 o'clock, and the beginning of the next day at 4 o'clock in the morning.] Yes, all this would be more or less trying to some folks; but, as we said, we can stand it, and more, and still retain some modicum of composure. We can somehow or other manage to get over all sorts of difficulties, such as being short-handed, or fire going out over night, or press rollers or ink refusing to work, &c., &c., &c.

But our chiefest difficulty—the skeleton in our house, or shop—is, to get the Chronicle delivered to our patrons, to our own satisfaction or theirs. We don't propose to "go raving distracted mad" over it, like our coppery friend, tho'—if we did, we should have been in the mad-house long ago; and rather than do that before the rebellion is crushed out, we should prefer to die opposing Southern or Northern traitors.

Why, ask Avery, or Morse, if the greatest difficulty in their business is not, to get their papers carried properly?—Not unfrequently, of half-a-dozen boys whom we employ for carriers,—one, two, or four even, will fail to come to time, of a morning. And enquiry at their residences—almost always only a useless waste of time—but receives reply that a boy has a got a cold, or his mother is afraid he may catch one, (when the truth is, such boys as that, or the boys of such mothers who know no better than to thus break a contract without giving notice, and so disappoint us and hundreds of others, never will "catch" anything but the mumps;) or else Johnny can't get his boots on; or something, or nothing—generally the little fellow is too lazy, like his parents, to get up early enough for the duty.

And yet, we pay our carriers more than a school-boy can earn in any other way—giving them for a couple of hours' service in the morning, (aye, there's the rub again,—it's up in the morning early they must be, and the flesh and spirit are both weak)—we say, paying as much for a little tramp before breakfast as most of our storekeepers pay a boy for all day. Zounds! a lad who drives a cow to pasture a season, for a dollar or two, could earn from us for the same amount of work, more than ten times the money.

Ah, yes—and even when through much tribulation the papers are at last "carried"—how many of them fail to reach. Winds take them, and other folks take them—don't we wish we could catch them? But we can't—you might as well try to catch the wind itself. And all we can do is to suggest that every subscriber who wants to be sure of his paper, should have a hole cut for it, either in or under the door, or in some secure place—and we beg all to remember that it is difficult to deliver several hundred papers all at once,—shouldn't you think so?

The moral of all which long talk about nothing, (our text,) is that we share with our subscribers the vexations of missed papers—or rather we suffer as much as all of them put together; and that while we shall as heretofore, do the best we can in the premises, we beg the indulgence of all, until—well, until boys cease to be boys.

MECHANICS ASSOCIATION.—The Annual Meeting was held at the Court House on Thursday evening. The Treasurer's report shows the finances to be in a flourishing condition — the funds of the institution amounting to upwards of $7000, well invested. The number of members is 126, and the organization one of the staunchest and most respected in the State. Of late years, the annual assessment has been reduced, and no public celebrations, suppers, &c., held—in lack of which, the advantages of the Association have not been kept in sight of the rising generation. Every respectable mechanic in the city ought to avail himself of the privilege of becoming a member.

The following officers were elected for the year:

John Knowlton, President.
John T. Dame, Vice President.
Alfred T. Joy, Treasurer.
James Moses, Frank W. Miller, new Trustees.
Benjamin M. Parker, Secretary.
Edmund M. Brown, Dep. Secretary.
John Hodgdon, Marshal.
Cyrus Plumer, Standard Bearer.
C. W. Brewster, E. M. Brown, S. W. Moses, Auditors.

☞ We learn from the Monitor that Lt. E. A. Tilton, of the Invalid Corps, was the recipient at Concord, on Thursday, of an elegant silver watch, presented to him by the Unattached Company of Veteran Reserves, which has been stationed there, as a token of regard for the interest he has taken in their organization, and his gentlemanly and soldierly treatment of them. The company left for Washington on the same day.

Col. Charlas H. Long, 1st Regiment Heavy Artillery, was most agreeably surprised on Wednesday by a gathering of his friends at Eagle Hotel, at which time Gen. Natt Head introduced Lieut. J. E. Johnson, who, in behalf of the regiment, presented Col. Long with a splendid horse and a complete set of equipments, valued at six hundred dollars.

☞ There is a strong feeling being manifested throughout our whole city, to have no politics or politicians connected with the approaching City Elections. — Will not some of our leading citizens and heaviest tax-payers take the subject in hand in good season, and call a meeting, without distinction of party, to nominate an entire new ticket for city officers? Let it be composed of our smartest business men—men who manage their own affairs with prudence and economy, and we may look for a reform in our city business. If the fathers of the city are not in earnest in this matter, we hope the young men will take hold and have a suitable ticket nominated.

CITIZEN.

☞ On and after Monday, Nov. 14, the morning train for Concord will leave this city at half past 5 o'clock, and not at a quarter of six, as heretofore.

☞ We shall have a word of our own to say, perhaps, about our new City Rooms, &c., on Monday; and meantime, copy a mention of the matter from the Journal.

☞ Rev. J. B. Davis is to preach at the Freewill Baptist Church in Pearl street, tomorrow afternoon.

☞ A collection in behalf of the Sailors' Fair was taken at the Universalist Church last Sunday, amounting to $63.70.

☞ The ice property and business of Mr. Perkins is advertised to be sold positively this morning.

The venerable Mrs. Partington once asked us if we believed that everything was foreordained before hand in advance. We were compelled to answer that sometimes we did and sometimes we didn't. She remarked that her son Isaac says he knows one thing was foreordained sure, and that is, that the J. Monroe Taylor Gold Medal Soap will supersede and run out every other kind of soap made. The old lady further remarked, that she believed so too, and was sure that there was no other so good, for she had tried it. 28

From the Portsmouth Journal.

OPENING OF THE CITY ROOMS.

The new City Rooms were opened for the first time on Thursday evening. Verily, as was subsequently remarked by the learned Judge after supper, the Scriptures do not condemn as Pharisees the worthy perpetrators of the transformation of Jefferson Hall—for they have made clean the inside of the cup and platter; and without — well it is to be hoped that extortion and excess will always be kept without. Furthermore we have nothing to say, as the city funds are perhaps needed for something more than outside decorations at present.

Upon entering the first room, which is to be graced by the dignified presence of the City Clerk, the impression is rather distinctly made upon the mind that utility rather than beauty has inspired the designer. The high walls of the room are not of the kind of beauty which "unadorned is adorned the most" and in their plainness suggest plenty of good air and very little to direct the attention of the City Clerk from his work in hand. The safe in the corner, which has a very suggestive prison-like door appended, is the only embellishment save a little closet door, high up, on the south side of the room. Plenty of light streams in from the great window on the west, while the apartment within the railing, in which the functionary is supposed to be enclosed during the day, occupies the North side, and furniture such as suggests usefulness and substantiality, reposes upon the uncarpeted floor.

The Mayor's office is a cosy room next east, nicely furnished and carpeted, in which have been placed the boxes containing the maps of the city street surveys. The carpet is a well selected green woolen, and the furniture new unpolished black walnut.

Next is the Aldermen's room. Ah! it is pretty evident whose hands are deepest in this matter. Here is where good taste and elegance concentrate. This is a room meet for the City Fathers to assemble in; and ordinances enacted here ought to be respected, and should command the profound respect of the other branch of the City Council.—Eight black walnut desks, and chairs well stuffed and delightfully comfortable, inviting to long and frequent sessions of the honorable board, surround the desk of the Mayor and Clerk. Around the room are hung elegantly executed and framed photographs of the Mayors, present and past, of the city.

Upon turning to enter the Treasurer's office, next beyond, we are a little surprised that our City Collector has been so unsuccessful in procuring the portraits of those who have served the city in his position. His own, with Washington's name beneath it, is the only one viable. The furniture is not much to speak of;—and we enter the Common Council room on the east end of the building,—a plain, comfortable, well adapted room, whose glory will doubtless be the outpouring of intellect and the wise restraint it will exercise upon the upper board. A long table extends from the President's desk, with seats for twenty-four councilmen,—twelve on either side, as in the old room.

The North side of the building is mostly occupied by a spacious entry, terminating with a very easy descent of stairs to the street.

This was the appearance of the new rooms by brilliant gas light on Thursday evening.

After a due survey and much admiration of the premises, about thirty, members of the city government and several others, celebrated the occasion by a bountiful supper at the Rockingham House; after which Alderman Rider, on behalf of the building committee presented the keys of the new rooms to the Mayor, who on accepting promised to take good care of them. The social exercises of the evening were then commenced by an address historical, on Jefferson Hall and its surroundings, by Charles W. Brewster, and the company enjoyed many pithy and entertaining responses to the several toasts presented by Hon. M. Bufford, toastmaster of the occasion.

Some workmen at the Navy Yard have recently constructed a Miniature Gun Boat, named the Kearsarge, after the model of which famous vessel it is built. It is full rigged and manned, every gun properly mounted and proportioned.

This beautiful piece of work, critically perfect in its proportions, was exhibited at the City Rooms on Wednesday evening for a few hours, for the benefit of the Seaman's Fair. About $30 was received from visitors. On Thursday morning it was forwarded to Boston, in season to be placed in Faneuil Hall before the public reception at that place of Capt. Winslow of the Kearsarge, by the City Government, and was an attractive feature of the occasion. It will be disposed of in the Seaman's Fair for $600.

FAIR.—The Ladies of St. John's Church, Gloucester, Mass., of which Rev. Joshua R. Peirce is Rector, propose to hold a Fair, during the week preceding the coming Christmas, the proceeds of which will be devoted to the purchase of an organ for the new church just erected in that place. Contributions of useful and fancy articles are respectfully solicited, and will be most acceptable. Donations may be sent to No. 46 Congress st. in this city, any time before the 16th of December.

RAILROAD ACCIDENT.—The western train arrived at half past 11 last evening, bringing Company B, State Guards, Capt. Ricker, who have been garrisoning Fort McClary, Kittery, the past two months.

We learn from a member of the Company that quite a severe accident occurred on the P. S. & P. Railroad yesterday. While the train was stopping at Kennebunk, a heavy freight train came up in the rear, and coming into collision, smashed several passenger cars—but fortunately, only two persons were slightly injured.

From fuller information we find that Company B, State Guards, of this city, Capt. Ricker, had a most providential escape from terrible destruction. They were in the two rear cars of a train of twenty-two cars, when a freight train which had been passed, came up behind, the passenger train having stopped, and ran into the train, smashing up five or six cars, but wounding only two persons. Mr. R. S. Morrison of this city was considerably injured on his head, though not dangerously. The other person injured was a boy who had been blacking boots on the train, and it is stated his injuries are serious. The accident happened in consequence of the freight train being on a long down grade, and the rails so slippery from the storm that the train could not be held up. The speed was, of course, greatly checked before the collision. Otherwise the destruction of life would have been awful.—Bangor Courier, Nov. 7.

THE COLOR OF BIRDS. — The ptarmigan are exactly the color of the stones in summer, and of the snow in winter, and change their color as that of their abiding place is altered. The grouse is as nearly the color of the brown heather as it is possible for a bird to be: his bright eye and red comb are the only discoverable points about him when he is crouched in it. The blackbird's usual haunt is in lower situations, and he delights in the peat moss, where the ground is nearly as black as his own plumage. The patridges and quail are exactly similar in color to the dried grass and stubble, and the quickest eye can seldom see them on the ground when crouched, and not erect or moving about to feed. The pheasant's color very nearly resembles the dead leaves or coppice, which are his favorite haunts. The owl sits securely close to the trunk of a forest tree, her mottled brown plumage being in color very like the bark where she is perched. The peregrine-falcon with her blue grey feathers, can scarcely be distinguished from the lichen-adorned crag where she sits for hours together as motionless as the rock itself. The eagle sits upright on some cliff of the same color as himself, huddled up into a shape which only the experienced eye detects to be that of a bird. The attitudes and figures of the whole tribe of hawks are very striking and characteristic.

THE MAGEE
COOKING STOVE.

The subscriber, having received his Fall stock of Stoves, would especially call the attention of the public to the
MAGEE COOK STOVE,
as the very best Stove yet made, and would invite those about purchasing or exchanging Stoves, to examine this, believing it to be far superior to any other Stove yet invented, the castings being heavier, and the oven larger than usual. The oven plates are covered with plaster, which renders it equal to the old-fashioned brick oven for perfection in baking.

There is a new style and very superior broiler and sad-iron heater combined, by which the odor of broiling meats are prevented from escaping into the room. With the extension top there is a large copper Reservoir for hot water; also a large tin warming-closet attached, in which any article can be kept warm, while the other parts of the Stove are occupied for other purposes.

The arrangements for sifting the coal and cleaning the grate are far superior to those of any other Stove now in use, as no dust can possibly escape into the room, and the shovelling up of the ashes is entirely dispensed with. The fire is regulated in the same manner as in the MAGEE PARLOR STOVE, and can be continued day and night for weeks together, thus saving the expense of re-kindling every day.

For economy, durability, ease of management, cleanliness and perfection in cooking, it cannot be surpassed by any other Stove, as hundreds of families in the city and vicinity, who are now using them, are willing to testify, and speak of them in the highest terms of praise.

We would refer to the following purchasers:

"MAGEE'S PATENT"
VENTILATING & AIR-WARMING
FURNACES.

The subscriber, being the Sole Agent in this vicinity for the manufacture and sale of this valuable Furnace, would ask those about remodelling or erecting buildings to examine this truly valuable invention.

For economy, purity of air and ease of management it has no equal, producing a current of warm air, moist and agreeable;—and as none of the air which comes in contact with the fire-pots is used for respiration, the tendency to produce headaches so much complained of in other Furnaces, is entirely obviated.

The objects aimed at by the constructors of heating apparatus have been to obtain the greatest amount of heat from a given amount of fuel, and to prevent the escape of heat to the smoke pipe or chimney.

To accomplish this many complicated and expensive heating arrangements have been constructed, some possessing but little improvement over former methods, while others may have proved a total failure. The reason for this is obvious. The combustible gases being lighter than the air, pass off into the pipe or chimney without being consumed. This objection, so common in other Furnaces, is obviated in the

MAGEE FURNACE.

The flue or pipe in this Furnace being below the fire-pot, the gases, from their specific gravity, cannot descend, and are burned up by the admission of cold air through the fire-pot, which gives the best attention—and the stock of Horses and Carriages to let has recently been much improved and improved.

This Furnace does away with the great number of pipes and angles for the radiation of heat, which are so liable to fill up and get out of order, thus simplifying, while it increases the surface of radiation.

These Furnaces consume all the coal, make no clinkers, the sifting of coal is entirely dispensed with, and they will save from 30 to 50 per cent. of fuel over common furnaces.

For ease of management, economy and purity of air these Furnaces have no equal. They can be regulated so as to give any amount of heat required, and the fire may be kept the entire season without once going out.

They give entire satisfaction wherever used. We have in store the different sizes, Brick and Portable, to which we invite the attention of those in want of the best Furnace in the world.—And would refer them to the following named gentlemen, who have them now in use:

Samuel Cleaves, Esq.,	Albert R. Hatch, Esq.,
Aaron H. Hill,	Charles H. Mendum,
Henry F. Wendell,	John Sise, and others.

CHEROKEE REMEDY
—AND—
CHEROKEE INJECTION,
Compounded from Roots, Barks & Leaves.

CHEROKEE REMEDY, the great Indian Diuretic, cures all diseases of the urinary organs, such as Incontinence of the Urine, Inflammation of the Bladder, Inflammation of the Kidneys, Stone in the Bladder, Stricture, Gravel, Gleet, Gonorrhœa, and is especially recommended in those cases of Ricer Albus (or Whites in females) where all the old nauseous medicines have failed.

It is prepared in a highly concentrated form, the dose only being from one to two tablespoonfuls three times per day.

It is diuretic and alterative in its action; purifying and cleansing the blood, causing it to flow in all of its original purity and vigor; thus removing from the system all pernicious causes which have induced disease.

CHEROKEE INJECTION is intended as an ally or assistant to the CHEROKEE REMEDY, and should be used in conjunction with that medicine in all cases of Gonorrhœa, Gleet, Fluor Albus or Whites. Its effects are healing, soothing and demulcent; removing all scalding, heat, chordee and pain, instead of the burning and almost unendurable pain that is experienced with nearly all the cheap quack injections.

☞ By the use of the CHEROKEE REMEDY and CHEROKEE INJECTION—the two medicines at the same time—all improper discharges are speedily restored to full vigor and strength.

For full particulars get our pamphlet from any drug store in the country, or write us and we will mail free, to any address, a full treatment.

COURTING.— By Josh Billings.—Courting is a luxary, it is sallad, it is see water, it is a beverdige, it is the pla spell ov the mouf. The man who has never courted haz lived in vain; he has bin a blind man among landskapes and waterskapes; he has bin a duff man in the land ov band orgins, and by the side ov murmuring canoals. Courting iz like 2 little springs ov soft water that steals out from under a rock at the fut of a mountain and run down the hill side by side singing and dansing and spattering each uther, eddying and frothing and kaskading, now hiding under the bank, now full ov sun and now full ov shadder, till bimeby tha jine and then tha go slow. I am in faver ov long courting; it gives the parties a chanse to find out each uther's trump kards, it iz good exercise, and iz just az innersent az 2 merino lambs. Courting iz like strawberries and cream, wants tew be did slow, then yu git the flaver. I hev saw folks git sackquainted, fall in luv, git married, settel down and git tew work, in 3 weeks from date. This iz jist the wa sum folks larn a trade, and akounts for the grate number of shinley mean mechanicks we hav and the poor jobs tha turn out.

Perhaps it iz best i shud state sum good advise tew young men, who are about to court with a final view to matrimony, az it waz.— In the fust plase, young man, yu want tew git yure system awl rite, and then find a yung woman who iz willing tew be courted on the square. The next thing iz, tew find out how old she iz, which yu kan dew bi asking her, and she will az that she iz 19 years old, and this yu will find won't be far from out ov the wa. The next best thing iz tew begin moderate; say onse every nite in the week for the fust six months, increasing the dose az the pashient seems to require it. If iz a fust rate wa tew court the girl's mother a leettle on the sly, for there iz one thing a woman never despizes and that iz, a little good courting, if it iz dun strikly on the square. After the fust year yu will begin tew be well acquainted and will begin tew like the bizzness. Thare iz one thing i alwus advize, and that iz not to swop fotografs oftener than onse in 10 daze, unless yu forgit how the gal looks.

Okasionally yu want tew look sorry and draw in yure wind az the yu had a pane, this will set the gal tew teazing yu tew find out what ails yu. Evening meetings are a good thing tu tend, it will keep yure religion in tune; and then if the gal happens tew be there bi acksident, she kan ask yu tew go hum with her.

Az a gineral thing i wouldn't brag on uther gals mutch when i waz courting, it mite look az tho yu knu tew mutch. If yu will court 3 years in this wa, awl the time on the square, if yu don't sa, it iz a leettle the slickest time in yure life, yu kan git measured for a hat at mi expence, and pa for it. Don't court for munny, nor baty, nor relashuns, theze things are just about az onsartin az the kerosene lile refining bizzness, liabel tew git out ov repair and lust az eenny minit.

Courtsh gal for fun, for the luv yu bear her, for the vartue and bizzness thare iz in her; court her for a wife and for a mother, court her az yu wud court a farm for the strength ov the sile and the parfeckshun ov the title; court her az the she want a fule, and yu another; court her in the kitchen, in the parlor, over the wash-tub, and at the pianner; court this wa, yung man, and if yu don't git a good husband, the falt won't be in the coarting.

Yung man, yu kan rely upon Josh Billings, and if yu kant make theze rules work, jist send for him and he will sho yu how the thing iz did, and it shant kost yu a cent.

Ayer's Ague Cure
For the speedy and certain cure of Intermittent Fever, or Fever and Ague, Remittent Fever, Chill Fever, Dumb Ague, Periodical Headache or Bilious Headache, and all Bilious Fevers; indeed, for the whole class of diseases originating in biliary derangement, caused by the malaria of miasmatic countries.
FEVER AND AGUE is not the only consequence of the miasmatic poison. A great variety of disorders arise from its irritation in malarious districts, among which are Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Gout, Headache, Blindness, Toothache, Earache, Catarrh, Asthma, Palpitation, Painful Affection of the Spleen, Hysterics, Pain in the Bowels, Colic, Paralysis, and Derangement of the Stomach, all of which, when originating in this cause, put on the intermittent type, or become periodical. This "Cure" expels the poison from the blood, and thus cures them all alike. It is not only the most effectual remedy ever discovered for this class of complaints, but it is the cheapest, and, moreover, is perfectly safe. No harm can arise from its use, and the patient when cured is left as healthy as if he had never had the disease. Can this be said of any other cure for Chills and Fever? It is true of this, and its importance to those afflicted with the complaint cannot be over-estimated. So sure is it to cure the Fever and Ague, that it may be truthfully said to be a certain remedy. One healer complains that it is not a good medicine to sell, because one bottle cures a whole neighborhood.
Prepared by J. C. AYER & CO., Lowell, Mass., and sold by Brackett Hutchings, J. H. Thacher, W. R. Preston, David Kimball, and all druggists to those afflicted with the complaint cannot be over-estimated. So sure is it to cure the Fever and Ague, that it may be truthfully said to be a certain remedy. One healer complains that it is not a good medicine to sell, because one bottle cures a whole neighborhood.

American and Foreign Patents.
R. H. EDDY.
SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,
Late Agent of U. S. Patent Office, Washington, (WHERE HE MAY BE FOUND PRIOR TO 1837,)
76 State street, opposite Kilby street,
Boston.
After an extensive practice of upwards of twenty years, continues to procure Patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Bonds Assignments, and all Papers or Drawings for patents, executed on liberal terms, and with dispatch. Researches made into American or Foreign works, to determine the validity or utility of patents or inventions; and legal or other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any Patent furnished by remitting One Dollar. Assignments recorded at Washington.
The Agency is not only the largest in New England, but through its facilities have advantages for securing Patents, or ascertaining the patentability of inventions unsurpassed by, if not immeasurably superior to any which can be offered them elsewhere. The Testimonials below given prove that none is MORE SUCCESSFUL AT THE PATENT OFFICE than the subscriber, and as SUCCESS IS THE BEST PROOF OF ADVANTAGES AND ABILITY, he would add that he has abundant reason to believe, and can prove, beyond question, that the fees of the kind are the charges for professional service so moderate.
The immense practice of the subscriber during twenty years past, has enabled him to accumulate a vast collection of specifications and official decisions relative to patents.
These, besides his extensive library of legal and mechanical works, and full accounts of patents granted in the United States and Europe, render him able, beyond question, to offer superior facilities for obtaining Patents.
All necessity of a journey to Washington, to procure a patent, and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.
TESTIMONIALS.
"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse."
CHARLES MASON,
Commissioner of Patents.
"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a person more competent and trustworthy, and more capable of putting their applications in a form secure for them all early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office."
EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents
Mr. R. H. Eddy has made for me THIRTEEN applications, on all but ONE of which patents have been granted, and that is now pending. Such unmistakable proofs of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend all inventors to apply to him to procure their patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases, and at very reasonable charges."
JOHN TAGGART.
During eight months, the subscriber, in course of his large practice, made on twice rejected applications SIXTEEN APPEALS; EVERY ONE of them was decided in his favor, by the Commissioner of Patents.

MONDAY, NOVEMBER 14TH, 1864.

Thanksgiving in New Hampshire.

GOVERNOR'S PROCLAMATION.

Another year, while it brings the return of that season which our pious ancestors were wont to commemorate by setting apart a day of public thanksgiving, brings also abundant occasion to imitate their example. We have to thank God not only for abundant harvests and exemption from the scourges of pestilence and famine and signal victories with which He has crowned our arms during the past year, and more especially for the invincible loyalty and unwavering devotion of the people of the Northern States. I do, therefore, with the advice and consent of the Executive Council, set apart Thursday the twenty-fourth day of November next, as a day of Public Thanksgiving and Praise; and recommend to the people of New Hampshire on that day to appropriately recognize Jehovah as the giver of all our mercies.

(Signed), J. A. GILMORE.

THE ELECTION.

Gen. Grant has telegraphed to the President congratulating him on his re-election, and declaring that the peaceful election of Tuesday last is equal to a victory in the field.

The Boston Traveller states that Hon. Caleb Cushing voted for Lincoln.

Seven companies (all but one—the Light Battery,) of the 1st N. H. Heavy Artillery, gave Lincoln 601, McClellan 261 votes. Companies A and K voted unanimously for Lincoln. The Monitor has returns from 106 towns of the vote on the Constitutional Convention, which gave 12,210 votes for, 4700 against the proposition; majority in favor 7,510. Several towns failed to vote on the question.

The Union majority in Maine is 2000 larger than it was in September; the aggregate vote is 4000 larger.

The N. Y. World concedes over 2300 majority to Fenton, the Union candidate for Governor of New York, and says every additional return makes the matter worse.

In Ohio the Union men elect 17 of the 19 Congressmen. Illinois elects 9 Union and 3 opposition members of Congress. Two districts are still in doubt.

In Iowa, the majority, including the soldiers' vote, is estimated at 50,000. There are Union gains in every county yet heard from.

The returns received from the West show that the Union majorities are even larger than the estimates. Michigan sends an entire Union delegation to Congress.

The Chicago Tribune says that every Northwestern State has gone largely for Lincoln. This shows how the Great West has been "all on fire for little Mac." The returns from the burnt district are decidedly cheering.

Despatches from the Pacific coast, dated 9th, have been received at St. Louis. San Francisco gives Lincoln 5000 majority. It is estimated that his majority in California will be 25,000. Oregon and Nevada are also claimed for him by 2000 majority each. The estimates made at Harrisburg foot up between 8000 and 10,000 majority for Lincoln in Pennsylvania on the home vote. The Chicago Evening Journal has returns from all but four small counties in Illinois, which foot up a majority for Lincoln of 34,000. The Union men will have a majority of 18 on joint ballot in the Legislature.

NEW HAMPSHIRE ITEMS.

—— Two Amherst hunters, on Saturday night last, shot from one tree, five coons, weighing in all 73 pounds.

—— Mr. Alfred J. Greely, of Lebanon, has been appointed an Acting Assistant Paymaster in the Navy

—— The amount disbursed by the United States Paymaster stationed in Concord, during the months of September and October last, was only a fraction short of two hundred thousand dollars.

—— Hillsborough county seems to have voted pretty strongly to remove the county records from Amherst to Nashua. The vote stands 5442 for, and 1,605 against, the measure.

—— HON. JOHN D. WILLARD, of Troy, N. Y., recently deceased, has left $10,000 to Dartmouth College. He was a graduate of that Institution, of the class of 1819. Another son of the College in Western New York, has lately given $1000 to found a scholarship.

—— The barn attached to the Congregational parsonage in Mason Centre was burnt on Monday night of last week. The parsonage is occupied by the Rev. Daniel Goodwin, who lost his horse, cow and other property. The barn is supposed to have been set on fire.

—— The Union citizens of Dover will celebrate the Union victory in the election, on Tuesday next. There will be a procession, with fireworks, salutes, illuminations, &c. Gen. Burnside, Gen. Marston, Gov. Gilmore and staff, Gov. Andrew, and other distinguished persons are expected to be present.

—Gold 243.

THE REBELLION.

A portion of Gen. A. J. Smith's command has arrived at Paducah. It is reported that Gen. Meredith will be assigned to the command of Kentucky.

Washington, N. C., has been evacuated by the rebels.

The rebels made three attacks on Atlanta on Wednesday, but were driven off, retreating towards Macon. The Cincinnati Gazette has a dispatch from Nashville, Tenn. which denies the reported evacuation of Atlanta by Gen. Sherman and the destruction of the Atlanta and Chattanooga Railroad. The Washington Star says Sherman has been largely reinforced, and is operating in Hood's rear to prevent his retreat South.

The N. Y. Herald's New Orleans correspondence says our gunboats are watching the mouth of the Red River for three formidable rebel rams expected down when the water rises. Jeff. Davis' currency is almost entirely set aside in Texas and gold and silver only are accepted. Kirby Smith stopped 150 car loads of cotton belonging to private individuals, destined for Mexico. Only shipments on rebel account are allowed. At Mobile our gunboats make experiments in shelling the city three hours a day.

We learn from Little Rock, Ark., that on the 23d ult., a small body of Steele's force captured the entire rebel train, consisting of 35 wagons, after four hours hard fighting. Two hundred horses and $11,000 were also captured, and the force guarding the train were scattered in the mountains. This was probably Price's train sent ahead. Price turned westward from Cane Hill, Ark., Nov. 4.

Adm. Porter's expedition against Wilmington has been delayed by the detachment of vessels to cruise after the Tallahassee and other pirates.

The N. Y. Herald's states that Gen. Sheridan on Wednesday issued marching orders to his army, having learned that the rebels had been reinforced and were attempting to flank him, so as to threaten Maryland and Pennsylvania. Sheridan was near Winchester, Early at Newmarket.

By Telegraph—Sunday noon.

Advices from the Army of the Potomac give nothing new. Gen. Banks had a long interview with the President at the War Department on Saturday.

By order of the War Department all furloughs of regimental officers and enlisted men will expire Nov. 14, when they will report at the nearest rendezvous, to be returned to the field.

Exciting rumors are current in New York, relative to the movements of Early's army, but it is known that Sheridan is fully prepared to meet him. Reports are afloat again that Sec. Stanton will resign soon, as his official report is finished, and that the new portfolio has been tendered to Gen. Banks. The latter left for Washington, on a summons from the President. Others assert that Gen. Butler will succeed Stanton. The N. Y. Commercial's dispatch says Gen. Sheridan has handsomely checkmated the movements of Early upon his flank. He has sent him back and prevented his contemplated advance upon the Baltimore & Ohio railroad.

There is no intelligence that the enemy have made any demonstration in the Shenandoah Valley. A gentleman who has just returned from Winchester states that Sheridan has moved his army to Newton, 9 or 10 miles from Winchester, in a southerly direction. The reason of this movement is obvious. Winter is coming on, and if the rebels intend to remain in the Valley, it is doubly advantageous to draw them from their base as far as possible, and at the same time to get nearer our own base of supplies. And if the rebels contemplate another desperate attempt on the Maryland line, as is expected in some quarters, his position will enable Sheridan to take care of them conveniently.

—Lord Lyons is dangerously ill of typhoid fever at Washington.

— An independent battery has been organized at Calais, Me.

— The New York Journal of Commerce has withdrawn from political discussion.

— Sec. Stanton is unable to devote much time to his official duties, by reason of ill-health.

— Portland is grieved because some noble elms in that city, "the most conspicious objects that attracted the eye on entering the harbor," are being wantonly destroyed.

— A fire in Auburn, Me., on Friday morning, destroyed Auburn Hall, with 3 stores, and 2 stores adjoining. Loss estimated at $25,000; insurance $11,000.

— The handsome sum of $32,000 has been raised for the widow and orphan children of the late Gen. Birney. Are Republicans ungrateful?

— The Brazilian Minister for Foreign Affairs considers the conduct of Capt. Collins in seizing the pirate Florida perfectly justifiable. The Florida had violated the laws respecting belligerent ships by making the whole Brazilian coast a base of operations against our commerce.

OUR CITY ELECTION.

Messrs. Editors:—Most of our heaviest tax-payers, probably, would not favor the plan of putting disloyal and restless men into our City Offices,—nor would they favor a general town meeting to nominate ward officers, say selectmen. Take the best qualified loyal men by all means: for this is no time to put traitors where they can do mischief. A WORKING MAN.

Messrs. Editors:—Your correspondent "Citizen" has certainly expressed the views of a large proportion of our tax payers. A few years ago the citizens of Portsmouth petitioned the Legislature for a change in the time of holding the city elections, so as to separate the candidates from politics on the State ticket. It was granted, but the suffering people have always had a batch of politicians given them to be voted for. Let us now have a change. A meeting should be called at once of all parties, and if proper men are selected our city affairs will not long continue to look so unfavorable as at present. The people are in earnest about the matter and the feeling seems to be universal that we should have an entire new board of city officers.

TAX PAYER.

CITY ELECTION.—It is just at hand. Let there be an earnest effort put forth to nominate a ticket which shall not keep many of our best citizens from the polls; for it is a fact that unless there shall be a radical change attempted, and there be put up men of good financial ability and strong influence at home and abroad, the number of voters at the city election will be materially decreased from that of last week. Let us have the next year a city government which shall consist of some of our very best citizens in financial matters, and which shall command the respect of all the good of the community, and fill with wholesome fear the miserable moral vampyres and leeches who now ply their infernal vocations without let or hindrance.

Our city is noted abroad for its unblushing immorality, and the only way for this notoriety to be changed to respect, is to put into office men who shall have moral stamina enough to meet and overthrow at least the open licentiousness and debauchery which confront us at noon and night alike.

Let the suggestion of "citizen" be carried out, and a meeting at once be called, without distinction of party, to nominate an entire new ticket for city officers.

VOTER.

Messrs. Editors:—I am glad to know that some of our citizens are interesting themselves in the subject of our City Election, and that there is a disposition manifested to select the gentlemen who shall conduct our city affairs during the coming year. I say select, because it has apparently occasionally happened in the past that men have been placed in office in our city merely as a recognition of real or imaginary services in behalf of a political party, perhaps confined to a few days before a State or National election; and not because they were qualified for the position by talent, ability, and business capacity. It strikes me that in this matter we should regard talent, ability and business capacity only, and that none but men who have these qualifications should be placed in positions where they will necessarily do so much for the welfare, or the reverse, of our City. It is a matter which comes home to every one of our citizens, and it is a duty which they owe to themselves to see that none but the right men are placed in the right places. Our taxes, State and National, are necessarily heavy; to meet this is burdensome to many of our citizens. It becomes us therefore to see to it that our city expenditures are confined to the lowest possible limits, and that all money appropriated shall be devoted to objects directly beneficial to the city. Small outlays in the aggregate have amounted to large sums in the past: many of these have not been productive of an equivalent return to our citizens, who have somewhat reluctantly footed the bills. To guard against these small outlays, and to cause all larger ones to conduce to the public welfare, we need especially a Board of Aldermen composed of smart, active, energetic business men. Shall we have such? The answer depends upon the PEOPLE.

HALE'S

Honey of Horehound Tar,

For the cure of Coughs, Colds, Influenza, Hoarseness, Difficult Breathing, and all Affections of the Throat, Bronchial Tubes and Lungs, leading to Consumption.

This sovereign remedy is compounded from the favorite recipe of an illustrious Physician and Chemist, who for many years used it with the most complete success in his extensive private practice.

He had long been profoundly impressed with the wonderful virtue of the honey of the plant Horehound, in union with the Cleansing and Healing properties of Tar extracted from the Life Principle of the forest tree Abies Balsamea, or Balm of Gilead. For years he was baffled in his attempts to blend these great medicinal forces into such a union that the original power of each would be preserved, the disagreeable qualities of common tar removed, and the price of the compound be within the means of all. At last after a long course of chemical experiments, he found that by adding to these five other ingredients, each one valuable in itself, he not only obtained the desired results but greatly increased the curative power of the compound. This having been thoroughly tested by practice, is now offered to the general public as a safe, pleasant and infallible remedy.

PRICE, 50 CENTS PER BOTTLE.

"A Wonderful Discovery."

DR. TEBBETTS' "PHYSIOLOGICAL HAIR REGENERATOR" is compounded in strict accordance with the well known laws of Physiology and modern vegetable Chemistry. It is not a "Dye," and will not stain a particle. It will "RESTORE GRAY HAIR" in all cases to its original color. It promotes a luxuriant growth of new HAIR in all cases on BALD HEADS, when the glands or roots of the hair are not completely disorganized. It prevents the hair from falling off and removes all dandruff, heat, humors and itching from the scalp. It keeps the hair soft, moist and perfectly healthy, and gives it a glossy and beautiful appearance. It is highly perfumed, and as a Dressing it has no superior. The "REGENERATOR" is warranted to produce the above results in all cases, if not the money to be refunded. With it every "GRAY HEAD" in New England can be restored in less than sixty days.

ASSIGNMENT BLANKS,

For NEW HAMPSHIRE and MAINE, for sale at the Chronicle office.

Local.

THE NEW CITY ROOMS, in what was formerly (and will still with many continue to be) Jefferson Hall, were thrown open to public inspection on Thursday evening, and were visited by hundreds of citizens. All were delighted and astonished, that so fine and convenient a suite of apartments could have been constructed out of the old rookery, which before wasn't decent quarters for a respectable man's horse. The various offices are sufficiently spacious and well arranged, and the finish and adornments neat and tasteful—the whole thing speaking creditably for the discretion and good taste of the building committee and the designer, (whoever he was, for nobody seems to know.) A good bronzed bust of Webster greets you at the farther end of the hall, as you enter; and handsome cabinet-size photographs of the nine Mayors the City of Portsmouth has had, (mind you don't read that handsome adjective in the wrong place, now,) hang on the walls of the Aldermen's Room.

At the front of the building, is the City Clerk's Room; and from it opens a spacious safe, where for the first time since there were any records of our old town, the public documents are safe from fire—a consummation, the which to attain alone, were worth to the city four times the entire cost of this whole new arrangement, whatever that may be—for the city could ill afford to have those records consumed for $20,000. And Mr. Bennott stated, at the supper, that in the fire in 1813, the precious documents would all have been destroyed but for the thoughtfulness of a single citizen, Mr. Hunking Penhallow.

Not to mention the fact that any City should have at least respectable rooms for the public business,—the other fact that the corporation should also own the premises for such use, is sufficient justification for the expenses incurred, if any justification is needed. Of which we have only to say here and now, that the next move we desire to see somebody make, is for a City Hall proper; and we believe that the people being deprived (?) of the use of this late old den for popular gatherings, will soon have something of the sort more tolerable, somewhere; despite the silly cries of war, taxes and hard times. Why, who that is anybody, wouldn't prefer paying extra taxes, rather than have our city longer disgraced by the sad lack of balls? But we only meant now to speak of the opening of the new Rooms, and the attendant festivities, which were very quiet, simple and appropriate.

The City Government, with a few invited guests, to the number of thirty or forty, sat down to a good Supper at the Rockingham House; and after the due discussion of the material viands,—a little of the literary, historic and social was in order. Mayor Dearborn of course presided, flanked by City Officials and ex-officers; with Judge Bufford for the toast-master. As the affair was neither designed nor carried out in the least degree with any constraint or formality, we shall not attempt any regular detailed report of the exercises.

Supper being over, and "Charlotte Russe" taken care of, by John Hanscom, the Jr. of the Journal, Ald. Rider and others, (there seemed to be no other "ruse" there,) Alderman Rider, of the Building Committee, pronounced the new Rooms completed, and ready for occupancy, and tendered the keys of the same to His Honor the Mayor, with a hope that the premises might long continue to give satisfaction to the City Governments and their constituents.

The Mayor then introduced Charles W. Brewster, Esq., of the Journal, who read a very interesting sketch of the old Jefferson Hall, from its first inception until the present time; and entertained the company for a half hour, with very pleasant discourse on the same, with attendant circumstances—his remarks evincing the industrious research and thorough acquaintance with our local history, for which the speaker is noted among the sons of Portsmouth everywhere. We understand the public are to have the benefit of this production, in the attractive shape of one of the Journal's "Rambles; and we presume also that it will be incorporated into our next City Book.

In response to "the Union of the States," Judge Bufford called up Hon. W. H. Y. Hackett; who was allowed, as was everybody else, to talk to the text or not, as he chose and he did!

For "the President of the United States," Alderman Rider was called upon—and did likewise; not shirking his duty, as all who are acquainted with him, know he never does.

"Enterprise in Portsmouth," or some such startling, unexpected sentiment, was the electric word which woke "the publisher of the Chronicle" into making a few remarks about what he chose, also,—till he was requested by the Toastmaster to stop.

We believe though, after all, that the venerable ex-City Clerk Mr. Bennett, was one of the first speakers; and he responded with feeling, to "the City Government."

William H. Hackett, Esq., President of the Common Council, also made one of his brief and witty after-dinner speeches, in response to we don't know what, and we guess he didn't—but we believe it was, "our next Mayor." At any rate, he wasn't going to allow Judge Bufford to make or have all the fun, and so turned the laugh on him handsomely, as is his wont.

"The Judiciary of Portsmouth" brought up Judge Odell; who, however, in a very irregular manner, turned the case over to City Solicitor Goodall, who took good care of it, as usual with him.

Jos. H. Foster, Esq., of the Com. Council, also said a few agreeable words about something—brevity being the soul of the wit on this occasion, sure.

Ex-Mayor Walker responded pleasantly for "the State of New Hampshire," which was given him; and "the Schools of Portsmouth," which was designed for him, but not announced.

And Alderman Brown got up, just long enough to sit down again. Ald. Broughton and Hadley we believe didn't even do that.

And Mr. Bufford read a very cordial and interesting autograph letter from La Fayette to the Citizens' Committee, inviting him to our city. And he also interspersed the whole exercises with many a smooth and agreeable remark, as he so well knows how. And we don't know but somebody else had a word to say, or didn't have anything to say. Yes, there was our worthy City Treasurer, Col. Lefavour, who always keeps his heart young, and is up to fun anywhere. And if there are any more whom we have omitted—if they will just let us know, we will write them and their sayings and doings, in our book of the Chronicles of this occasion.

But that festive scene was closed in good season—and we must wind up our account of it, for we are writing at 10 o'clock Friday night, and we have got to print our papers in the morning without our chief pressman, and then go up and see that Sailors' Fair—and we only hope they'll use us fair. So good bye, for now. Yours truly, F.

☞ The Manchester Union states that Mr. James Eastman, who was recently a recruiting officer in this city, was assaulted and severely beaten at the railroad station in Manchester, on Wednesday evening last, by a couple of soldiers belonging to the Invalid Corps at Concord. Mr. Eastman had a colored man, a substitute, with him and the soldiers asked him (Eastman) what he was worth. He replied, two white men. Upon this they knocked him down.

☞ Mr. Charles Hurd, of Manchester, lost his pocket-book, containing $300, while on the train from this city for Manchester on Saturday morning. The Mirror says he is altogether too smart to be imposed upon by the light-fingered gentry, and the pocket book must have dropped out of his breast pocket.

☞ The train from Concord for this city on Saturday morning ran over a cow about a mile from Candia, and was thrown from the track. No one was injured, but the train was detained for an hour or two.

☞ The Democratic Congressional Convention for this, the 1st N. H. District, is to meet at Rochester Nov. 24th — Thanksgiving Day.

☞ On and after Monday, Nov. 14, the morning train for Concord will leave this city at half past 5 o'clock, and not at a quarter of six, as heretofore.

SUPREME JUDICIAL COURT.—In the suit Pickering v. Hoyt, Pickering and others, (verdict being rendered for defendants,) the plaintiff has filed exceptions, and the case has been transferred to the law term and continued.

The business of the members of the legal profession seems to have declined, judging from the fact that two of the lawyers in Portsmouth have deemed it expedient to enter suits in their own favor at this term for slander. When a lawyer goes to law, it seems like a doctor taking his own medicine.—Ballot.

SAVE YOUR FUEL:

THE MODEL COOK.

IS, IN FACT,

The Best Stove Out,

for economy, convenience and dispatch.

Many people think it best to use an old stove as long as possible, but it is far better to throw it away and purchase a MODEL COOK, than to keep it at the present high price of fuel.

One of our shrewdest citizens who purchased a MODEL COOK STOVE a year since, says he has saved more than its cost already.

A careful, prudent farmer purchased one, and after it had been in operation some days his son came into the store and said, "something was wrong at their house;" his father and himself used wood off the same pile, he burned three baskets full a day, and his father only one! We sold him a Stove before he left, and there has been no complaint since.

These Stoves are in use in many hotels and boarding houses, and in hundreds of private families in this city and vicinity, and give the best of satisfaction.

PRICES REDUCED.

The subscriber has reduced the prices of the Model Cook Stoves FIVE DOLLARS each, to conform to the decline in gold.

Morning Chronicle.

THE ALPS.—At first, I believe, the Alps disappoint travellers. They expect something up in the skies, and are surprised to find that they can look at the highest summits without sticking their chins up into the air. That the range crossed by the Simplon and St. Gothard roads! Pheugh! And they sneeze at it with great disdain. But they approach, and the great features grow; they lose sight of the summits; they mount; at last they begin to descend; but still the hills shut them in, and at last, when they issue in the plains of Italy and look back at the jagged ridge which shows itself against the sky, and remember the hours of wind and snow they spent in passing them, though by the easiest, simplest road, they pay a late tribute of complimentary retrospect to the loftiest mountain range in Europe.

A POOR INVESTMENT.—The McClellan men spent in Massachusetts during the recent campaign in torch light demonstrations, public meetings, paying tax bills, printing and other necessary expenses, probably not less than ONE HUNDRED THOUSAND DOLLARS.

They can foot up as the sum total of the profits of their investment, SIX REPRESENTATIVES, elected in the three Irish wards of Boston, which were certain to be carried by them at the outset. Rather a poor result for the investment of so much capital. Boston Journal.

Some admirers of Rossini in a small Italian town some time since resolved to erect a statue to his honor, but could only raise 1,200 francs, besides a pedestal, which one individual had given. So they went to Rossini to know what was to be done with the money. "You want a statue," said he, thoughtfully; "and you have, it seems, only got as far as the pedestal." "Yes, Illustrissimo, that is our case." "And you have 1,200 francs besides toward your object?" The committee bowed their acquiescence. "Give me the money, then, and I'll stand on the pedestal half an hour next Tuesday. I must leave on Wednesday, or I'd repeat the performance."

THE MAGEE COOKING STOVE.

The subscriber, having received his Fall stock of Stoves, would especially call the attention of the public to the

MAGEE COOK STOVE,

as the very best Stove yet made, and would invite those about purchasing or exchanging Stoves, to examine this, believing it to be far superior to any other Stove yet invented, the castings being heavier, and the oven larger than usual. Its oven plates are covered with plaster, which renders it equal to the old-fashioned brick oven for perfection in baking.

There is a new style and very superior broiler and sad-iron heater combined, by which the odor of broiling meats are prevented from escaping into the rooms. With the extension top there is a large copper Reservoir for hot water; also a large tin warming-closet attached, in which any article can be kept warm, while the other parts of the Stove are occupied for other purposes.

The arrangements for sifting the coal and cleaning the grate are far superior to those of any other Stove now in use, as no dust can possibly escape into the room, and the shoveling up of the ashes is entirely dispensed with. The fire is regulated in the same manner as in the MAGEE PARLOR STOVE, and can be continued day and night for weeks together, thus saving the expense of re-kindling every day.

For economy, durability, ease of management, cleanliness and perfection in cooking, it cannot be surpassed by any other Stove, as hundreds of families in this city and vicinity, who are now using them, are willing to testify, and speak of them in the highest terms of praise.

We would refer to the following purchasers:

"MAGEE'S PATENT"
VENTILATING & AIR-WARMING
FURNACES.

The subscriber, being the Sole Agent in this vicinity for the manufacture and sale of the valuable Furnace, would ask those about remodelling or erecting buildings to examine this truly valuable invention.

For economy, purity of air and ease of management it has no equal, producing a current of warm air, moist and agreeable;—and as none of the air which comes in contact with the fire-pots is used for respiration, the tendency to produce headache so much complained of in other furnaces, is entirely obviated.

The objects aimed at by the constructors of heating apparatus have been to obtain the greatest amount of heat from a given amount of fuel, and to prevent the escape of heat to the smoke pipe or chimney.

To accomplish this many complicated and expensive heating arrangements have been constructed, some possessing but little improvement over former methods, while many have proved a total failure. The reason for this is obvious. The combustible gases being lighter than the air, go off into the pipe or chimney without being consumed. This objection, so common in other furnaces, is obviated in the

MAGEE FURNACE.

The flue or pipe in this Furnace being below the fire-pot, the gases, from their specific gravity, cannot descend, and are burned up by the admission of cold air through the fire-pot, which ignites them as they pass off from the coal, thus saving at least 30 per cent. of the properties of the heat in the fuel.

No heating apparatus with the smoke-pipe of flue on the top of the cone can be made to consume the gases of the coal, as they pass off with a large amount of the heat generated, making the chimney the hottest part of your dwelling.

This Furnace does away with the great number of pipes and angles for the radiation of heat, which are so liable to fill up and get out of order, thus simplifying, while it increases the surface of radiation.

These Furnaces consume all the coal, make no clinkers, the sifting of coal is entirely dispensed with, and they will save from 30 to 50 per cent. of fuel over common Furnaces.

For ease of management, economy and purity of air these Furnaces have no equal. They can be regulated so as to give any amount of heat required, and the fire may be kept the entire season without once going out.

They give entire satisfaction wherever used. We have in store the different sizes, Brick and Portable, to which we invite the attention of those in want of the best Furnace in the world,—and would refer them to the following named gentlemen, who have them now in use:

Samuel Cleaves, Esq.,	Albert R. Hatch, Esq.,
Aaron H. Hill,	Charles H. Mendum,
Henry F. Wendell,	John Sise, and others.

— 1 8 divorces were decreed by the Supreme Court at New Bedford, Mass., on Friday.

— A Signora Garibaldi, who claims to be a niece of him of the red shirt, is giving concerts in London.

— Only 18,000 coal miners are on a strike in the district in England, known as the "Black Country."

— During the three past months 1068 patents have been issued. Pretty lively for wartimes.

— The almost incredible statement is made in an English paper that forty tons of iron rust were recently scraped from the great iron tubular railroad bridge over the Menai Straits.

— Said a crazy woman of a penurious and stingy man, "Do you see that man? You could blow his soul through a hum bird's quill into a mosquito's eye, and the mosquito wouldn't wink!"

— The thrush, blackbird, skylark, starling, chaffinch, various genera of sparrows, and the wild duck, are already domesticated in Australia through the efforts of the Acclimatization Society of Victoria.

— There is a church edifice in Ireland in which public service is maintained at an expense of £400, in which the curate and the clerk are often the only persons present during divine service.

— Members of the Georgia Historical Society steal the books of that institution. The librarian, one Cann, rebukes this reprehensible practice, and begs for the return of the missing volumes.

— On Monday last, as Tobias Littlefield of Dexter, Me., was driving a young cow across the bridge in that place, she became frightened, and threw Mr. Littlefield down with such force as to break his neck, causing instant death.

—"G. W. B." states in the N. Y. Tribune that there is not an accurate map in existence of any State in this Union, excepting Massachusetts, for the simple reason that there never have been any accurate surveys.

— The directors of some of the London railways have brought suits against passengers for leaving the cars before the train comes to a "stand still." Recently a lady and gentleman were fined each ten shillings and costs for violating this law.

— A girl who recently advertised for a situation as a barmaid or waitress in a refreshment saloon, says she can cut 225 pieces of bread of satisfactory appearance, out of one pound of bread, and butter them with two ounces of butter.

— Members of the South Carolina Legislature are notified by advertisements in the Charleston papers that they can pay their hotel bills "in kind," such as "bacon, lard, hams, butter, eggs, corn, chickens, turkeys, &c., for all of which full market prices will be allowed."

Ayer's Ague Cure
For the speedy and certain cure of Intermittent Fever, or Fever and Ague, Remittent Fever, Chill Fever, Dumb Ague, Periodical Headache or Bilious Headache, and Bilious Fevers; indeed, for the whole class of diseases originating in biliary derangement, caused by the miasma of miasmatic countries.

FEVER AND AGUE is not the only consequence of the miasmatic poison. A great variety of disorders arise from its irritation in malarious districts, among which are Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Gout, Headache, Blindness, Toothache, Earache, Catarrh, Asthma, Palpitation, Painful Affection of the Spleen, Hysteria, Pain in the Bowels, Colic, Paralysis, and Derangement of the Stomach, all of which, when originating in this cause, put on the form of periodical, or intermittent. This "Cure" expels the poison from the blood, and thus cures them all alike. It is not only the most effectual remedy ever discovered for this class of complaints, but it is the cheapest, and, moreover, is perfectly safe. No harm can arise from its use, and the patient when cured is left as healthy as if he had never had the disease. Can this be said of any other cure for Chills and Fever? It is true of this, and its importance to those afflicted with the complaint cannot be overestimated. So sure is it to cure the Fever and Ague, that it may be truthfully said to be a certain remedy. One Dollar compliments that; it is not a good medicine to sell, because one bottle cures a whole neighborhood.

American and Foreign Patents.
R. H. EDDY.
SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,
Late Agent of U. S. Patent Office, Washington, (UNTIL 1857,)
76 State street, opposite Kilby street,
Boston.
After an extensive practice of upwards of twenty years, continues to secure Patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Bonds Assignments, and all Papers for Drawings for Patents, executed on liberal terms, and with despatch. Researches made into American or Foreign works, to determine the validity or utility of patents or inventions—and legal or other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any Patent furnished by remitting Ten Dollars. Assignments recorded at Washington.
The Agency is not only the largest in New England, but through it inventors have advantage for securing Patents, or ascertaining the patentability of inventions unsurpassed by, if not immeasurably superior to, any which can be offered them elsewhere The Testimonials below given prove that none is MORE SUCCESSFUL AT THE PATENT OFFICE than the subscriber, and as SUCCESS IS THE BEST PROOF OF ADVANTAGES AND ABILITY, he would add that he has abundant reason to believe, that on prove, that no other office of the kind are the charges for professional service so moderate.
The immense practice of the subscriber during twenty years past, has enabled him to accumulate a vast collection of specifications and official decisions relative to patents.
These, together with the extensive library of legal and mechanical works, and full accounts of patents granted in the United States and Europe, render him able, beyond question, to offer superior facilities for obtaining Patents.
All necessity of a journey to Washington, to procure a patent, and the usual great delay thereby, are here saved inventors
TESTIMONIALS
"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse."
CHARLES MASON,
Commissioner of Patents.
"I have no hesitation in recommending inventors that they can not employ a person more competent and trustworthy, and more capable of putting their applications in form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office."
EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents
Mr. R. H Eddy has made for me THIRTEEN applications, on all but ONE of which patents have been granted, and that is now pending. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend all inventors to apply to him to procure their patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases, and at very reasonable charges."
JOHN TAGGART.
During eight months, the subscriber, in course of his legal practice, made on twice rejected applications STRIKING APPEALS, EVERY ONE of whom was decided in his favor, by the Commissioner of Patents.

Portsmouth, N. H.

TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 15TH, 1864.

THE SAILORS' FAIR,—that is, the Fair for the founding of a Home for poor, sick and lame Jack,—now being held in Boston, is a magnificent success; far eclipsing even the famous Sanitary Fair held not long since. It is called a National affair—and in its object is eminently so, as in its beneficent results it will also be. But Massachusetts has done most of it; and munificent Boston and vicinity the larger share of all, by far. Little New Hampshire responds nobly—and on a visit of a few hours, Saturday, we felt proud that the patriotic and public-spirited exertions of a few ladies in our own city, made so creditable a comparative display there; and every Son of Portsmouth, whether residents of this city or Boston, should feel a personal family interest in the matter, and exert themselves as much that the table bearing the proud name of the Granite State's only seaport be well cleared, as her daughters have to load it so profusely with beautiful and useful articles.

We do not design giving the least detailed report of this immense bazaar of beauty, skill and art; but only to make a few random remarks, suggested as we passed among the witching wonders. Besides what Boston has done, the rich towns in her suburbs — Cambridge, Newton, Roxbury, Lynn, Salem, &c., with several others have tables of their own filling—as also have Lowell, and New Bedford. We believe there are no tables from outside of Massachusetts except those from New Hampshire, (Manchester, Concord and Dover,) from Portsmouth, and Philadelphia. Though, with no list before us, we may have overlooked or omitted some. And Portsmouth boys, old and young, ought certainly to see to it that the girls' efforts in this matter shall be well seconded.—Of course there are numerous and valuable contributions from other places which are merged in the general abundance.

The superb Boston Theatre is the scene of this splendid display; and, viewed from the upper galleries, the spectacle presented, spread out far below, is brilliant and beautiful in the extreme—the rich and tasteful decorations proper, and the not less rich or less tasteful decorative display of counters crowded with fancy fabrics and manufactures, could but remind an enthusiastic, appreciative spectator of a vision of the field of the cloth of gold. The circular form and elegant finish of the spacious and lofty building, the gaily dressed and lively crowds thronging the floor and galleries, the music of Gilmore's Band and thousands of voices chatting merrily—make up one of the liveliest of scenes imaginable.

To get into this enchanted ground, only costs you a dollar; you will be lucky if you come out for less than twenty—no, rather say you would be unlucky, for if it ever was more blessed to give than to receive, this must be one of the occasions. We shall consider that we got our money's worth, at any rate, whether they send us down any of those tempting raffled articles or not. And raffling is a very prominent feature of the Fair, and the most popular one, too, as games of chance, under some form or other,—business or play—are with almost every human being, let them think and talk as they will about "lotteries." And whoever denounces them, when rightly conducted, simply condemns all business, except possibly the most primitive exchange trading, and would kill all "enterprise" and put an end to all insurance. No, to a right-minded person, there can be no harm in "a lot which is cast into the lap, and the disposal thereof left with God"—more especially when all the money he invests goes to a good cause, whether he ever gets any direct return from it otherwise or not.

But we can only advise every one who can, to visit the Fair—undoubtedly the finest ever held in New England. It will close on Saturday next, and we hope may net a quarter of a million for its eminently worthy object.

We omitted to say before, that one of the prominent objects of interest is the little Kearsage built at our Navy Yard, as was also her world-wide celebrated namesake; which miniature is up in a raffle of 500 tickets at $1.

The miniature Monitor, and the mammoth white ox Gen. Grant given to President Lincoln by Carlos Peirce of Boston, and by him presented to the Fair—are both exhibited under tents on the Common.

There are amateur theatricals given in the Melodeon, concerts on the great organ at Music Hall; a refreshment room at the Fair, where there are the "prettiest waiter girls" you ever saw; and a thousand and one things to delight the eye and the ear. O, you'd better go to Boston this week, we tell you. F.

— Adm. Paulding has ordered that no officers shall be absent after sunset from vessels lying off Brooklyn Yard, and that no boats shall be allowed to leave between sunset and sunrise.

THE SOVERIGN STATES.

A DIALOGUE.

N. Y. Day Book.— It should always be borne in mind that each one of the States composing the Federal Union is a "free, sovereign and independent State," and has been known and recognized as such by all the world, since 1783.

Uncle Toby.— Not true: false, utterly false.—No nation abroad has ever made a treaty with any single state, made war upon it, or peace with it.

D. B.— In the "treaty of amity and commerce" between France and the United States in 1778, that brought to the States the assistance of the French, the thirteen States were each one of them named.

U. T.—Exactly so: they were then a mere confederacy of united colonies, fighting for the power to be States,—and as they named themselves in this peculiar form, so their friends in France named them; but France always treated them as a whole: not as thirteen disconnected parts.

D. B.—It was the same in the treaty of peace with Great Britain; "His Britannic Majesty acknowledges the said United States, viz. New Hampshire, Massachusetts Bay, Rhode Island, &c., &c., to be free, sovereign and independent States: that he treats with them as such, and for himself, his heirs and successors, relinquishes all claims to the government, property and territorial rights of the same, and every part thereof." It will be seen here that the United States are not treated with as "one nation," but as a confederation of "free, sovereign and independent States."

U. T.—Don't see it.—It is nothing more nor less than King George's quit claim deed, in which he lets them all go in a lump, or a heap, or any way they choose to call it. But he treated with them as one nation and not as thirteen powers. If he had held Carolina and let Massachusetts go, that might have been recognizing State Rights of the modern kind. The several States were, however, then, Independent Sovereignties, with the exception of a few powers delegated to Congress, by their Articles of Confederation.

D. B.—Lincoln denies what even George III. conceded, and therefore, without even the pretext that he had, now stands in the exact position of that hated monarch.

U. T.—This is another falsehood, utter and entire, made to deceive the ignorant readers of the Day Book before the late election. George 3d conceded to the Colonies what they claimed, viz. that they were indepent of him, and Sovereign in themselves,—but whether individual or collective he neither knew nor cared. These thirteen sovereignties, however, found it impossible to go on in so loose a way,—and therefore they formed the Union, in which every State resigned the Supreme Sovereignty into the hands of the General Government,—and made its edicts the supreme law of the land, "any thing in the Constitution or laws of any State to the contrary notwithstanding."

King George assented to the facts as they were then!—The Union was not then a fact,—but it is now. King George is dead:—Abraham Lincoln lives, and is President of the United States, as they are now—one nation. U. T.

MARINE DISASTERS.—There was a terrific hurricane at Calcutta Oct. 5th. Of 200 ships in the Hooglev 19 were totally lost, and of the remainder only 20 were reported seaworthy. One hundred and fifty were driven from their moorings, stranded and damaged. It is believed that a greater portion of their cargoes will be saved. There was no serious loss of European lives. There was much excitement at Lloyds in view of the heavy losses. The American ships Loochow and Singapore were totally wrecked, the Dirigo almost wrecked, the Red Rose, Southampton, Richard Busteed, Hindustan, Western Star, Empire, Southern Cross, Eastern Belle, Continental, Southern Belle, Leonide and Harry Warren were more or less damaged. Paris papers say 12,000 persons were drowned.

THE CAPTURE OF THE FLORIDA.—The London papers are excited over the capture of the Anglo-rebel pirate Florida. The Morning Herald editorially denounces it. The Times says her capture in the harbor of a friendly State was an act of simple piracy. When within a neutral port she should have been perfectly safe. The Herald says if the Washington Government does not release the prize, all maritime powers have the right to interfere. What shall we say, when the pirate is built at, fitted out in, and sails from, "the harbor of a friendly State?" Have all maritime powers the right to interfere then? Or must "friendly" States manifest their friendship by aiding the rebels only?

— The table of contents for the November number of the U. S. Service Magazine, is as follows: The Red River Campaign; A New Gunpowder; Popular Extravagance; Enigma; How we got Supper; Early Lake Navigation; Our Poor Mother Tongue; Love and Loyalty—No. IV; "Keep Step with the Music of the Union," &c.

— The price of the American Agriculturist has been raised to $1.50 a year—four copies, $5, 10 copies, $12, 20 or more copies, $1.00 each. The editor offers $200 in prizes for essays on flax and hop culture—the essays to be presented before the 15th of January.

ITEMS—NEW AND OLD.

— Sec. Stanton is better.

— Over six million pounds of maple sugar were manufactured in Ohio this year.

— The rebel Sec. of War is in favor of arming the slaves.

— John Leech, the celebrated Punch caricaturist, is dead.

— Grau has leased three opera houses for the season—Chicago, St. Louis and Cincinnati.

— The receipts of the National Sailors' Fair, last week, from all sources, were nearly $19,000 a day.

— Lieut. Governor Jacobs, of Kentucky, has gone to Washington in charge of United States officers as a political prisoner.

— A little girl, residing in Wisconsin, was strangled to death a few days ago, in endeavoring to swallow a raw oyster.

— The Bowery Boy's advice—if you want to enjoy life, drop poetry and gals altogether, and join a fire company.

— Hamilton E. Towle has just been awarded $15,000 damages against the Great Eastern steamship.

— The American people will stand by the Government as long as the Government stands by the flag.

— Twenty wild animals of various kinds from India, for a menagerie, arrived at Boston, on Saturday.

— The English journals unanimously concur in the verdict against Muller. The execution is fixed for Nov. 15.

— A country magistrate in England recently sentenced a boy to six months' imprisonment with hard labor, for stealing six walnuts from a tree.

— It is stated that the steamer Laurel, from Liverpool, transferred a crew and arms and ammunition to the new Alabama off Madeira.

— About 400 poor families of Vienna intend to emigrate to Mexico, and a subscription is taken up in the Austrian capital to defray their expenses.

— The U. S. steamer Sacramento arrived at Cowes, Oct. 31, to tranship some invalids on board the Borussia for New York.

— The rebel Sec. of War, in his report, recommends the rebel Congress to place every white male person, from 18 to 60, in the army, without regard to any profession or occupation.

— The German Legal Protection Society, of London, is preparing a memorial to the Crown, on behalf of Muller, on the ground of not being satisfied with the evidence.

— A yacht containing a party on a pleasure excursion to Chesapeake Bay, was upset by a squall in Delaware Bay on Saturday night, and nine of the party were drowned.

— A man, giving his name as George Peterson, a supposed rebel spy or mail carrier, was recently arrested at Alexandria Va., while trying to pass our lines, having been tracked from Canada by detectives.

— Not one solitary instance can be found, either in English history or in American history, in which a party ever acquired power by working against a war in which the nation was once fairly embarked.

— According to the Commercial Bulletin's list there are no less than two hundred and ninety different Petroleum companies, having offices in New York, Philadelphia, Pittsburg and Boston.

— At latest dates the Allies had silenced the Japanese forts and forced a passage through the Straits of Simonoseki with trifling loss. The Japanese had sued for peace.

— One of the unexploded shells at Pilot Knobb, Mo., a few days ago came into possession of a party of four children, one of whom attempted to extract the fuse by driving it out with a hammer. He exploded the shell in his effort, killing himself and two of his playmates instantly, and mortally wounding the other.

— The vote to put Joseph Story Fay on the committee of arrangements of the Board of Trade, of Boston, for the reception of Capt. Winslow, was reconsidered, on the ground that one who had put his flag at half mast on the Fourth of July ought not to be allowed to represent the merchants of Boston on such an occasion.

— The doctors of Hanover County, Virginia, announce the following as their new tariff of fees: Thirty dollars per visit for all distances of five miles, and under; all distances over five miles, an additional fee of two dollars per mile; night visits double that of a day visit; consultation fee, forty dollars; visit, extra; obstetrical cases, one hundred dollars each.

— A returned soldier in Chicago, who had both legs shot away, was robbed last week by his wife. She took $700 of his money and his uniform, and decamped, but she was over-hauled. She had conceived irrepressible dislike for her maimed lord, and had demanded a division of the effects; this he refused, and she then decided to appropriate all.

THE ELECTION.

Abraham Lincoln has 213 electorial votes against 21 for George B. McClellan. He has carried 21 States against 3 for George B. McClellan. He has a popular majority of nearly, if not quite, 400,000.—Such a preponderence of popular sentiment is unexampled since the re-election of James Monroe, forty-four years ago, by an electoral vote of two hundred and twenty-eight votes to one.

Mr. Lincoln is the first President since Gen. Jackson, upon whom the people have conferred the honors of a second term. Previous to Jackson four Presidents had been thus honored; Washington, Jefferson, Madison and Monroe. Van Buren was run for a second term but defeated by Gen. Harrison.

Gen. Grant's dispatch relatative to the election was sent to the Sec. of War on the 10th, and was as follows: "Enough now seems to be known to say who is to hold the reins of government for the next four years. Congratulate the President for me, for the double victory. The election having passed off quietly—no bloodshed or riot throughout the land—is a victory worth more to the country than a battle won. Rebeldom and Europe will so construe it."

The N. Y. World of Saturday says: "We give it up. We have lost the State, both on the electoral vote and on Governor. Every additional return makes the matter worse."

24 counties in California give Lincoln 13,266 majority. Three Union Members of Congress were elected.

Oregon has gone for Lincoln by from 1500 to 2000.

Nevada elects the Union State Government and Congressmen by 3000 majority.

— The officers of the Fifth corps of the Army of the Potomac are now in session to decide upon the battles which shall be inscribed upon their flag, and it appears they find it no easy task to make a selection, as the regiments comprising the corps have participated in no less than eighty-six general engagements, and no flag can possibly hold them all.

HALE'S
Honey of Horehound Tar,

For the cure of Coughs, Colds, Influenza, Hoarseness, Difficult Breathing, and all Affections of the Throat, Bronchial Tubes and Lungs, leading to Consumption.

This sovereign remedy is compounded from the favorite recipe of an illustrious Physician and Chemist, who for many years used it with the most complete success in his extensive private practice.

He had long been profoundly impressed with the wonderful virtue of the honey of the plant Horehound, in union with the Cleansing and Healing properties of Tar extracted from the Life Principle of the forest tree Abies Balsamea, or Balm of Gilead. For years he was baffled in his attempts to blend these great medicinal forces into such a union that the original power of each would be preserved, the disagreeable qualities of common tar removed, and the price of the compound be within the means of all. At last after a long course of chemical experiments, he found that by adding to these free other ingredients, each one valuable in itself, he not only obtained the desired results but greatly increased the curative power of the compound. This having been thoroughly tested by practice, is now offered to the general public as a safe, pleasant and infallible remedy.

PRICE, 50 CENTS PER BOTTLE.

"A Wonderful Discovery."

DR. TEBBETS' "PHYSIOLOGICAL HAIR REGENERATOR" is compounded in strict accordance with the well known laws of Physiology and modern vegetable Chemistry. It is not a "Dye," and will not stain a particle. It will "RESTORE GRAY HAIR" in all cases to its original color. It promotes a luxuriant growth of new Hair in all cases on BALD HEADS, when the glands or roots of the hair are not completely disorganized. It prevents the hair from falling off and removes all dandruff, heat, humors and itching from the scalp. It keeps the hair soft, moist and perfectly healthy, and gives it a glossy and beautiful appearance. It is highly perfumed, and as a Dressing it has no superior. The "REGENERATOR" is warranted to produce the above results in all cases, if not the money to be refunded. With it every "GRAY HEAD" in New England can be restored in less than sixty days.

Mr. George Bachelder, Mr. George West, and Mr. Howard Hobbs have been recently appointed conductors on the Eastern Railroad. These three gentlemen have been many years employed on this road as baggage-masters, and, having won the confidence of their employers and the public, are well deserving the important positions bestowed upon them. We have no doubt the public will be well satisfied with their promotion. The Eastern Railroad is under excellent management, and the travel over it has been much increased the past year. Its stock, also, has rapidly increased in value, and the new depots in Boston and Portsmouth are a great convenience to passengers. Boston Post.

THE REBELLION.

Gen. Hancock's wound disabling him from active service at present, he has left the Army of the Potomac, and it is stated has been placed in command of the Washington defences.

The latest military rumor sends Sheridan and his cavalrymen back to the James river, to assist in the next movement on Richmond.

Comm'r Macomb, on taking possession of Plymouth, N. C., after its evacuation by the Confederates, found in the works 40 pieces of heavy and 12 pieces of light artillery, together with a large number of small arms. One of the enemy's magazines had been blown up by shells from our fleet, and its explosion set fire to the town and all the buildings in Water street are destroyed. The town is now held by our gunboats and a small land force under Col. Wardrop.

Com'r Macomb's official report of the capture of Plymouth mentions twenty-two cannon, many small arms, and a large amount of ammunition, besides many prisoners, captured. The official inspection of the ram Albemarle shows her machinery to be completely submerged, and the entire top casemate blown off. She lies on the bottom of the river. One of her guns was still above water. Her commander's report to the rebel Secretary of the Navy shows great consternation among the chivalry of Plymouth at her blowing up.

Gen. Schofield, with 1700 troops, has arrived at Johnsonville, and that place is regarded as secure.

The Governor of Georgia in his message strongly complains of Jeff. Davis for failure to defend Georgia against Gen. Sherman's army. He considers the capture of Atlanta a severe blow to the rebel cause. He observes with dread the fearful strides the South is making toward centralized government. Though anxious for peace, he is opposed to separate State action, and thinks no State can honorably withdraw without the consent of the others, but favors a convention of all the States. He says the tender of such a proposition to the Government of the United States would incur no sacrifice of dignity.

Last Friday the rebel cavalry appeared in front of Gens. Custar and Merritt, apparently to feel Sheridan's strength in his new position at Kearstown, four miles south of Winchester. On Saturday morning, Gen. Powell's division advanced against them, and they were driven back with severe loss. They retreated in great haste, and were pursued through Front Royal. Powell's men captured two guns and one hundred and fifty prisoners, several wagons and a large number of horses. Our losses were considerable, the fighting being close and of a warm character. Nothing but cavalry were engaged.

Richmond papers of the 11th urge their readers to be prepared for startling news from Sherman, and apparently have, already, intelligence from him which they are suppressing.

Hill of Dover delivered the annual sermon. Rev. Dr. C. W. Flanders of Concord presented the annual essay.

—— The Nashua Telegraph states that the Nashua Iron Company is alive with activity, and the amount of work turned out is much greater than at any former period of the company's existence. Not less than ten tons of iron pass through the furnaces daily, and the monthly value of the manufactures is sixty-five or seventy thousand dollars. Among the specimens of work just receiving the finishing touch are a ponderous crank-shaft, weighing seven tons, for the steam-sloop Pensacola, and another shaft for the frigate Franklin at Portsmouth, weighing eleven tons. These are grand pieces of workmanship, and go far to prove that Iron is King after all. Besides having a great amount of other work in process of manufacture, the company is turning out a large number of locomotive tires and cranks, axles and shafting for the machine shops at Lowell, Manchester and elsewhere. The number of hands employed in the works is about 200, and the monthly pay roll amounts to $8000. The workmen are paid all the way from eight shillings to eight dollars per day. About twenty five tons of coal are consumed each day. The capital of the Company is $125,000.

He is the happiest who does most to make others happy. The inventor of Herrick Allen's Gold Medal Saleratus must be the happiest man in existence, for we hazard nothing in saying that the use of the Gold Medal Saleratus cannot fail to make a happy household. Our better half says she does not fear of our ever frowning, as long as she can get the genuine Herrick Allen's. We say success to the inventor, and if everybody knew how good it is, no other would be used. A good many of our Merchants have it. Their depot is 112 Liberty Street, New York.

☞ Special attention is asked to Hunnewell's preparations, advertised on our inside columns. They are based on true medical laws, used very largely by Physicians, and most undoubted testimonials are in the hands of the proprietor, always open to inspection. Let Portsmouth and its vicinity bear testimony by a confidence to test them, which will be sacred.

The venerable Mrs. Partington once asked us if we believed that everything was foreordained before hand in advance. We were compelled to answer that sometimes we did and sometimes we didn't. She remarked that her son Isaac says he knows one thing was foreordained sure, and that is, that the J. Monroe Taylor Gold Medal Soap will supersede and run out every other kind of soap made. The old lady further remarked, that she believed so to, and was sure that there was no other so good, for she had tried it. 28

THE MODEL COOK.

IS, IN FACT,

The Best Stove Out,

for economy, convenience and dispatch.

Many people think it best to use an old stove as long as possible, but it is far better to throw it away and purchase a MODEL COOK, than to keep it at the present high price of fuel.

One of our shrewdest citizens who purchased a MODEL COOK STOVE a year since, says he has saved more than its cost already.

A careful, prudent farmer purchased one, and after it had been in operation some days his son came into the store and said, "something was wrong at their house;" his father and himself used wood off the same pile, he burned three baskets full a day, and his father only one! We sold him a Stove before he left, and there has been no complaint since.

These Stoves are in use in many hotels and boarding houses, and in hundreds of private families in this city and vicinity, and give the best of satisfaction.

PRICES REDUCED.

The subscriber has reduced the prices of the Model Cook Stoves FIVE DOLLARS each, to conform to the decline in gold.

Phrases such as camps may teach,
Sabre cuts of Saxon speech,
Such as "Bully!" "Them's the peach!"
"Wade in, Sanitary!"

Right and left the cannons drew,
As the car went lumbering through,
Quick succeeding in review
Squadrons military—
Sunburnt men, with beards like frieze,
Smooth-faced boys, and cries like these:
"U. S. San. Com." "That's the cheese!"
"Pass in, Sanitary!"

In such a cheer it struggled on,
Till the battle front is won;
Then the car, in journey done,
Lo! was stationary,
And where bullets whistling fly,
Came the sudden, faltering cry,
"Help us, brothers! ere we die;
Save us, Sanitary!"

Such the work. The phantom flee,
Wrapped in battle-clouds that rise;
But the brave's dying smile
Veiled and vicissitary!
See the jasper gates swing wide,
See the parted ranks of angels—
Hear a voice to those that ride—
"Pass in, Sanitary."

☞ The Newburyport Herald on election morning said: "Of late the Democratic party has absolutely wilted here. Three months ago they would have carried two-thirds of the votes; and now it will be about as strong the other way. Some of the most substantial men in the city have changed, and others will not vote." The result was in accordance with this view. The cause of the change was, as we suppose, the discovery of the numerous treasonable and villainous plots of the opposition leaders in New York, at the West, and all over the country. Intelligent and decent men could not uphold them.

— A contemporary says it is quite in love with a fellow who took a twenty cent cigar from his mouth, to grumble at paying five cents for an evening paper.

THE MAGEE
COOKING STOVE.

The subscriber, having received his Fall stock of Stoves, would especially call the attention of the public to the
MAGEE COOK STOVE,
as the very best Stove yet made, and would invite those about purchasing or exchanging Stoves, to examine this, believing it to be far superior to any other Stove yet invented, the castings being heavier, and the oven larger than usual. The oven plates are covered with plaster, which renders it equal to the old-fashioned brick oven for perfection in baking.
There is a new style and very superior broiler and sad iron heater combined, by which the odor of broiling meats are prevented from escaping into the room. With the extension top there is a large copper Reservoir for hot water; also a large tin warming-closet attached, in which any article can be kept warm, while the other parts of the Stove are occupied for other purposes.
The arrangements for sifting the coal and cleaning the grate are far superior to those of any other Stove now in use, as no dust can possibly escape into the room, and the shoveling up of the ashes is entirely dispensed with. The fire is regulated in the same manner as in the MAGEE PARLOR STOVE, and can be continued day and night for weeks together, thus saving the expense of re-kindling every day.
For economy, durability, ease of management, cleanliness and perfection in cooking, it cannot be surpassed by any other Stove, as hundreds of families in this city and vicinity, who are now using them, are willing to testify, and speak of them in the highest terms of praise.
We would refer to the following purchasers:

"MAGEE'S PATENT"
VENTILATING & AIR-WARMING
FURNACES.
The subscriber, being the Sole Agent in this vicinity for the manufacture of the above valuable Furnace, would ask those about remodelling or erecting buildings to examine this truly valuable invention.
For economy, purity of air and ease of management it has no equal, producing a current of warm air, moist and agreeable;—and as none of the air which comes in contact with the fire-pots is used for respiration, the tendency to produce headache so much complained of in other Furnaces, is entirely obviated.
The objects aimed at by the constructors of heating apparatus have been to obtain the greatest amount of heat from a given amount of fuel, and to prevent the escape of heat to the smoke pipe or chimney.
To accomplish this many complicated and expensive heating arrangements have been constructed, with some pretending but little improvement over former methods, while many have proved a total failure. The reason for this is obvious. The combustible gases being lighter than the air, pass off into the pipe or chimney without being consumed. This objection, so common in other Furnaces, is obviated in the
MAGEE FURNACE.
The flue or pipe in this Furnace being below the fire-pot, the gases, from their specific gravity, cannot descend, and are burned up by the admission of cold air through the fire-pot, which ignites them as they pass off from the coal, thus saving at least 20 per cent. of the properties of the heat in the fuel.
No heating apparatus with the smoke-pipe or flue on the top of the cone can be made to consume the gases of the coal, as they pass off with a large portion of the heat generated, making the chimney the hottest part of your dwelling.
This Furnace does away with the great number of pipes and angles for the radiation of heat, which are so liable to fill up and get out of order, thus simplifying, while it increases the surface of radiation.
These Furnaces consume all the coal, make no clinkers, the sifting of coal is entirely dispensed with, and they will save from 30 to 50 per cent. of fuel over common Furnaces.
For ease of management, economy and purity of air these Furnaces have no equal. They can be regulated so as to give any amount of heat required, and the fire may be kept the entire season without once going out.
They give entire satisfaction wherever used. We have in store the different sizes, Brick and Portable, to which we invite the attention of those in want of the best Furnace in the world,—and would refer them to the following named gentlemen, who have them now in use:

Samuel Chagres, Esq.,	Albert R. Hatch, Esq.,
Aaron H. Hill,	Charles H. Mendum,
Henry F. Wendell,	John Sise, and others.

Daily Morning Chronicle

VOL. XXV. PORTSMOUTH, N. H. TUESDAY, NOV. 16 1864. No. 1100

The Chronicle.

☞ A writer, whose life has passed its meridian, thus eloquently discourses upon the speedy flight of time: "Forty years once seemed a long and weary pilgrimage to make. It now seems but a step; and yet along the way are buried the wishes, with a thousand hopes wasted to ashes; footprints sacred under their drifting dust; green mounds where grass is fresh with the watering of tears; shadows even, which we would not forget. We will garner the sunshine of those years, and with chastened steps and hopes push on toward the evening whose signal light will soon be swinging where the waters are still and the storms never beat."

—Bulwer thinks a man's nature is shown by the way he shakes hands; that he may have the manners of a Chesterfield, and smile very sweetly, but yet may chill or steel your heart against him the moment that he shakes hands with you. But there is, he says, a cordial clasp which shows warmth of impulse, unhesitating truth, and even power of character,—a clasp which recalls the classic trust in the "faith of the right hand."

FACTS FOR THE PEOPLE.—It is a well-established fact that no preparation has ever been placed before the public that, as a remedial agent for the self- and speedy cure of Coughs, Colds, Croup, Influenza, Hoarseness, Tickling in the Throat, Soreness of the Chest and Lungs, and the relief of Consumptive Cough, is equal to Coe's Cough Balsam. Although not known in the Western States until the fall of 1863, over 300,000 bottles of it were sold and used by the people—its immense popularity being the result of its undoubted merit. The proprietors Messrs. C. G. Clark & Co., of New Haven, Ct., who are among the most reliable of the Eastern Drug Houses, have offered to any man who would produce an article that would cure any Lung and Throat Affections as quick as Coe's Cough Balsam, a reward of $100, and are without any taker, although the offer has been made public over two years. The bottle compares favorably in size with any of the 65 cent preparations, and its strength is second to none, making it not only the best, but the cheapest remedy in the world. We have the united testimony of such houses as Lord & Smith; Fler, Finch & Fuller; Burnham & Van Schaack; J. H. Reed & Co., and H. Scovill, all heavy drug-lists in the city of Chicago, together with the assurance of wholesale and retail druggists in all points of the Northwest, that they are selling more of this preparation, and that it gives greater satisfaction than any other Cough Balsam now extant. No family should be without it: it is within the reach of all, the price being only 40 cents. In time of health provide for disease.—Chicago Tribune. n5dawlm

VERNATELLA.
Warranted to make the Soles of Boots and Shoes water and dampness proof, and wear one-third longer.
WHY WE TELL.
Is a preparation from Copper, having no grease, linseed oil, or anything of the kind, and when the soles are once saturated with it, water can no more get through them than through copper itself. Price 25 Cents Per Bottle, at all druggists everywhere.
But its cost to the purchaser is really NOTHING, as it makes the soles wear enough longer to more than pay for it, leaving as a net gain the making of them water and dampness PROOF, and the preservation thereby of that priceless gem, the health.
☞ LADIES, READ THIS! ☜
SAVE YOUR HEALTH.
Use Vernatella on the Soles of your Shoes. It makes them water proof and thereby protects your feet from dampness, for the ground is always more or less moist, either from rain or the morning and evening dew.
At wholesale in Boston by Geo. C. Goodwin & Co., 38 Hanover street; S. M. Colcord & Co., 36 Hanover st.; M. S. Burr & Co., 36 Tremont st.; Carter, Hunt & Co., 43 Hanover st.; and Wholesale Druggists generally. Also, by all the principal dealers in Boots and Shoes.

American and Foreign Patents.
R. H. EDDY,
SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,
Late Agent of U. S. Patent Office, Washington, (under the Act of 1837,)
76 State street, opposite Kilby street,
Boston.
After an extensive practice of upwards of twenty years, continues to secure Patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Bonds, Assignments, and all Papers for Drawings of Patents, executed on liberal terms, and with dispatch. Research made into American or Foreign works, to determine the validity or utility of patents or Inventions—and legal or other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any Patent furnished, by remitting One Dollar. Assignments recorded at Washington.
The Agency is not only the largest in New England, but through it inventors have advantages for securing Patents, or ascertaining the patentability of inventions unsurpassed by, if not immeasurably superior to, any which can be offered them elsewhere. The Testimonials below given prove that more of my clients SUCCEED IN THE PATENT OFFICE than the subscriber; and as SUCCESS IS THE BEST PROOF OF ADVANTAGES AND ABILITY, he would add that he has abundant reason to believe, and can prove, that at no other office of the kind are the charges for professional service so moderate.
The immense practice of the subscriber during twenty years past, has enabled him to accumulate a vast collection of specifications and official decisions relative to patents.
These, besides his extensive library of legal and mechanical works, and full accounts of patents granted in the United States and Europe, enable him able, beyond question, to offer superior facilities for obtaining Patents.
All security of a journey to Washington, to procure a patent, and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.
TESTIMONIALS.
"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse."
CHARLES MASON,
Commissioner of Patents.
"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a person more competent and trustworthy, and more capable of putting their applications in form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office."
EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents
Mr. R. H Eddy has made for me THIRTEEN applications, on all but one of which patents have been granted, and that is now pending. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend all inventors to apply to him to procure their patents as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases, and at very reasonable charges."
JOHN TAGGART.
During eight months, the subscriber, in connection with his large practice, made on twice rejected applications SIXTEEN APPEALS, EVERY ONE of which was decided in his favor, by the Commissioner of Patents.

Portsmouth, N. H.

WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 16, 1864.

THE REBELLION.

Adm. Porter is said to have the largest and most powerful fleet collected for a single expedition during the war. When it will sail is known only to him.

The N. Y. Herald has a sketch of the movements of Gen. Sherman. Nov. 4, five corps were concentrated at Atlanta and rapid preparations were made to commence a march. Gen. Sherman is in the highest spirits, and telegraphed his intentions in the following words: "Hood has crossed the Tennessee River. Thomas will take care of him and Nashville, while Schofield will not let him into Chattanooga or Knoxville. Georgia and South Carolina are at my mercy, and I shall strike. Do not be anxious about me. I am all right."

Hood has crossed the Tennessee but has not yet crossed the Coosa.

Several attempts to cross Texas cattle over the Mississippi river for Hood's army have been frustrated by our gunboats. About 3000 cattle, strongly guarded, had crossed the Black river, but Col. Farrar, commanding at Vidalia, started in pursuit, and captured the rebel Gen. Conner, several wagons, mules and horses, and one-third of the cattle, dispersing the rest.

The rebels have failed in another attempt to cross the Mississippi river at Gaines' Landing to Hood's assistance.

A large number of prisoners were to be exchanged at Savannah Nov. 12th and 13th.

Gen. Canby was shot and seriously if not fatally wounded in the groin by a guerrilla, while ascending White River on a gunboat, Nov. 6. The ball passed through his body.

Gen. Burnside arrived in Washington on Monday.

There is a report that Early has retreated to Lynchburg.

The log-book of the pirate Florida shows that since Jan. 16, 1863, she has captured 26 vessels, of which 22, with their cargoes, were valued at three and a half millions of dollars.

At a complimentary supper to Gen. Butler at the Fifth Avenue Hotel, New York city, on Monday, he stated that he would leave to rejoin the army on Tuesday. He urged that the olive branch be once more extended to the rebels, and, if rejected, then drive them off their land, and divide t as bounties among the soldiers.

NEW HAMPSHIRE ITEMS.

—— Manchester will celebrate the Union victory at the polls on Friday evening next.

—— The Mirror was informed by Mr. James Eastman, that he would on Monday put in four representative substitutes for Governor Gilmore, one for himself and three for his sons, not liable to the draft.

—— The Manchester Hospital will be ready to-day to receive one hundred patients. A small guard arrived from Concord on Saturday to take charge of the hospital property.

—— The N. H. Teachers' Association will hold its annual meeting in Fisherville, Nov. 21 and 22. Able lecturers have been engaged, including President Smith of Dartmouth College, Prof. Aiken and Rev. Mr. Bowles.

—— The following promotions have been made in the 5th regiment: Maj. Welcome A. Crafts, to be Lieut. Colonel, Capt. Thomas L. Livermore, Co. E, to be Major, Quartermaster Sergeant Owen T. Cummings, to be Quartermaster.

Soldiers' Packages.—A large number of packages intended for the army, arrive at the Washington Post Office, with wrappers destroyed or address so mutilated that they cannot be forwarded, and therefore are sent to the Dead Letter Office. It is officially suggested that persons sending packages write on a card the full address and fasten it securely to the contents of the package, inside of the wrapper. This will secure their prompt delivery.

Had to Come to it.—The Suffolk Bank, Boston, voted on Monday to surrender its State charter and become a National banking institution under the National banking law. The City Bank has also voted to act in the same manner.

Flora Temple.—The little bay mare, queen of the trotting turf, is now owned by Aristides Welch, of Chestnut Hills, Penn., and is to trot again in New York next Spring, and after that will be bred to.

— The little town of Chester, Ill., was nearly destroyed by a tornado on Wednesday morning. Over a dozen houses were blown down, a church was entirely ruined, five persons were killed, and 12 or 15 wounded. The loss of property by the tornado is about $60,000. The town of Randolph, seven miles distant, also suffered severely. Nearly all the houses in the place were blown down.

The State of Maine does many things well, and often proves her right to her self-assumed motto, Dirigo. In military matters, during the war, she has been prompt, and reliable, and no better regiments can be found in the Union army than are some of those which have gone out from the Pine Tree State. Many of her officers, (and there are an astonishingly large number of brave men among her best,) have become distinguished, and the long roll of martyred heroes who have laid down their lives in behalf of their Country and Liberty, contains the names of many who grew up under the benefits of her institutions, graduated at her colleges, and went forth in her regiments. We have known many of them,—several who still live to fight the battles of the country,—almost as many, alas, who now fill soldiers' graves. They have all done honor to their State, and, living or dying, their names should be honored till the history of this struggle for nationality is forgotten, and the glorious name of the Free Land of the West has become dimmed and obscured.

Maine is doing much to perpetuate their memory. Its Adjutant General, Hodsden, is one of the most, if not the most active, thorough, conscientious officer, occupying the position, in the country. His annual reports are monuments at once to his perseverance and to the regiments of his State. They are accurate and exhaustive, giving the full organization of each regiment which the State has furnished, with the name of every officer and private in the service; the time during which they have served; brief histories of the careers of the regiments, and special mention of every officer and private who has merited it, whether his deeds have been to the honor or disgrace of himself and of the State.

Recently, also, there has been established in Portland a magazine called the Northern Monthly, the November number of which we received a few days ago. A large portion of it is devoted to the "Maine Military Record," which is intended to give frequent accounts of the several regiments, their changes and achievements; and to present in a convenient form for preservation anything of interest concerning the military affairs of the State. It has been objected that it occasionally gives matters which have already been mentioned in the daily papers. We think this not an objection. Daily papers are quickly thrown aside, and their items of to-day will be crowded out of sight and out of mind by those of to-morrow. The numbers of a monthly magazine, however, are usually preserved, and thus the "heroic deeds of heroic men," which are narrated in them, have a fair chance of not being quickly buried in oblivion. The Maine magazine is doing something to preserve these memorials, and is an approach to that which every State ought to have had from the beginning of the war. It certainly ought to be well supported by the people of Maine. We wish it might devote even more space to military matters, and give sketches, brief if need be, of the young Maine officers,—the Lieutenants, and the Captains, as well as the Colonels and the Generals,—who have fallen during the war. We could name many who fully merit it,—many whose memories are cherished by the friends of their younger days, who long for some worthy embalmment of their names, as well as of the deeds they dared to do, and doing dared to die.

We wish New Hampshire had some publication of the same character, for such records of our Regiments have been sadly neglected in the past. Even the newspapers have hardly done their full duty in the matter. Adj. Gen. Natt Head, however, since his accession to the office,—has endeavored to do something towards supplying the sad lack of materials, which now exists and is often complained of. If he realizes his ideal, we shall have an opportunity to obtain a clearer idea of the achievements of our soldiers than has ever been afforded us in the past. We trust he will succeed. Our regiments have done nobly, and their deeds ought not to be suffered to pass into oblivion. We trust that our next Legislature will authorize Gen. Head to prepare and publish a report equally exhaustive and valuable with that of Maine. It would cost money, but it would pay. And that is the point we wished to make when we commenced this lengthy talk. T.

The American Bird.— Thursday, the 24th inst., is appointed by the President of the United States as a day of Thanksgiving and Praise for all the Nation. In several of the States—in some where this annual Festival is a time-honored fete-day, observed annually from their earliest settlement, this last Thursday of November had been previously set apart by Proclamation of their Governors. Within their borders it will have a double meaning, as "a little Government Sunday" and their own peculiar Day of Festivity, around which cluster the merriest and the most grateful memories, as well as—to those who have learned others than life's first lessons—the holiest and saddest. In all our millions of homes it will this year be honored with a grateful sense of devout thanksgiving. Even where sorrow will sit at the head of the board—in how many households!—praise to the Giver of all good will fill the saddest hearts for the manifold blessings which have been vouchsafed to a people in the hour of its sorest trial.

But let us take thought, not of what the day shall be at home, but how much of comfort and compensation it shall bring to those who, scattered along the banks of the James and the Appomattox, and in the Valley of the Shenandoah, will turn their thoughts with the utmost longing to those homes that many of them may never see again. There at least let us do what we can to dispel all feeling of loneliness so natural at such season, to pile upon the soldiers' table the plentiful bounties of Thanksgiving Day. Let us turn now from the screaming of one American Bird to the slaughter and roasting of another. The Eagle has had his turn on "a thousand hills;" turn now to the Turkey, and turn him on tens of thousands of spits. No tent should be without that noble bird for a Thanksgiving Feast. The young men who will recall on that day the loved faces around the fireside at home, the games of ball on the village greens, the shooting matches, the skating frolics on Northern ponds, the sleighing parties over New England hills, the dance in the evening, the dear "girls they have left behind them," must not sit down to a Thanksgiving dinner of hard tack and salt pork. All else of festivity he must forego—except the shooting matches where men are the targets—but of eating give him enough. Fill him full of Turkey! Fill his mouth as well as his head with "merry-thoughts." Put a "drum-stick" in every fist for another purpose than to beat the long-roll. Let campfires be reflected in faces ruddy and redolent with Turkey; let the fatness thereof be wiped with thankful hand from beard and mustache. Let him so feast on Turkey that its memory will make the hours short in the lonely watch, and fill his dreams in a shelter-tent.

The lean and hungry rebels "are fit for stratagems and spoils;" let our soldier be "with fat Turkey lined," and go into the next honest fight with traitors with Turkey, the good, honest, American bird!—for his battle-cry! It is little enough we can do for those who are doing so much for us. A surfeit of fight, on our behalf, deserves at least, as a poor return, a surfeit of Turkey. Those who have many, send many; those who have two, send one; those who have only one send that to the soldier, and go without at home. Better a dinner of herbs with the love that has sent the bird to camp, than the stuffed Turkey, and the thought of hard tack on that day for the soldiers. One day's ration to the brave fellows, and let it be turkey roast with all the fixings! The Army of the Potomac, the Army of the James, the Army of Western Virginia—let not a single mess in all their tens of thousands be without turkey to head its bill of fare on the 24th of November. Though there be not enough left for seed for next Thanksgiving, be this day remembered as the Day of the Feast of Turkey when the soldier comes home and fights his battles o'er with his crutch, for the instruction of his children and his childrens' children. Scream, O beautiful bird, in every poultry-yard in the land, your last scream, a louder cry than your bigger brother ever compassed, for the bravest of soldiers shall gnaw your white and dark meat to the last sweet morsel, and crunch your tender bones! Give them

Turkeys hot, and turkeys cold,
Turkeys young or turkeys old,
Turkeys tender and turkeys tough,
Till they thank the Lord they've turkey enough.

Rye, N.H., Feb. 26, 1846. "Thereby certify that my daughter has had the salt rheum for a number of years—some of the time so badly as to prevent her labor, or even rest—as it affected her hands very much. A large sum had been expended to the most celebrated physicians, for Sarsaparilla Syrup, &c., &c., but she obtained no relief until I procured some ten or twelve bottles of Dr. Swett's Panacea, and several bottles of his Humor Wash, which have effected a cure. There can be no mistake, as this cure was effected more than three years ago. No other medicine can equal Dr. Swett's in removing the various kinds of humors. I have sold it to a number of my acquaintances, who were afflicted, and witnessed many full cures effected by it since I have acted as agent for the sale of it. Josiah Jennes.
Portsmouth, April 21st, 1862.
I have for several years been afflicted with distress at my stomach, loss of appetite, and often vomited up all of my food immediately after eating it, and all medicine failed to give any relief until about a year ago, when I took one bottle of Dr. S. Swett's Panacea, which fully cured me, so that I have not had the least trouble from any of these complaints since, and I enjoy good health. M. Lowd.
From Eldbi I Chesley, Lee, May 31, 1841.
Dr. Swett: Permit me to testify, as I feel in duty bound to do, that my daughter was afflicted with scrofulous humor, and that previous to your visiting our house in the spring of 1840, she had been confined for a number of months, without her natural rest by day or night. She had applied to a number of physicians, but continued to grow weaker till she commenced using your Panacea and Humor Wash. Since then, she has recovered her health so far as to rest quietly by night, and labor by day. I esteem your medicine one of the best that can be found for the disease above named." Israel Chesley
☞ Any one returning the remainder of a bottle or box of Dr. Swett's medicines shall have pay for it, if it do not agree with his case, or if not worth the price. All orders directed to Dr. S. Swett, No 7 High street, Portsmouth, N. H., promptly attended to. mav26

Honey of Horehound Tar,

For the cure of Coughs, Colds, Influenza, Hoarseness, Difficult Breathing, and all Affections of the Throat, Bronchial Tubes and Lungs, leading to Consumption.

This sovereign remedy is compounded from the favorite recipe of an illustrious Physician and Chemist, who for many years used it with the most complete success in his extensive private practice.

He had long been profoundly impressed with the wonderful virtue of the honey of the plant Horehound, in union with the Cleansing and Healing properties of Tar extracted from the Life Principle of the forest tree Abies Balsamea, or Balm of Gilead. For years he was baffled in his attempts to blend these great medicinal forces into such a union that the original power of each would be preserved, the disagreeable qualities of common tar removed, and the price of the compound be within the means of all. At last after a long course of chemical experiments, he found that by adding to these fine other ingredients, each one valuable in itself, he not only obtained the desired results but greatly increased the curative power of the compound. This having been thoroughly tested by practice, is now offered to the general public as a safe, pleasant and infallible remedy.

PRICE, 50 CENTS PER BOTTLE.

"A Wonderful Discovery."

DR. TEBBETTS' "PHYSIOLOGICAL HAIR REGENERATOR" is compounded in strict accordance with the well known laws of Physiology and modern vegetable Chemistry. It is not a "DYE," and will not stain a particle. It will "RESTORE GRAY HAIR" in all cases to its original color. It promotes a luxuriant growth of NEW HAIR in all cases on BALD HEADS, when the glands or roots of the hair are not completely disorganized. It prevents the hair from falling off and removes all dandruff, heat, humors and itching from the scalp. It keeps the hair soft, moist and perfectly healthy and gives it a glossy and beautiful appearance. It is highly perfumed, and as a Dressing it has no superior. The "REGENERATOR" is warranted to produce the above results in all cases, if not the money to be refunded. With it every "GRAY HEAD" in New England can be restored in less than sixty days.

THE CITY GOVERNMENT.—The Union caucus to nominate a new Mayor, is called at the Court House this evening; and a general invitation is extended to all fault-finders and critics (all unknown to us) to be on hand. We certainly have no interest in the matter, other than the promotion of the general welfare of the city;—but we should like to see party spirit laid aside for once, to such a degree, at any rate, as to give us the best officers practicable. And we hope the City Hall won't be forgotten in the nominations; nor any other worthy object. "Principles, not men;" and "may the best man win." F.

WHO IS TO BE OUR NEXT MAYOR?—This question will be virtually settled at the caucus this evening, as a nomination by the Union party is equivalent to an election. If our present worthy Mayor declines a renomination, it is very important that a man of financial skill and ability as well as executive power be selected to succeed him. If Hon. Horton D. Walker, who formerly served as Mayor with great credit to himself and honor to the city, would consent to be again elected it would give great satisfaction to MANY TAX PAYERS.

☞ The barn of Mr. Langdon Whidden, situated on the Lafayette road, near Rye, was burnt on Sunday morning last, about 1 o'clock, with its contents of Hay, &c. It was insured in the Home Insurance Company. This is the third barn burnt on the same premises within a few years. The owner, in his written statement of this last fire, suggests that it was not set on fire by any man, nor by lightning, but by a ball of fire from heaven, sent by the deity for a purpose not understood by the Insurance Co. It may be remembered that the night was very stormy.

☞ The official list of casualties in the 10th N. H. regiment, during the engagement near Fair Oaks, Va., Oct. 27, mentions the following in Company G, Capt. Geo. W. Towle:

Horace H. Cedron, wounded, leg, severely, Henry L. Adlington, Edwin B. Paine, wounded, face, slightly, Lewis F. Hanson, privates Andrew W. Whidden, Charles L. Hoitt, Chas. Young, missing; Sylvester Y. White, killed.

☞ The Boston Advertiser says "the model of the Kearsarge, a most elaborate piece of work, from the Portsmouth Navy Yard, is hardly excelled in interest, by anything else in the Fair. The list of ticket-holders was very nearly filled up on Monday, and the drawing will probably soon come off."

☞ Loring Moody will lecture in behalf of the New England Freedmen's Aid Society, at the Unitarian Chapel, Court street, on Thursday evening at 7 1-2 o'clock. Admittance free.

CAPT. MATTHEW T. BETTON, of this city, Capt. of Co. K, 13th N. H. Vols., 1st Brigade, 1st Division, 18th Army Corps, writes as follows:

FORT HARRISON, VA., Nov. 1864.

Our Regiment is at Fort Harrison. We lost during our last raid to Fair Oaks Capt. Goss and Lieut. H. H. Murray, prisoners, and about 15 or 20 enlisted men—one killed. Our regiment, present for duty, numbers 114 enlisted men. I am the only captain for duty in our brigade at the present time. Capt. Goss is in Libby Prison. I have sent a letter to him through the lines, and expect soon to receive an answer.

Capt. N. D. Stoodley is promoted, and is Major of our regiment. Major Smith is Lt. Colonel. Lt. Curtis of Newcastle is Captain.

Sergeant James R. Morrison, of my company, belonging to Portsmouth, has been wounded so as to render him unfit for active service at the front. A more meritorious soldier never left the State of New Hampshire. He is possessed of all the qualities that make the man and soldier—a strictly moral and exemplary christian—unflinching in all the duties imposed upon him. His bravery is unquestioned, and he richly deserves a commission in the Veteran Reserve Corps. We hope Portsmouth men of influence will remember one so deserving. Sergt. Morrison captured the flag from a fort near Petersburg June 15. The flag is in the State House at Concord. I have a sword in my possession which he captured at the same time and place.

We have good field officers—Lieut. Col. Smith and Maj. Stoodley. We have not heard from Col. Stevens recently, but hear he has a Star, and hope it is so.

I have been with the regiment in all its movements, except the fight at Petersburg, June 15, and the repulse of the enemy at this Fort, Sept. 30th.

I am about to leave for City Point with the bodies of three officers, to be embalmed by order of Gen. Stannard.

One of my company has just returned from hospital with the loss of his right hand. He was wounded at Cold Harbor June 1.

I forward Richmond papers. You may be interested in reading the negro conscription bill.

We hope for the triumphant re-election of President Lincoln.

— The N. Y. Post's Washington despatch says the planters in the lower counties of Maryland have agreed to pay their former slaves annual wages varying from $60 to $100.

He is the happiest who does most to make others happy. The inventor of Herrick Allen's Gold Medal Saleratus must be the happiest man in existence, for we hazard nothing in saying that the use of the Gold Medal Saleratus cannot fail to make a happy household. Our better half says she does not fear of our ever frowning, as long as she can get the genuine Herrick Allen's. We say success to the inventor, and if everybody knew how good it is, no other would be used. A good many of our Merchants have it. Their depot is 112 Liberty Street, New York.

☞ Special attention is asked to Hunnewell's preparations, advertised on our inside columns. They are based on true medical laws, used very largely by Physicians, and most undoubted testimonials are in the hands of the proprietor, always open to inspection. Let Portsmouth and its vicinity bear testimony by a confidence to test them, which will be sacred.

The venerable Mrs. Partington once asked us if we believed that everything was forcordained before hand in advance. We were compelled to answer that sometimes we did and sometimes we didn't. She remarked that her son Isaac says he knows one thing was forcordained sure, and that is, that the J. Monroe Taylor Gold Medal Soap will supersede and run out every other kind of soap made. The old lady further remarked, that she believed so too, and was sure that there was no other so good, for she had tried it. 28

THE MODEL COOK.

IS, IN FACT,

The Best Stove Out,

for economy, convenience and dispatch.

Many people think it best to use an old stove as long as possible, but it is far better to throw it away and purchase a MODEL COOK, than to keep it at the present high price of fuel.

One of our shrewdest citizens who purchased a MODEL COOK STOVE a year since, says he has saved more than its cost already.

A careful, prudent farmer purchased one, and after it had been in operation some days his son came into the store and said, "something was wrong at their house;" his father and himself used wood off the same pile, he burned three baskets full a day, and his father only one! We sold him a Stove before he left, and there has been no complaint since.

These Stoves are in use in many hotels and boarding houses, and in hundreds of private families in this city and vicinity, and give the best of satisfaction.

HOW'S MY BOY.

"Ho! sailor of the sea,
How's my boy—my boy?"
"What's your boy's name, good wife,
And in what ship sailed he?"

"My boy John—
He that went to sea—
What care I for the ship, sailor?
My boy's my boy to me.

You come back from sea,
And not know my John?
I might as well have asked some landsman
Yonder down in the town.
There's not an inn in all the parish
But knows my John.

How's my boy—my boy?
And mind you tell me true,
I'll swear you are no sailor,
Blue jacket or no,
Brass buttons or no sailor,
Anchor and crown or no,
Sure his ship was the "Jolly Briton.""
"Speak low, woman, speak low."

"And why should I speak low, sailor,
About my own boy John?
If I was as loud as I am proud,
I'd sing him over the town.
Why should I speak low, sailor?"
"That good ship went down."

"How's my boy—my boy—
What care I for the ship, sailor,
I was never aboard her?
So she about, or be she aground,
Sinking or swimming, I'll be bound
Her owner can afford her.
I say, how's my boy John?"
"Every man on board went down—
Every man aboard her."

"How's my boy—my boy—
What care I for the men, sailor?
I'm not their mother.
How's my boy—my boy—
Tell me of him, and no other;
How's my boy—my boy?"

THE MAGEE COOKING STOVE.
The subscriber, having received his Fall stock of Stoves, would especially call the attention of the public to the
MAGEE COOK STOVE,
as the very best Stove yet made, and would invite those about purchasing or exchanging Stoves, to examine this, believing it to be far superior to any other Stove yet invented, the castings being heavier, and the oven larger than usual. T. D. oven plates are covered with plaster, which renders it equal to the old-fashioned brick oven for perfection in baking.
There is a new style and very superior broiler and sad-iron heater combined, by which the odor of broiling meats are prevented from escaping into the room. With the extension top there is a large copper Reservoir for hot water; also a large tin warming-closet attached, in which any article can be kept warm, while the other parts of the Stove are occupied for other purposes.
The arrangements for sifting the coal and cleaning the grate are far superior to those of any other stove now in use, as no dust can possibly escape into the room, and the shoveling up of the ashes is entirely dispensed with. The fire is regulated in the same manner as in the MAGEE PARLOR STOVE, and can be continued day and night for weeks together, thus saving the expense of re-kindling every day.
For economy, durability, ease of management, cleanliness and perfection in cooking, it cannot be surpassed by any other Stove, as hundreds of families in this city and vicinity, who are now using them, are willing to testify, and speak of them in the highest terms of praise.
We would refer to the following purchasers:

"MAGEE'S PATENT"
VENTILATING & AIR WARMING
FURNACES.
The subscriber, being the Sole Agent in this vicinity for the manufacture and sale of this valuable Furnace, would ask those about remodelling or erecting buildings to examine this truly valuable invention.
For economy, purity of air and ease of management it has no equal, producing a current of warm air, moist and agreeable;—and as none of the air which comes in contact with the fire-pot is used for respiration, the tendency to produce headache so much complained of in other furnaces, is entirely obviated.
The objects aimed at by the constructors of heating apparatus have been to obtain the greatest amount of heat from a given amount of fuel, and to prevent the escape of heat to the smoke-pipe or chimney.
To accomplish this many complicated and expensive heating arrangements have been constructed, some possessing but little improvement over former methods, while many have proved a total failure. The reason for this is obvious. The combustible gases being lighter than the air, pass off into the pipe or chimney without being consumed. This objection, so common in other Furnaces, is obviated in the
MAGEE FURNACE.
The flue or pipe in this Furnace being below the fire-pot, the gases, from their specific gravity, cannot descend, and are burned up by the admission of cold air through the fire-pot, which ignites them as they pass off from the coal, thus saving at least 20 per cent. of the properties of the heat in the fuel.
No heating apparatus with the smoke-pipe or flue on the top of the cone can be made to consume the gases of coal, as they pass off with a large amount of the heat generated, making the chimney the hottest part of your dwelling.
This Furnace does away with the great number of pipes and angles for the radiation of heat, which are so liable to fill up and get out of order, thus simplifying, while it increases the surface of radiation.
These Furnaces consume all the coal, make no clinkers, the sifting of coal is entirely dispensed with, and they will save from 30 to 50 per cent. of fuel over common Furnaces.
For ease of management, economy and purity of air these Furnaces have no equal. They can be regulated so as to give any amount of heat required, and the fire may be kept the entire season without once going out.
They give entire satisfaction wherever used. We have in store the different sizes, Brick and Portable, to which we invite the attention of those in want of the best Furnace in the world,—and would refer them to the following named gentlemen, who have them now in use:

Samuel Cleaves, Esq.,	Albert R. Hatch, Esq.,
Aaron H. Hill,	Charles H. Mendum,
Henry F. Wendell,	John Sise, and others.

CHEROKEE REMEDY
—AND—
CHEROKEE INJECTION,
Compounded from Roots, Barks & Leaves
CHEROKEE REMEDY, the great Indian Diuretic, cures all diseases of the urinary organs, such as Incontinence of the Urine, Inflammation of the Bladder, Inflammation of the Kidneys, Stone in the Bladder, Stricture, Gravel, Gleet, Gonorrhœa, and is especially recommended in those cases of Fluor Albus (or Whites in females) where all the old nauseous medicines have failed.
It is prepared in a highly concentrated form, the dose only being from one to two tablespoonfuls three times per day.
It is the most mild and alterative in its action; purifying and cleansing the blood, causing it to flow in all of its original purity and vigor; thus removing from the system all pernicious causes which have induced disease.
CHEROKEE INJECTION is intended as an ally or assistant to the CHEROKEE REMEDY, and should be used in conjunction with it at medicine in all cases of Gonorrhœa, Gleet, Fluor Albus or Whites. Its effects are healing, soothing and demulcent, removing all scalding, heat, shortness and pain, instead of the burning and almost unendurable pain that is experienced with nearly all the cheap quack injections.
☞ By the use of the CHEROKEE REMEDY and CHEROKEE INJECTION—the two medicines at the same time—all improper discharges are removed, and the weakened organs are speedily restored to full vigor and strength.

EYE, N.H., Feb. 26, 1846. "I hereby certify that my daughter has had the salt rheum for a number of years—some of the time so badly as to prevent her labor, for even rest—as it affected her hands very much. A large sum had been expended to the most celebrated physicians, for Sarsaparilla Syrup, &c., &c., but she obtained no relief until I procured some ten or twelve bottles of DR. SWETT'S PANACEA, and several bottles of his Humor Wash, which have effected a cure. There can be no mistake, as this cure was effected more than three years ago. No other medicines can equal Dr. Swett's in removing the various kinds of humors. I have sold it to a number of my acquaintances, who were afflicted, and witnessed many full cures effected by it since I have acted as agent for the sale of it. JOSIAH JENNESS.

PORTSMOUTH, April 21st, 1862.

I have for several years been afflicted with distress at my stomach, loss of appetite, and often vomiting all of my food immediately after eating it, and all medicine failed to give any relief until about a year ago, when I took one bottle of DR. S. O. SWETT'S PANACEA, which fully cured me, so that I have not had the least trouble from any of these complaints since, and I enjoy good health. M. LOWD.

From ELDER I. CHESLEY, Lee, May 31, 1841.

DR. SWETT: Permit me to testify, as I feel in duty bound to do, that my daughter was afflicted with scrofulous humor, and that previous to your visiting our house in the spring of 1840, she had been confined for a number of months, without her natural rest by day or night. She had applied to a number of physicians, but continued to grow weaker till she commenced using your PANACEA and BITTER WASH. Since then she has recovered her health so far as to rest quietly by night, and labor by day. I esteem your medicine one of the best that can be found for the disease above named." ISRAEL CHESLEY

☞ Any one returning the remainder of a bottle or box of Dr. Swett's medicines shall have pay for it, if it do not agree with his case, or not worth the price. All orders directed to DR. S. SWETT, No 7 High street, Portsmouth, N H., promptly attended to. mav26

For the speedy and certain cure of Intermittent Fever, or Fever and Ague, Remittent Fever, Chill Fever, Dumb Ague, Periodical Headache, or Bilious Headache, and Bilious Fevers; indeed, for the whole class of diseases originating in bilious derangement, caused by the miasmatic countries.

FEVER AND AGUE is not the only consequence of the miasmatic poison. A great variety of disorders arise from its irritation in malarious districts, among which are Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Gout, Headache, Blindness, Toothache, Earache, Catarrh, Asthma, Palpitation, Painful Affection of the Spleen, Hysterics, Pain in the Bowels, Colic, Paralysis, and Derangement of the stomach, all of which, when originating in this cause, put on the intermittent type, or become periodical. This "CURE" expels the poison from the blood, and thus cures them all alike. It is the most only the most effectual remedy ever discovered for this class of complaints, but it is the cheapest, and, moreover, is perfectly safe. No harm can arise from its use, and the patient when cured is left as healthy as if he had never had the disease. Can this be said of any other cure for Chills and Fever? It is true of this, and the importance to those afflicted with the complaint cannot be overestimated. So sure is it to cure the Fever and Ague, that it may be truthfully said to be a certain remedy. One Dealer complains that it is not a good medicine to sell, because one bottle cures a whole neighborhood.

VERNATELLA.
Warranted to make the Soles of Boots and Shoes water and dampness proof, and wear one-third longer.
VERNATELLA
Is a preparation from Copper, having no grease, linseed oil, or anything of the kind, and when the soles are once saturated with it, water can no more get through them than through copper itself. Price 25 Cts Per Bottle, at retail everywhere.

But its cost to the purchaser is really NOTHING, as it makes the soles wear enough longer to more than pay for it, leaving as a net gain the making of them Water and Dampness Proof, and the preservation thereby of that priceless gem, the health.

SAVE YOUR HEALTH.

Use Vernatella on the Soles of your Shoes. It makes them proof and therefore protects your feet from dampness, for the ground is always more or less moist, either from rain or the morning and evening dew.

American and Foreign Patents.
R. H. EDDY.
SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,
Late Agent of U. S. Patent Office, Washington, (under other firms for 15 years.)
76 State street, opposite Kilby street,
Boston.

After an extensive practice of upwards of twenty years, confined to the Patent Business in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Bonds Assignments and all Papers or Drawings for Patents, executed on liberal terms, and with dispatch. Researches made into American or Foreign records, to determine the utility or utility of patents or Inventions—and legal or other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any Patent furnished by remitting One Dollar. Assignments recorded at Washington.

The Agency is not only the largest in New England, but through it inventors have advantages for securing Patents, or ascertaining the patentability of inventions unsurpassed by, if not immeasurably in advance of, any which can be offered them elsewhere The Testimonials below given prove that none is MORE SUCCESSFUL AT THE PATENT OFFICE than the subscriber, and as SUCCESS IS THE BEST PROOF OF ADVANTAGES AND ABILITY, he would add that he has abundant reason to believe that men prove, that at no other office of the kind are the charges for professional service so moderate.

The immense practice of the subscriber during twenty years has enabled him to accumulate a vast collection of specifications and official decisions relative to patents.

These, besides his extensive library of legal and mechanical works, and full accounts of patents granted in the United States and Europe, render him able, beyond question, to offer superior facilities for obtaining Patents.

All necessity of a journey to Washington, to procure a patent, and the usual great delay thereby are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse" CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents.

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they can not employ a person more competent and trustworthy, and more capable of putting their applications in form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office." EDM. ND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents

Mr. R. H Eddy has made for me THIRTEEN applications, on all but ONE of which patents have been granted, and that is now pending. Such unmistakeable proof of great talent and ability bestowed on their cases, and at very reasonable charges." JOHN TAGGART.

During eight months, the subscriber, in court of his large practice, made on twice rejected applications SIX TEEN APPEALS. EVERY ONE of whom was decided in his favor, by the Commissioner of Patents. R. H. EDDY.

Morning Chronicle.

Portsmouth, N. H.

THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 17, 1864.

☞ We copy this morning, a very sound and sensible review of the causes and effects of the re-election of Mr. Lincoln, from the leading daily paper in New Brunswick, with the editor of which we had the satisfaction of making a very pleasant acquaintance last summer, and we know him to be an exceedingly well informed man, and his paper always in favor of our Union, as well as that of the Provinces. (How so handsome a man as he, can keep out of a still more important and more tender union than either, we don't see; he couldn't if he lived up this way.) As the well-considered views of an intelligent outsider, his article will richly repay perusal.

☞ Wilkes' Spirit of the Times considers the gold speculators in New York City as chiefly agents of rebels and of sympathisers in Europe; deems the present prices fictitious; and recommends that our government change the law so as to receive our legal tender for duties or imports. If this should be found to increase the value of foreign exchange too much, — then it advises Congress to pass a non-intercourse act with those powers that have given belligerent rights to homeless pirates. It says Government might break down the gold pirates: and that if it does not, the democratic people will take them by the neck.

THE NEW YORK PRESS.—The Journal of Commerce, it its editorial Nov. 10, announces its intention to withdraw entirely from the field of politics, and adds:

We bow to the verdict. The nation at large must bow to it. We have done our best to have it otherwise, and have failed. We must leave the management of the ship of state in the hands of those chosen to guide her course, and whatever be our opinions or our fears, it is absolutely our duty, under present circumstances, to cease urging our advice, or importuning those who differ from us to change their views. They have beaten us at the polls. They have the President, the Senate, the House of Representatives, and a majority of the people in their favor. They have a right to the whole responsibility, and they may with propriety decline to receive the advice of those whom they have out-voted, nor has the defeated party a right to interfere with any advice or opposition which could be regarded as factious.

The Tribune says "that the people have just decided in the election of Lincoln and Johnson that the nation shall live and slavery shall die, so much, and no more," and the editor says that it relies on the general and hearty concurrence of the Democrats with the Administration upon these points to secure an early and happy termination of our national troubles.

The Newark, N. Y., Journal says, "we do notbelieve that Greeley will be accommodated by the Democracy."

The N. Y. Times says:

"We are not without the hope that the present opposition will recognize this, and will now, for a time at least, drop its character as an opposition; and, with a national spirit, will work with all national men in carrying this war through to its legitimate end."

The Herald says that the Democratic party is dead and buried—that it has died from its Copperhead leaders, and that the remnants of the Democracy should go in warmly for the support of the Administration and the subjugation of the South.

The World thinks that the success of the Republican party insures the abolition of slavery in the South, provided no foreign complication gives them allies in the prosecution of the war. The Democracy, it says, is not called upon to define its position, but should maintain its organization and await future developments.

The News calls for a reorganization of the Democratic party. After declaring the failure of the War Democracy, it says:

Let us now commence the task of party reorganization. The War Democracy is in the dust and there let it stay. Let them know that there is a party that dare uphold the doctrine of State Sovereignty.

The Boston Post closes an article on the Election, with the following words, which we commend to all who love their country, and would remain true in the hour of peril:

In this canvass the measures of the administration have been criticised, with a closeness rarely exceeded. It will be the duty of good citizens to submit to the decision of the majority, to frown upon factious opposition to the Administration, and to obey the constituted authorities.

— Concerning M. Renan, the correspondent of a London journal says that he is at present making arrangements for the publication of a work to be entitled "The Lives of the Apostles." It will be a supplement to "The Life of Jesus." It is his intention to proceed to the East, for the purpose of going over the ground St. Paul traveled between the period of his conversion and of his martyrdom. St. Paul will be the principal figure in the forthcoming work, and much pains will be taken with the portraits of the sons of Zebedee and St. Peter.

It is very easy to be wise for other people.

THE PRESIDENTIAL ELECTION.

From the St. John, N. B., Globe, 9th.

As was generally supposed would be the case, Mr. Lincoln has been re-elected President of the United States, by a strong vote. The issue was not really between a peace party and a war party. It turned rather upon the point, whether the President had conducted the war—if not as it ought to have been conducted, at least honestly, faithfully and to the best of his ability. McClellan himself was a war man, and would have continued to war with all the vigor of which he was capable, and this a large body of his supporters knew. In accepting the nomination he deliberately set aside whatever there was of peace in the principles laid down by those who nominated him, and announced that if elected he would prosecute the war. Had McClellan been elected, he would undoubtedly have followed in the footsteps of Mr. Lincoln, though perhaps at a long distance, unless the influence of the evil counsellors by whom he would unquestionable have been surrounded, would have biassed his judgment and weaned him from the course he had marked out. His election, however, would have been a great disaster for the United States, for it must, had the war continued any length of time, brought about considerable anarchy and confusion. It must have raised false hopes abroad and weakened confidence at home. It might even—though we doubt this—have resulted in the dismemberment of the country.

The election of Lincoln is but the natural result of the struggle through which the North has passed. For four years have the people been making great sacrifices of everything that men in this world hold dear to keep the nation intact; the struggle has been terrific; the prospect varying, but generally hopeful. It was not to be supposed that in one day they would do a thing by which they might risk the success of the enemy. Mr. Lincoln may have a great many faults; we are not sure that he has many political sins; but he usually keeps his promises, and there is no reason to believe that, so long as the country is with him, he will, by fraud or scheming, by trickery or knavery, by the advice of false friends or evil counsellors, do anything to break up his country.

We cannot look upon his election in any other light than as the result of the confidence of the people in their final success. It is not simply that they express approval of Mr. Lincoln. This is merely personal. It is rather that he is the embodiment of the national ideas of the day, the exponent of the unswerving determination of the Northern people to preserve, if it can be preserved at all, the Union from being destroyed.

Of course, Mr. Lincoln's re-election will be accounted for by the Democratic papers in a great many ways. The "army of contractors," we will be told, did their work; there will be stories of stuffed ballot-boxes; of an overawing military power, etc., etc., some of which may, indeed, be true—but all of which if exerted to the fullest possible extent could not possibly have re-elected the President had the people determined otherwise.

Mr. Lincoln's election will be a sad blow to the Confederacy. The press and the people there were undoubtedly hoping, though it must have been against hope, for McClellan's election. From his possible advisers they might have got something to revive their sinking courage; from Mr. Lincoln they know it is useless to look for anything. People out of the United States, too, must learn how deep and how lasting is the determination of the North in the whole matter.

TENNEY STANDS FIRM. — Fuller of the Newark Journal, heads the recent Election returns thus:

"New Jersey forever! (big rooster) she stands upright! We have the gratification of announcing that New Jersey is still within the pale of the Constitutional Union, if there still exists any such institution," &c. &c.

This reminds us of an incident which occurred while we were working in a country town, years ago. The tailors of the place had somehow almost all failed; except one, a very lame man named Tenney, having one leg much shorter than the other. And he came out with a big, staving poster, announcing the fact that "Tenney stands firm!" which was about as absurd as the idea that any State can now "stand upright," whose "people have again declared for a restoration of the old order of things."

THE CAMANCHE.— The telegraph announces the launch of the iron clad monitor Camanche at San Francisco on the 14th inst. The Camanche is one of the first batch of monitors, and she was built by Secor & Co., at Jersey City. She was placed on board the ship Aquilla, and sent around Cape Horn, arriving at San Francisco on the 11th of November, 1863. Five days afterwards, during a severe gale, the Aquilla, with the monitor on board, sunk at her anchors, in 40 feet of water. The pieces of the Camanche were subsequently recovered from the sunken ship, and put together, and the vessel completed for service. She has one turret, carries a battery of two improved fifteen-inch guns, and as a harbor defence will be of great service.

☞ We have three National Birds in America; the Eagle, for Fourth of July orations, and to put on standards and coin when we had them; the Rooster, to crow in the morning, and also to crow in the newspapers when the Democratic party used to get great majorities;—and last but not least, the Turkey, for a Thanksgiving dinner, and to send out to the soldiers in the field.

Peace makes plenty, plenty makes pride, pride breeds quarrel, and quarrel brings war; war brings spoil, and spoil poverty; poverty patience, and patience peace.

Horne Tooke, when asked by George III. whether he played at cards, replied, "I cannot, your Majesty, tell a king from a knave."

— The Boston Post says: "Ploughing by steam is a success in England." Pooh, that's nothing: we've done it here for years, — with a snow-plough.

— The largest valley in the world is the Valley of the Mississippi. It contains 500,000 square miles, and is one of the most fertile and profitable regions of the globe.

— The city of Calcutta has for protection against the overflow of the Hoogley, a breakwater two miles long and forty feet high; but in the late hurricane that was of no avail.

— The most remarkable patriot we have heard of is a beautiful woman in Michigan, who marries all the men that will immediately enlist in the army and give her their bounty.

— More arrests, including a nephew of the pirate Semmes, have been made at Chicago, of the persons implicated in the conspiracy to release the rebel prisoners in Camp Douglas.

A Cockney tourist met a Scotch lassie going barefoot toward Glasgow. "Lassie," said he, "I should like to know if all the people in these parts go barefoot?" "Part o' 'em do, and the rest of 'em mind their own business," was the rather settling reply.

— A committee of the City Government of Salem have reported in favor of obtaining a supply of water for that city from Wenham Lake, but recommend that the work be deferred until it can be executed cheaper than at the present time.

THE REBELLION.

Richmond papers of Saturday say that Gen. Grant is changing the location of large bodies of troops.

Gen. Augur succeeds Gen. Hancock in command of the 2d corps.

Gen. Sherman's officers were ordered to prepare for a sixty days' campaign.

The citizens of the border towns in Pennsylvania have organized companies to repel rebel raiders reported to have crossed the Potomac.

The Sebago, not long since, while on picket duty, in Mobile Bay, was fired into by a field battery on shore and lost an Ensign and three men. The Sebago engaged the battery and finally drove it off without sustaining further casualties. The rebels in Mobile are busily engaged in constructing and preparing two torpedo boats with which they propose to make a raid on our squadron in the bay.

Gens. Custar and Merritt on Monday evening skirmished with the rebel cavalry for several hours; till the latter fell back in great confusion, and our men drove them into and through Newtown. During this engagement Gen. Early was advancing his infantry, and had already reached Middletown, to which place their cavalry retreated. Our losses were very small, both in killed and wounded.

It is confirmed that Early has retreated up the valley to Lynchburg. Sheridan's movements cannot be published.

The double-turreted monitor Monadnock arrived at Fortress Monroe on Monday morning.

Gen. Butler arrived in Washington on Wednesday. It is said he is to have command of an important expedition.

The Pennsylvania militia is to be completely enrolled.

Gen. Peck has retired from the command of the Canadian border, danger being passed.

THE NATIONAL SAILORS' FAIR at the Boston Theatre, says the Transcript, should be visited by everybody, for the purpose of seeing the general effect of the arrangements and adornments, if for nothing else. No more beautiful spectacle has ever been witnessed "on any stage." We can assure our country friends that if they do not take the trouble of visiting Boston for the purpose of seeing it, they will miss the finest sight in the commonwealth.

FREEDMEN. — The Vicksburg Herald says:—

There is at Davis's Bend a great experiment in progress of what the freedmen may be expected to do hereafter. There are about seventy-five farmers working land on their own account, and making about 1200 acres of cotton, besides as much more corn. This is a success. They will make on an average from $2,000 to $5,000 each this year. There is scarcely one failure among the seventy-five lessees, many of whom were slaves three years ago.

— A saloon keeper in Pittsburg, Pa., was endeavoring to sell out his place, and could not prevail upon his customer to agree to his terms. While the matter was under discussion, the proprietor secretly gave a friend five dollars, who soon came in with a party, thus making a "rush of business." This settled the negotiation, and the bargain was closed at the price demanded; the seller making over one hundred dollars by the judicious investment of five.

— The remains of five revolutionary soldiers were exhumed at Somerville, Mass., a few days since. They were identified by colonial buttons found with the remains.—Winter Hill, when they were found, was a fortified post in those days, and the remains found were undoubtedly those of soldiers garrisoned there.

— A gossiping letter from Washington to the New York World says that a Commission, consisting of Edward Everett, Thurlow Weed, and Gen. Sickles, is to be sent to Richmond, to offer peace to the rebels in a return to the Union with slavery abolished. When they go we will a make note of it.

— Gen. Tom Thumb is one of the greatest Masons. He has taken the thirty-three degrees, and is a member of the Grand Orient of France, over which Prince Napoleon presides. He says he will be the tallest Mason in America.

HALE'S

Honey of Horehound Tar,

For the cure of Coughs, Colds, Influenza, Hoarseness, Difficult Breathing, and all Affections of the Throat, Bronchial Tubes and Lungs, leading to Consumption.

This sovereign remedy is compounded from the favorite recipe of an illustrious Physician and Chemist, who for many years used it with the most complete success in his extensive private practice.

He had long been profoundly impressed with the wonderful virtue of the honey of the plant Horehound, in union with the soothing and healing properties of Tar extracted from the Life Principle of the forest tree Abies Balsamea, or Balm of Gilead. For years he was baffled in his attempts to blend these great medicinal forces into such a union that the original power of each would be preserved, the disagreeable qualities of common tar removed, and the price of the compound be within the means of all. At last after a long course of chemical experiments, he found that by adding to these five other ingredients, each one valuable in itself, he not only obtained the desired results but greatly increased the curative power of the compound. This having been thoroughly tested by practice, is now offered to the general public as a safe, pleasant and infallible remedy.

PRICE, 50 CENTS PER BOTTLE.

"A Wonderful Discovery."

DR. TEBBETTS' "PHYSIOLOGICAL HAIR REGENERATOR" is compounded in strict accordance with the well known laws of Physiology and modern vegetable Chemistry. It is not a "Dye," and will not stain a particle. It will "RESTORE GRAY HAIR" in all cases to its original color. It promotes a luxuriant growth of new HAIR in all cases on BALD HEADS, when the glands or roots of the hair are not completely disorganized. It prevents the hair from falling off and removes all dandruff, heat, humors and itching from the scalp. It keeps the hair soft, moist and perfectly healthy, and gives it a glossy and beautiful appearance. It is highly perfumed, and as a Dressing it has no superior. The "REGENERATOR" is warranted to produce the above results in all cases, if not the money to be refunded. With it every "GRAY HEAD" in New England can be restored in less than sixty days.

THE UNION CAUCUS, at the Court House on Wednesday evening was very largely attended, and unusual interest was manifested. Hon. H. D. Walker was nominated as Chairman, and Henry A. Yeaton, Secretary. The first vote was taken by ballot, and resulted as follows: John H. Bailey 296, Joseph B. Adams 138, scattering 5; and Mr. Bailey was declared the nominee for Mayor.

The Union men of Ward 3 held their caucus in the Police court room on the same evening, Wm. H. Rollins being Chairman, and M. J. Vaughan, Secretary. The following nominations were made:

For Alderman—John E. Ham, Ezra A. Stevens.

For Common Councilmen—Charles E. Lord, Joshua E. Eldredge, Samuel H. Marshall, Joseph H. Gardiner, Chas. H. French John S. Rand.

For Overseer of the Poor—John Bennett.

For Assessors—William A. Vaughan, Daniel Bailey.

For Selectmen — Oliver Ayers, John Dame, Michael J. Vaughan.

For Moderator—William H. Rollins.

For Town Clerk—James H. Emery.

☞ The practice of discharging firearms in the streets and compact parts of the city has recently become altogether too frequent here. On Wednesday afternoon, about half-past five, some person unknown discharged a pistol in Daniel street, the ball from which entered a window in the house of Mr. John S. Dodge, passed across the room, and lodged in the opposite wall. The table was laid for supper, but fortunately the family had not sat down,—as the ball passed directly over the table.

— The Transcript says "Deacon John Phillips, of Sturbridge, Mass., was twenty-seven years old when he voted for Washington at the first Presidential election. He has voted at every succeeding election, and on Tuesday last was accompanied by his boy, 80 years of age, who was born under the Confederation. Is there another man in the United States who has voted at all twenty Presidential elections?" We have already instanced the case of Mr. Daniel Fernald, of this city, as voting for the first and present Presidents; but whether for all intervening, we cannot say.

— "A doctor's house should have blue pill-ars and front," says a would-be wag. There is a house in this city, at the West End, which has sky-blue trimmings, but it isn't occupied by a Dr.

☞ It will be seen there is a "double attraction" offered at the Temple to-night—Dramatic Co. and Minstrel Co.

AN IMMENSE CATHEDRAL.—The great Roman Catholic Cathedral of St. Peter and St. Paul, in Philadelphia, which has been 18 years in building, is to be dedicated on Sunday next. All the Catholic clergy of the United States and the Canadas, who can attend, are expected to be present. It is the largest Catholic church in the United States, cost a million of dollars, and is built solely by the contributions of the poorest religious denominations in Philadelphia. The dome, whose walls are 10 feet thick, is 210 feet high, and is surmounted by a huge gilt cross. Inside it is 51 feet across.

— The brothers Pereire in Paris, intend to publish a voluminous encyclopedia, which is to comprise the whole knowledge of humanity. A vast number of editors are to be engaged, and a corresponding sum of money is to be placed at their disposal. The whole work, it is thought, will extend to 200 volumes, the first of which is soon to appear. In connection with this undertaking is to be founded a "Credit mobilier de l'Intelligence" for authors and artists.

— An English tradesman claims to have bought, in a parcel of waste paper, a couple of autographs of Shakespeare. They are said to occur in a copy of the Book of Common Prayer, black letter, date 1596. At the foot of one page appear the words "William Shakespeare," and on another page "W. Shakespear, 1600." The signatures are said to be in "the ink of the period."

— An emancipation movement in Cuba looks to the gradual abolition of slavery, all persons born of servile parents, after the first of next January, to become free at the age of twenty-four, and to be paid for their labour after reaching the age of twenty, at the rate of $102 per annum for four years

— How well I remember some twenty years ago, when the world congratulated itself that the temple of Janus was again closed. A World's Peace Convention met in London. We thanked God that we were not as our fathers, and their fathers for the better part of six thousand years were. We have learned one lesson—that human nature, poor human nature, is ever the same, and we may get more decided lessons on that head yet.

— It is understood that Mr. Carlyle's concluding volumes of the "Life of Frederick" will be issued before the close of the publishing season we are now entering upon. The fifth volume is stated to be printed, but it will not be published until Vol. VI is ready to accompany it.

BEECHER AND BUTLER.— At the Butler jubilee in New York, Henry Ward Beecher made a speech which he concluded by saying:

When we have tried honest, prudent, considerate Abraham, [laughter] and he is tired and we need another man, if we cannot do better, I do trust there is no citizen present (looking with an insinuating smile at Butler) who would decline to act for a little while as President of the United States. The time may come when we need genius of executiveness and power of administration. [Cries, "Butler, Butler," "Yes, sir, he's the man."] If there is a man in the United States who has genius for administration I think that man is Butler. [Loud cheers. "Good, good." Bravo."] I beg you to understand distinctly that I do not nominate him. ["Yes, yes;" Cheers, "Butler."] It will be proved in due time that the New York Herald nominated him." [Loud cheers.]

CASTINE AWAKE.—The people at Castine, Me., are determined not to be caught asleep. They fired by mistake on the revenue steam cutter Mahoning on Sunday noon, as she was going into the harbor, and compelled her to skedaddle. One was a blank cartridge, and two others shots, which fell short. The cutter had her colors flying at the time. It was blowing a heavy gale, and she left for Seal Harbor. The gallant people of Castine labor under another hallucination that they have repelled the rebel raiders.

— In a speech in New Orleans recently, Jacob Barker mentioned incidentally that when Robert Fulton's machinery for the first steamboat came from the manufactory in England to New York, it was consigned to him, and that it actually remained in his commission warehouse six months before the money could be raised to pay the charges of importation.

— Elihu Burritt has been making calculations about women's petticoats — queer business for the learned Blacksmith — and says more than 10,000 tons of steel are put into crinoline in Christendom annually.

He is the happiest who does most to make others happy. The inventor of Herrick Allen's Gold Medal Saleratus must be the happiest man in existence, for we hazard nothing in saying that the use of the Gold Medal Saleratus cannot fail to make a happy household. Our better half says she does not fear of our ever frowning, as long as she can get the genuine Herrick Allen's. We say success to the inventor, and if everybody knew how good it is, no other baking would be used. A good many of our Merchants have it. Their depot is 112 Liberty Street, New York.

☞ Special attention is asked to Hunnewell's preparations, advertised on our inside columns. They are based on true medical laws, used very largely by Physicians, and most undoubted testimonials are in the hands of the proprietor, always open to inspection. Let Portsmouth and its vicinity bear testimony by a confidence to test them, which will be sacred.

The venerable Mrs. Partington once asked us if we believed that everything was foreordained before hand in advance. We were compelled to answer that sometimes we did and sometimes we didn't. She remarked that her son Isaac says he knows one thing was foreordained sure, and that is, that the J. Monroe Taylor Gold Medal Soap will supersede and run out every other kind of soap made. The old lady further remarked, that she believed so to, and was sure that there was no other so good, for she had tried it. 28

SAVE YOUR FUEL!

THE MODEL COOK.

IS, IN FACT,

The Best Stove Out,

for economy, convenience and dispatch.

Many people think it best to use an old stove as long as possible, but it is far better to throw it away and purchase a MODEL COOK, than to keep it at the present high price of fuel.

One of our shrewdest citizens who purchased a MODEL COOK STOVE a year since, says he has saved more than its cost already.

A careful, prudent farmer purchased one, and after it had been in operation some days his son came into the store and said, "something was wrong at their house;" his father and himself used wood off the same pile, he burned three baskets full a day, and his father only one! We sold him a Stove before he left, and there has been no complaint since.

These Stoves are in use in many hotels and boarding houses, and in hundreds of private families in this city and vicinity, and give the best of satisfaction.

PRICES REDUCED.

The subscriber has reduced the prices of the Model Cook Stoves FIVE DOLLARS each, to conform to the decline in gold.

Important to the Afflicted.

DR. DOW continues to be consulted at his office, Nos. 7 and 9 ENDICOTT STREET, Boston, on all diseases of a PRIVATE OR DELICATE NATURE.

By a long course of study and practical experience of unlimited extent, Dr. D. has now the gratification of presenting the unfortunate with remedies that have never, since he first introduced them, failed to cure the most alarming cases of

GONORRHŒA AND SYPHILIS.

Beneath his treatment, all the horrors of venereal and impure blood, Impotency, Scrofula, Gonorrhœa, Ulcers, pain and distress in the regions of procreation, Inflammation of the Bladder and Kidneys, Hydrocele, Absorbent Glands, Humors, frightful Swellings, and the long train of horrible symptoms attending this class of disease, are made to become as harmless as the simplest ailings of a child.

SEMINAL WEAKNESS.

Dr D., devotes a great part of his time to the treatment of those cases caused by a secret and solitary habit, which ruins the body and mind, unfitting the unfortunate individual for business or society. Some of the sad and melancholy effects produced by early habits of youth, are Weakness of the Back and limbs, Dizziness of the head, Dimness of sight, Palpitation of the Heart, Dyspepsia, Nervousness, Derangement of the digestive functions, Symptoms of Consumption, &c. The fearful effects on the mind are much to be dreaded; loss of memory, confusion of ideas, depression of spirits, evil forebodings, aversion of society, self-distrust, timidity, &c., are among the evils produced. Such persons should, before contemplating matrimony, consult a physician of experience, and be at once restored to health and happiness.

Patients who wish to remain under Dr. Dow's treatment a few days or weeks, will be furnished with pleasant rooms, and charges for board moderate.

Medicines sent to all parts of the country, with full directions for use, on receiving description of your case. Dr. Dow has now for sale his French Capotes, warranted the best preventive. Order by mail. Three for $1 and a red stamp.

Highly Important to Females

DR. DOW, Physician and Surgeon, No. 7 & 9 ENDICOTT STREET, Boston, is consulted daily for all diseases incident to the female system. Prolapsus Uteri, or falling of the Womb, Fluor Albus, Suppression, and other menstrual derangements, are all treated upon new pathological principles, and speedy relief guaranteed in few days. So invariably certain is the new mode of treatment, that most obstinate complaints yield under it, and the afflicted person soon rejoices in perfect health.

Dr. Dow has no doubt had greater experience in the cure of diseases of women and children, than any other physician in Boston.

Boarding accommodations for patients who may wish to stay in Boston a few days under his treatment.

Dr. Dow, since 1845, having confined his whole attention to one profession, for the cure of Private Diseases and Female Complaints, acknowledges no superior in the United States.

P. S.—All letters must contain four red stamps, or they will not be answered.

Office Hours from 8 A. M. to 9 P. M.

CERTAIN CURE

in all cases. No Charges Made.

Dr. Dow is consulted daily, from 8 A. M. to 9 P. M., as above, upon all difficult and chronic diseases of every name and nature, having by his unwearied attention and extraordinary success gained a reputation which calls patients from all parts of the country to obtain advice.

Among the physicians in Boston, none stands higher in the profession than the celebrated DR. DOW, No. 7 Endicott street, Boston. Those who need the services of an experienced physician and surgeon, will find Dr. Dow such.

P. S.—Dr. Dow imports and has for sale a new article, called the FRENCH SECRET. Order by mail. Two for $1 and a red stamp.

THE MAGEE
COOKING STOVE.

The subscriber, having received his Fall stock of Stoves, would especially call the attention of the public to the

CELEBRATED AND UNEQUALLED
MAGEE COOK STOVE,

as the very best Stove yet made, and would invite those about purchasing or exchanging Stoves, to examine this, believing it to be far superior to any other Stove yet invented, the castings being heavier, and the oven larger than usual. The oven plates are covered with plaster, which renders it equal to the old-fashioned brick oven for perfection in baking.

There is a new style and very superior broiler and and iron heater combined, by which the odor of broiling meats are prevented from escaping into the room. With the extension top there is a large copper Reservoir for hot water; also a large tin warming-closet attached, in which any article can be kept warm, while the other parts of the Stove are occupied for other purposes.

The arrangements for sifting the coal and cleaning the grate are far superior to those of any other Stove now in use, as no dust can possibly escape into the room, and the shovelling up of the ashes is entirely dispensed with. The fire is regulated in the same manner as in the MAGEE PARLOR STOVE, and can be continued day and night for weeks together, thus saving the expense of re-kindling every day.

For economy, durability, ease of management, cleanliness and perfection in cooking, it cannot be surpassed by any other Stove, as hundreds of families in this city and vicinity, who are now using them, are willing to testify, and speak of them in the highest terms of praise.

We would refer to the following purchasers:

"MAGEE'S PATENT"
VENTILATING & AIR-WARMING
FURNACES.

The subscriber, being the Sole Agent in this vicinity for the manufacture and sale of this valuable Furnace, would ask those about remodelling or erecting buildings to examine this truly valuable invention.

For economy, purity of air and ease of management it has no equal, producing a current of warm air, moist and agreeable;—and as none of the air which comes in contact with the fire-pots is used for respiration, the tendency to produce headache so much complained of in other furnaces, is entirely obviated.

The objection raised by the constructors of heating apparatus have been to obtain the greatest amount of heat from a given amount of fuel, and to prevent the escape of heat to the smoke pipe or chimney.

To accomplish this many complicated and expensive heating arrangements have been constructed, possessing but little improvement over former methods, while many have proved a total failure. The reason for this is obvious. The combustible gases being lighter than the air, pass off into the pipe or chimney without being consumed. This objection, so common in other Furnaces, is obviated in the

MAGEE FURNACE.

The flue or pipe in this Furnace being below the fire-pot, the gases, from their specific gravity, cannot descend with the House, where transient and permanent Boarding Horses receive the best attention—and the stock of Horses and Carriages to let has recently been much enlarged and improved. OTIS A. FROST, Proprietor.

No heating apparatus with the smoke-pipe or flue on the top of the cone can be made to consume the gases of the coal, as they pass off with a large amount of the heat generated, making the chimney the hottest part of your dwelling.

This Furnace does away with the great number of pipes and angles for the radiation of heat, which are so liable to fill up and get out of order, thus simplifying, while it increases the surface of radiation.

These Furnaces consume all the coal, make no clinkers, the sifting of coal is entirely dispensed with, and they will save from 30 to 50 per cent. of fuel over common Furnaces.

For ease of management, economy and purity of air these Furnaces have no equal. They can be Regulated so as to any amount of heat required, and the fire may be kept the entire season without once going out.

They give entire satisfaction wherever used. We have in store the different sizes, Brick and Portable, to which we invite the attention of those in want of the best Furnace in the world,—and would refer them to the following named gentlemen, who have them now in use:

Samuel Cleaves, Esq., Albert R. Hatch, Esq., Aaron H. Hill, Charles H. Mendum, Henry F. Wendell, John Sise, and others.

CHEROKEE REMEDY

CHEROKEE INJECTION,

CHEROKEE REMEDY, the great Indian Diuretic, cures all diseases of the urinary organs, such as Incontinence of the Urine, Inflammation of the Bladder, Inflammation of the Kidneys, Stone in the Bladder, Strictures, Gravel, Gleet, Gonorrhœa, and is especially recommended in those cases of Fluor Albus or Whites in females where all the old nauseous medicine have failed.

It is prepared in a highly concentrated form, the dose only being from one to two tablespoonfuls three times per day.

It is diuretic and alterative in its action; purifying and cleansing the blood, causing it to flow in all of its original purity and vigor; thus removing from the system all pernicious causes which have induced disease.

CHEROKEE INJECTION is intended as an auxiliary assistant to the CHEROKEE REMEDY, and should be used in conjunction with it in all cases, in all cases of Gonorrhœa, Gleet, Fluor Albus or Whites in effect healing, soothing and detergent; removing all scalding, heat, chordee and pain, instead of the burning and almost unendurable pain that is experienced with nearly all the cheap quack injections.

DOES FARMING PAY?—We say yes, better, or at any rate surer than any other business, take it twenty years together, if carried on as well. A correspondent of the Albany Country Gentleman gives the following sketch of the difference between English and American farming:

Here is just the point where Agriculture in New York fails. The farmer commences with his wife and axe. He hews a farm from the forest, or having bought a farm already hewed out, proceeds with industry and frugality to pay for it. That at last accomplished without capital, he cannot believe that money can to any extent be advantageously expended on his place. He even looks forward to the time when abandoned by his children who have long ago concluded that farming is too hard and frugal for them, he shall sell out and retire to some little gossiping village to finish his days in idleness and ease.

So if he finds himself after his crops are sold, five hundred or a thousand dollars ahead, he lays it out in bank stock or a mortgage. Not a dollar for draining; not a dollar for improved barns, with labor-saving mows, and more comfortable stables; not a dollar for convenient little tenant houses where he could accommodate married help, and thus save his family from the vexation and drudgery of boarding the hired help: not a dollar to improve and beautify the old house and make the place more attractive. He drudges on ten or twenty years longer, lays up a little fortune, and, a broken-down man at sixty, sells out, moves into the village, and is forgotten.

Not so does the English farmer. He has a pride in his profession. He will die in it. He will not slave his wife to death to board a houseful of disagreeable and fault-finding "hands." He will be a gentleman. His home shall be as attractive as his means will afford. With his spare money he will enlarge the area of his dry land—all the area that is worth anything of any farm—in short, he will use his capital in his business. If he has not land enough for his capital, he gets more, and he makes money. Not only does he make money for himself, but actually supports that rich aristocracy who own the soil he tills, in the most magnificent luxury known in the world. He makes farming pay.

THE RELIGION WANTED.—Rev. Dr. Huntington in a recent discourse says:

"We want a Christianity that is Christian across counters, over dinner-tables, behind the neighbor's back, as in his face. We want a Christianity that we can find in the temperance of the meal, in moderation of dress, in respect for authority, in amiability at home, in veracity and simplicity in mixed society. Rowland Hill used to say he would give very little for the religion of a man whose very dog and cat were not the better for his religion. We want fewer gossiping, slandering, gluttonous, peevish, conceited, bigoted Christians. To make them effectual, all our public religious measures, institutions, benevolent agencies, missions, need to be managed on a high toned, scrupulous, and unquestionable scale of honor, without evasion, or partisanship, or overmuch of the serpent's cunning. The hand that gives away the Bible must be unspotted from the world. The money that sends the missionary to the heathen must be honestly earned. In short, both the arms of the Church—justice and mercy—must be stretched out, working for man, strengthening the brethren, or else your faith is vain, and ye are yet in your sins."

— Though a Protestant country, the veneration for the emblematic cross is very great in the national religion of Denmark, and most of the churches are hung with pictures of the Crucifixion, and of other religious subjects.

Lawyers' mouths are like turnpike gates opened for pay.

— There was a congratulatory meeting at the Methodist Church, Gardiner, Me., Sunday week, over free Maryland. One hundred and twenty five dollars were collected to purchase supplies for the 2d Maine Cavalry.

There is no use in distributing tracts among the untractable.

Ayer's Ague Cure
For the speedy and certain cure of Intermittent Fever, or Fever and Ague, Remittent Fever, Chill Fever, Dumb Ague, Periodical Headache or Bilious Headache, and Bilious Fevers; indeed, for the whole class of diseases originating in biliary derangement, caused by the malaria of miasmatic countries.
FEVER AND AGUE is not the only consequence of the miasmatic poison. A great variety of disorders arise from its irritation in malarious districts, among which are Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Gout, Headache, Blindness, Toothache, Earache, Catarrh, Asthma, Palpitation, Painful Affection of the Spleen, Hysterics, Pain in the Bowels, Colic, Paralysis, and Derangement of the Stomach, all of which, when originating in this cause, put on the internal ieni type, or become periodical. This "Ague" expels the poison from the blood, and thus cures them all alike. It is not only the most effectual remedy ever discovered for this class of complaints, but it is the cheapest, and the safest, and perfectly safe. No harm can arise from its use, and the patient when cured is left as healthy as if he had never had the disease. Can this be said of any other cure for Chills and Fever? It is true of this, and its importance to those afflicted with the complaint cannot be overestimated. No sure is it to cure the Fever and Ague, that it may be truthfully said to be a certain remedy. One Dealer complains that it is a good medicine, to sell, because one bottle cures a whole neighborhood.
Prepared by J. C. AYER & CO., Lowell, Mass., and sold by Brackett Hutchings, J. H. Thacher, W. R. Preston, David Kimball, and all druggists

American and Foreign Patents.
R. H. EDDY.
SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,
Late Agent of U. S. Patent Office, Washington, (under date of 1857.)
76 State street, opposite Kilby street,
Boston.
After an extensive practice of upwards of twenty years, continues to secure Patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Bonds Assignments, and all Papers or Drawings for Patents, executed on liberal terms, and with dispatch. Researches made into American or Foreign works, to determine the validity or utility of patents or inventions—and legal or other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any Patent furnished by remitting one Dollar. Assignments recorded at Washington.
The Agency is not only the largest in New England, but through its invention have made arrangements for securing Patents, or ascertaining the patentability of inventions unsurpassed by, if not immeasurably superior to, any which can be offered them elsewhere. The Testimonials below given prove that none is MORE SUCCESSFUL AT THE PATENT OFFICE than the subscriber, and as SUCCESS IS THE BEST PROOF OF ADVANTAGES AND ABILITY, he would add that he has abundant reason to believe, and can prove, that at no other office of the kind are the charges for professional service so moderate.
The immense practice of the subscriber during twenty years past, has enabled him to accumulate a vast collection of specifications and official decisions relative to patents.
These, besides his extensive library of legal and mechanical works, and full accounts of patents granted in the United States and Europe, render him able, beyond question, to offer superior facilities for obtaining Patents.
All necessity of a journey to Washington, to procure a patent, and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.
TESTIMONIALS.
"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse."
CHARLES MASON,
Commissioner of Patents.
"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a person more competent and trustworthy, and more capable of putting their applications in form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office."
EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents
Mr. R. H Eddy has made for me THIRTEEN applications, on all but ONE of which patents have been granted, and that is now pending. Such unmistakeable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend all inventors to apply to him to procure their patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their case, and at very reasonable charges."
JOHN TAGGART.
During eight months, the subscriber, in course of his large practice, made on twice rejected applications SIXTEEN APPEALS, EVERY ONE of which was decided in his favor, by the Commissioner of Patents. R. H. EDDY.

FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 18, 1864.

A FIRST RATE NOTICE. — There has been a rumor that the new Legislature of New Jersey would send ex-General McClellan to the U. S. Senate for six years from next March. The New York News, the leading paper of all the copperhead persuasion, alludes to the rumor, — and says: —

We hope that the Democracy of New Jersey will be on the alert to defeat such a movement. General McClellan is linked to the corpse of the War Democracy, and the most fitting place for both is a political sepulchre. There is no need that she should take up one who is almost a stranger to her soil, and whose political antecedents are not associated with her own, except in the single instance of a Presidential campaign that conclusively demonstrated his political weakness, and whose political existence has been confined thus far within the brief but fatal record of War Democracy. General McClellan is a proven and acknowledged failure. Any attempt to bring him into public life would be to parade his failure.

This is what we call a first rate notice of Gen. McClellan — and it shows up clearly the character of that much vaunted democratic party, which we have been told, over and over again, was the only one that could conduct the affairs of the country. — If in the late canvass, this famous party had been successful this "failure" was to have been the nominal ruler, only; while the real ruling powers were to be, the New York Woods, the New York rowdies, Vallandigham and Seymour, and last but not least, Jeff. Davis & Co.

HEADQUARTERS 1st N. H. CAVALRY,
Near Middletown, Va., Nov. 8th.

Dear Chronicle: Since my last, nothing of unusual importance has occurred in our regiment. We have been lying in camp for some time, and taking our turn on picket, which comes once in four days. The duty is not hard, but comes oftener than it would if our regiment was full. We have the same duty to do that other regiments in the Brigade have, and yet we have but seven companies with us, and they are not full. For instance, Co. A musters on the rolls about 70 men, while there are but 20 present for duty,—the remainder being prisoners, in hospital, or at Remount Camp.

The election, the main feature of to-day's business, has passed off quietly; and it shows that though few we are true to the cause for which we have engaged to fight. The following is a statement of the vote: McClellan, 5; Lincoln, 71. We are proud of the above record, and hope the people at home will as emphatically declare in favor of the Country. Yours, R. E. S.

LARGE COPPER CASTING.—Mr. Thornton, of Birmingham, has the largest copper idol ever brought to England, and one of the modern wonders of the world. Under a shed in his coach yard is no less a personage than the god Budha, measuring over seven feet in length, and one of the most marvellous pieces of copper casting ever found. Direct from one of the lower rooms of his temple, where he had been hidden away some 2,000 years ago, his godship has been brought to the New World capital of copper and bronze castings. It will probably be deposited in the Midland Institute. Thus, after a lapse of 2,500 years, Buddha will be enthroned again in a temple better worthy of him, because devoted to higher and more ennobling pursuits than the one in which he found his first resting place in the temple of Scottangunge.

KLEPTOMANIA.—The Washington Star is responsible for the almost incredible statement that persons of both sexes have been guilty of clipping pieces from the window curtains, sofa, lounge and chair covers of the President's mansion. They even go so far as to pull the papering from the walls, and even to steal heavy brackets from the windows and tassels from the curtains. The curtains in the East and Green Rooms are very badly cut up, and nineteen out of twenty brackets stolen from the windows of the East Room alone. This practice is indulged in with a view to secure relics of visits to the President's Mansion, and ladies and gentlemen of high standing have been detected in it. Three ladies, whose names are not made known, have been caught in the act within a few days, one of whom fainted when discovered. The annoyance has grown so great that measures have been taken to prevent a repetition of the offences.

HALE'S HONEY OF HOREHOUND AND TAR.—Horehound has been from time immemorial a popular remedy for coughs and colds, and tar has ever enjoyed a rare popularity for affections of the chest, air-passage and lungs. Hale's "Honey of Horehound and Tar" is a peculiar combination of the vital principle of these two medicaments, and is said to cure, in consequence, all that class of diseases which lead to consumption, in the most extraordinary and reliable manner. How the distinguished chemist has succeeded in blending these two great medicinal forces is a mystery, but their remedial effect is amply vouched for by those the Honey has cured.—N. Y. Times.

THE REBELLION.

Richmond papers of the 14th say Hood is ill.

Gen. Sherman left Atlanta on the 11th. inst. There was an unreliable rumor in New York on Thursday that he had reached Macon, Ga.

Eastern Kentucky, which has been quiet since the death of John Morgan, is now overrun by a gang of mounted guerillas under Col. Cosdell.

The troops which Gen. Butler had in New York sailed for the James river on Monday evening. Gen. Butler and staff have gone to the front, after all.

The Louisville Journal abandons slavery, frankly admitting that it is virtually dead by its own hand. And it says, if the Anti-Slavery Constitution, so powerfully advocated by Henry Clay many years, had been adopted, the State would now be more prosperous, wealth and happy than it is.

The bombardment of Charleston and Fort Sumter still continues with steadiness and severity. The people down that way must be getting used to it.

The Richmond Sentinel tells a big story, —that a Union Brigadier General had deserted to the rebels; and that Lincoln has called for a million men! It "does not vouch for the truth of it, however."

NEW HAMPSHIRE ITEMS.

—— The sleighs were out in Manchester on Monday morning, and sported their brief hour.

—— Brig. Gen. Gilman Marston left Exeter on Wednesday, to return to his command in the field.

—— The Mechanics Bank at Concord will consider at the next annual meeting the questions of reducing capital and of closing up.

—— In view of the late raids on the frontier, steps have been taken in Lancaster for the formation and arming of a competent military company, as provided by law.

—— Snow fell to the depth of six inches in Lancaster on Sunday and Sunday night. At Gorham and Columbia it was 12 inches deep.

—— George H. Niebuhr, Esq., has been appointed Clerk of the Supreme Judicial Court for Strafford County, in place of Maj. Andrew H. Young, resigned.

—— The democracy, generally, voted against the Convention to revise the Constitution. In Barnstead the vote was 17 for to 181 against; in Moultonborough 1 for, 160 against; and other copperhead towns like unto them.

—— We learn from the Monitor that the Governor and Council have unanimously voted to continue the payment of $100, $200, and $300, State bounty, for one, two and three years' men, who enter the military or naval service of the United States, whether they enter old or new organizations, and whether they are volunteers or substitutes for enrolled men.

GARDEN ROBBER CAUGHT. — Moses French of Exeter, was tried before Justice Batchelder on Tuesday, convicted of stealing twenty-three cabbages from the garden of Hiram Gilmore, and mulcted in $24 fine and cost, for want of which he was committed to jail.

POLICE REINFORCEMENT.—The many burglaries recently committed in Exeter and vicinity, have caused many citizens to think that our police force should be augmented. The wife of our Chief of Police seems to have entertained the same notion, and on Tuesday morning presented her husband with two likely boys. For a Gray couple this is doing well.—Ballot.

— Mr. Wm. Sample, of the 54th P. V., in Sheridan's army, writes to a friend that while guarding some rebel prisoners, one of them told him that he himself had heard Early say that "he would be in Pennsylvania on election day, or in hell." There is no longer any doubt that the boasts of the rebel papers that Early started for Pennsylvania on an electioneering tour "for the peace candidate," were correct; but the gallant Phil. Sheridan somewhat spoiled this stumper's calculations, both military and political.

— The Newburyport Herald states that a man in that vicinity, supposed to be worth considerable property, recently died, but not being an accountant he trusted entirely to memory—keeping all his accounts in his head. Suddenly he died—his head, where his accounts were kept, went in to the other world, and his property went with it, for few persons can remember that they owe a dead man's estate, unless the bill is presented. Therefore he carried with him all the property he was worth—all the money he had.

MORE COAL.—An extensive strata of excellent coal has been found at Fort Rice, Nebraska. One vein of coal was six feet thick. This coal field extends to the southwest, and it is supposed outcrops on the slopes of the Black Hills. The existence of this great coal field half way between the great lakes and the Rocky Mountains is a fact of great importance. Aside from furnishing fuel for navigation on the upper Missouri River, it will affect the location of a railroad across the great plains to the Pacific.

ITEMS—NEW AND OLD.

— Gold 223 3-4.

—It is said McClellan is going to Europe.

— Look out for counterfeit 3s on the Marine Bank, New Bedford, Mass.

— A Pennsylvania man has been fined $500 for conspiring to resist the draft.

— More than two-thirds of the crew of the Kearsarge are native-born Americans.

— Government stocks have steadily tended upward ever since the election.

— The pirate Florida has been ordered to New York for adjudication in the Prize Court.

— The Boston police found nine stores and one house open on Tuesday night. In one store door the keys were left.

— Rev. H. W. Beecher recently gave as a reason for not belonging to the democratic party that he was a democrat.

— It is worthy of note that had the entire South voted for McClellan, he would still have lacked 50 votes of a majority.

— 15,000 sets (16 volumes each) of the Appletons' American Encyclopædia have been sold.

— Brig. Gen. Tyler has forwarded to the Adjutant General's Office the black flag captured from Early's command last August.

— Forgeries to the amount of $250,000 have been discovered in New York, and several men have been arrested.

— A sale of one million dollars in gold was made in New York, Friday afternoon, at 222 1-2, seller sixty days.

— The pirate Florida joined in a salute fired by the fleet in Hampton Roads on the 12th, in honor of President Lincoln's re-election.

— Sec. Fessenden directed payment of the January interest on the loan on Thursday, thus throwing about 15 millions of gold on the market.

— The price of gold brings down the price of produce with it. Flour is 30 to 40 cents lower; wheat 3 to 5; corn and oats both declining, as well as pork and lard.

— The Saco Democrat is contemplating a reduction of its size, which would be a great improvement, as no paper is more worthy of reduction.

— The subject of the seizure of the Florida in the harbor of Bahia, has not yet been presented to the United States Government by that of Brazil.

— The Cairo Dry Dock was destroyed on Saturday by the current of the river forcing it from its moorings. Loss over $50-000.

— Gen. Pope's report, just received, states that the Indian War is at an end in the North-west, and a permanent peace with the different tribes is probable.

— The N. Y. Tribune's dispatch asserts that McClellan's resignation was received at the War Office on the day of the election, and was accepted in less than two minutes after its receipt.

— The St. Albans robbers are loud in boasting of their work, and threaten all sorts of retaliation in case any punishment is inflicted. Their friends are trying to delay the decision until instructions can be got from Richmond.

— The remains of the young man who was recently murdered and cast piecemeal into the East River, were buried at Brooklyn on Saturday, and thus far nothing has been revealed tending to unravel the mystery which shrouds this shocking murder.

— John Pitman, for 40 years Judge of the U. S. District Court in Rhode Island, was found dead in his bed in Providence on Friday morning. He was on the bench on Thursday, but very feeble. He was 80 years of age.

— Many a child presents the appearance of dulness, merely because the avenue of his mind has not been found; and not found because not sought. It is unreasonable to expect that one uniform mode of instruction shall be equally intelligible to all.

— Information from Stafford and Spottsylvania Counties, Va., shows that the rebel conscripting officers are scouring the country in all directions, and every man under 60 and every boy over 15 impressed into the rebel service.

— Bermuda dates bring news that the Pirate Chickamauga arrived at Five Fathom Hole on the morning of the 7th, for repairs. She had captured a bark and two schooners, names unknown, besides those reported.

— The Electors of President and Vice President meet on the first Wednesday of December, at the capitals of their respective States, to cast their votes, which are sent to the President of the Senate, and counted before both houses of Congress on the second Wednesday of February.

— The Hartford Convention adjourned Jan. 5, 1815, to meet in Boston in June, but "events rendered a second session unnecessary." The Chicago Convention did not dissolve in August, but provision was made for its reassembling. Events have transpired which will probably render a second session unnecessary.

FIRST CONGRESSIONAL DISTRICT. — The majority for Lincoln in the four counties composing the First Congressional District in this State is about 900 on the home vote, which will be considerably increased by the ballots of the soldiers in the field. If the Republicans act judiciously in the selection of a candidate, the brilliant Congressional career of Daniel Marcy will soon terminate.—Ballot.

No vocabulary can furnish language sufficiently strong in commendation of that excellent and indispensable article known as the J. Monroe Taylor Gold Medal Soap. The lady having aught to do in any household department, from the wash tub to the finest needle work, should not fail to supply herself with a year's stock. It only requires a person to use it once to see it their whole life. Most of the grocers sell it. 29

He is the happiest who does most to make others happy. The inventor of Herrick Allen's Gold Medal Saleratus must be the happiest man in existence, for we hazard nothing in saying that the use of the Gold Medal Saleratus cannot fail to make a happy household. Our better half says she does not fear of our ever frowning, as long as she can get the genuine Herrick Allen's. We say success to the inventor, and if everybody knew how good it is, no other would be used. A good many of our Merchants have it. Their depot is 112 Liberty Street, New York.

☞ Special attention is asked to Hunnewell's preparations, advertised on our inside columns. They are based on true medical laws, used very largely by Physicians, and most undoubted testimonials are in the hands of the proprietor, always open to inspection. Let Portsmouth and its vicinity bear testimony by a confidence to test them, which will be sacred.

HALE'S

Honey of Horehound Tar,

For the cure of Coughs, Colds, Influenza, Hoarseness, Difficult Breathing, and all Affections of the Throat, Bronchial Tubes and Lungs, leading to Consumption.

This sovereign remedy is compounded from the favorite recipe of an illustrious Physician and Chemist, who for many years used it with the most complete success in his extensive private practice.

He had long been profoundly impressed with the wonderful virtue of the honey of the plant Horehound, in union with the Cleansing and Healing properties of Tar extracted from the Life Principle of the forest tree Abies Balsamea, or Balm of Gilead. For years he was baffled in his attempts to blend these great medicinal forces into such a union that the original power of each would be preserved, the disagreeable qualities of common tar removed, and the price of the compound be within the means of all. At last after a long course of chemical experiments, he found that by adding to these five other ingredients, each one valuable in itself, he not only obtained the desired results but greatly increased the curative power of the compound. This having been thoroughly tested by practice, is now offered to the general public as a safe, pleasant and infallible remedy.

PRICE, 50 CENTS PER BOTTLE.

"A Wonderful Discovery."

DR. TEBBETTS' "PHYSIOLOGICAL HAIR REGENERATOR" is compounded in strict accordance with the well known laws of Physiology and modern vegetable Chemistry. It is not a "DYE," and will not stain a particle. It will "REGENERATE GRAY HAIR" in all cases to its original color. It promotes a luxuriant growth of new HAIR in all cases on BALD HEADS, when the glands or roots of the hair are not completely disorganized. It prevents the hair from falling off and removes all dandruff, heat, humors and itching from the scalp. It keeps the hair soft, moist and perfectly healthy and gives it a glossy and beautiful appearance. It is highly perfumed, and as a Dressing it has no superior. The "REGENERATOR" is warranted to produce the above results in all cases, if not the money to be refunded. With it every "GRAY HEAD" in New England can be restored in less than sixty days.

☞ We regret exceedingly to notice in the Manchester Mirror the following statements respecting Rev. Jonathan Hall, who has long been so favorably known to most of our readers. What embarrassment and disquietude of mind must he have suffered during the past few years—and all through indiscretion in becoming involved in debt, for a most noble and public-spirited object at first. We hope the circumstances may turn out to be less unfavorable than is hinted—but there is no knowing what a good man may be driven to when he gets cornered. The action of the Trustees appears singular—for what is a paltry $500 compared to the distress of a family, and the reproach a pastor's exposure may bring upon a church? But perhaps they deemed his conduct not to be approved or endorsed. We hope for the best in the denouement, and in the meantime give the Mirror's statement:

Rev. J. Hall, pastor of the Elm Street Methodist Church, in Manchester, for the past year and a half, has left for parts unknown. Financial troubles are supposed to be at the bottom of the whole matter. Last week Thursday, he called the Trustees of his Society together, and stated that if he could raise $500 he could save himself. The Trustees took no definite action and adjourned. That evening he left for Concord, and wrote back to the Trustees:

"Could I have had a pledge from you of $500, I could have redeemed myself."

A letter was left in his house and addressed to his wife, which says:

"It is for no crime, but misfortune, that I leave. Go to your father's, and when I can get located, I will send relief."

He has not been heard from since Thursday of last week.

Six years ago he joined with two other men in buying a steamboat, as he tells the story, at Portsmouth, to make money to pay off a Church debt. The first year she was unlucky, and the second she run on a snag, and he has been running on snags ever since. He has kept his troubles to himself, lived by borrowing from Peter to pay Paul.

What aggravates matters is that he has borrowed extensively in Manchester of friends, and gone off with the money. A good deal of scandal is mixed up with the stories, but what we have given seem to be the facts.

We will only add, that Mr. Hall probably never "bought a steamboat," or attempted to; but that by an unfortunate experiment in chartering the well-known Portland barge "Comfort" to come up here and get up excursions, in the vain hope to make money to help support himself and pay for his new church, he became involved, and the sad result is as related—great discomfort, to say the least, to all concerned. But we are not without hope that it will not turn out so very badly, after all. F.

☞ Mr. George W. Butler, after having served the Government most faithfully for eight years as clerk in the Naval Storekeeper's Office at the Portsmouth Navy Yard, on Monday last tendered his resignation, having accepted the offer of a clerkship in the National M. & T. Bank in this city Mr. B. has been distinguished on the Yard for his gentlemanly deportment to all, fidelity in his labors, and correctness in the transaction of the arduous duties devolving upon him; and we can but congratulate the managers of the National Bank in obtaining his services.

The clerks and writers of the Navy Yard, determining to acknowledge in some manner their appreciation of Mr. Butler, purchased a fine gold Watch Chain, and on Wednesday evening surprised him at his place of residence by a call. After the usual courtesies were exchanged, Francis Bacon, Esq., in behalf of the donors, presented the chain, with a few appropriate remarks; to which Mr. Butler responded feelingly, saying that this token of esteem should always be held by him as a remembrance of his former pleasant associations, and the kind regards of his fellow clerks. It was a complete surprise, notwithstanding the indiscreet disclosure of a part of the programme by one who was not one of the donors.

Messrs. Editors:—Some very absurd reports are in circulation in regard to the extravagance of our City Government. It is stated that one of the Aldermen received five dollars per day for sixty days' services in superintending repairs on Sagamore Bridge, and charged for use of horse and carriage in addition. The fact is, no charge at all has been made, either for personal service or horse hire.

The Mayor and Aldermen have made some expenditures during the past year which are considered very injudicious by many of our citizens; but it is fair to presume that they have served the city to the best of their ability, in an honest and faithful manner, without enriching themselves at the public expense. S.

There seems to be a desire evinced by many that our next Mayor shall be a functionary that can suit every body and carry on the affairs of the city without expending any money. Whether such a valuable acquisition will befall us remains to be seen. It is conceded that it is easier to imagine a model mayor than to find one.—Ballot.

☞ We learn that Mr. R. B. Forbes, of steamship renown, was the holder of the lucky number that drew the model of the Kearsarge on exhibition at the Sailors' Fair in Boston. The drawing took place on Wednesday.

☞ The Lyceum is such a decided success, in all particulars, that we have omitted to mention the second entertainment before. Mr. Phillips' lecture, was not exactly the phillipic against the Government and President which was expected and feared; but as a literary and scholastic production, was altogether more worthy of the orator, than last year's effort. His topic was "the times;" and his idea, to urge the American people to insist on making "all men equal" before the law, no matter what their race or color. This he presented as only he can—and although he was hoarse and wearied, and his glorious voice is breaking up under the intensity of his long-continued efforts for freedom and progress; yet it is ever grateful to listen to his beautiful, free-flowing language, well-turned periods, faultless pronunciation—in all respects, perfect oratory. He was eminently American and National in his sentiments, and his discourse was well received by a very large and intensely interested audience, and cannot fail to be productive of good.

☞ We are informed that it has been decided not to have the proposed Union celebration in this city of the victory in the recent election.

In Manchester also the proposed celebration has been abandoned, the general feeling being that neither words nor gunpowder are fit expressions of the joy at the great result. It seems better to act as has been done in Boston, Lowell, and other places, and to turn the contributions into another channel, for the benefit of the families of soldiers and the poor of the city.

THE MODEL COOK.

IS, IN FACT,

The Best Stove Out,

for economy, convenience and dispatch.

Many people think it best to use an old stove as long as possible, but it is far better to throw it away and purchase a MODEL COOK, than to keep it at the present high price of fuel.

One of our shrewdest citizens who purchased a MODEL COOK STOVE a year since, says he has saved more than its cost already.

A careful, prudent farmer purchased one, and after it had been in operation some days his son came into the store and said, "something was wrong at their house;" his father and himself used wood off the same pile, he burned three baskets full a day, and his father only one! We sold him a Stove before he left, and there has been no complaint since.

These Stoves are in use in many hotels and boarding houses, and in hundreds of private families in this city and vicinity, and give the best of satisfaction.

SHADOWS.

BY ISABELLA LAW.

Then the children are hushed in the nursery,
And the swallow sleeps in the eaves.
And the night-wind is murmuring secrets
Apart to the listening leaves;
Then I open the inner chamber
That was closed from the dust of day,
And gently undraw the curtain
Where my holiest treasures lay.

Sweet spirits that may not slumber;
Cool shadows from lights now gone;
And the echo of voices sounding,
All sounding for me alone.
And, blending among the others,
One echo is softer yet,
One shadow is cooler, deeper;
And my dimming eyes grow wet.

For the image I gaze on longest,
Is the image that blessed my youth;
The angel that lit my journey
With her lamp of love and truth.
We travelled life's way together
A little while side by side;
And when I grew faint and weary,
That light was my strength and guide.

And dearer it grew—how dearer!
Till I watched it wane and fade;
And my angel said at last to part,
Be patient, be not afraid.
And when I was sick and weary
With the need and the fret of the day,
How the sense of her words comforted me,—
Her words are the word away.

And I sat for a patient wisdom,
As I journey the way alone;
Till I stood on the golden threshold
Of the unseen where she is gone.
When the children are hushed in the nursery,
And the swallow sleeps in the eaves,
And the night wind is murmuring secrets
Apart to the listening leaves.

"Lending umbrellas would seem to be about as unpromising a trade as a man could go into, but it has been established as a regular business in Paris. The shops of tobacconists are agencies for the loan of the articles, where any one caught in a shower may procure an umbrella by depositing its value as security, returning it the next day to any tobacconist's shop, an account being kept between them. Six sous is the price of a day's hire.

A dealer in old books in London occasions a good deal of amusement to those who inspect his stock by the curious labels which he attaches to different works. What, for instance, would Dr. Johnson say to the following: "Landus, and how to see his?" and another labelled "Leives of the Poyets—price 'arf a crown?"

What garment is too light to be either modest or useful? The shift of the wind.

Dr D. devotes a great part of his time to the treatment of those cases caused by a secret and solitary habit, which ruins the body and mind, unfitting the unfortunate individual for business or society. Some of the sad and melancholy effects produced by early habits of youth, are Weakness of the Back and limbs, Dizziness of the head, Dimness of sight, Palpitation of the heart, Dyspepsia, Nervousness, Derangement of the digestive functions, Symptoms of Consumption, &c. The fearful effects on the mind are much to be dreaded; loss of memory, confusion of ideas, depression of spirits, evil forebodings, aversion of society, self-distrust, love of solitude, &c., are some of the evils produced. Such persons should, before contemplating matrimony, consult a physician of experience, and be at once restored to health and happiness.

Patients who wish to remain under Dr. Dow's treatment a few days or weeks can be furnished with pleasant rooms, and charges for board moderate.

THE MAGEE COOKING STOVE.

The subscriber, having received his Fall stock of Stoves, would especially call the attention of the public to the

MAGEE COOK STOVE,

as the very best Stove yet made, and would invite those about purchasing or exchanging Stoves, to examine this, believing it to be far superior to any other Stove yet invented, the castings being heavier, and the ovens larger than usual. The oven plates are covered with plaster, which renders it equal to the old-fashioned brick oven for perfection in baking.

There is a new style and very superior broiler and air iron heater combined, by which the odor of broiling meats are prevented from escaping into the room. With the extension top there is a large copper Reservoir for hot water; also a large tin warming-closet attached, in which any article can be kept warm, while the other parts of the Stove are occupied for other purposes.

The arrangements for sifting the coal and cleaning the grate are far superior to those of any other Stove now in use, as no dust can possibly escape into the room, and the shovelling up of the ashes is entirely dispensed with. The fire is regulated in the same manner as in the MAGEE PARLOR STOVE, and can be continued day and night for weeks together, thus saving the expense of re-kindling every day.

For economy, durability, ease of management, cleanliness and perfection in cooking, it cannot be surpassed by any other Stove, as hundreds of families in this city and vicinity, who are now using them, are willing to testify, and speak of them in the highest terms of praise.

We would refer to the following purchasers:

"MAGEE'S PATENT"

VENTILATING & AIR-WARMING

FURNACES.

The subscriber, being the Sole Agent in this vicinity for the manufacture and sale of this valuable Furnace, would ask those about remodelling or erecting buildings to examine this truly valuable invention.

For economy, purity of air and ease of management it has no equal, producing a current of warm air without dust and smoke, and as none of the air which comes in contact with the fire-pot is used for respiration, the tendency to produce headaches so much complained of in other Furnaces, is entirely obviated.

The objects aimed at by the constructors of heating apparatus have been to obtain the greatest amount of heat from a given amount of fuel, and to prevent the escape of heat to the smoke pipe or chimney.

To accomplish this many complicated and expensive heating arrangements have been constructed, some possessing but little improvement over former methods, while others have proved a total failure. The reason for this is obvious. The combustible gases being lighter than the air, pass off into the pipe or chimney without being consumed. The objections so common in other Furnaces, is obviated in the

MAGEE FURNACE.

The flue or pipe in this Furnace being below the fire-pot, the gases, from their specific gravity, cannot descend, and are burned up by the admission of cold air through the fire-pot, which ignites them as they pass off from the coal, thus saving at least 20 per cent. of the properties of the heat in the fuel.

No heating apparatus with the smoke-pipe or flue so low down that it can be made to consume the gases of the coal, as they pass off with a large amount of the heat generated, making the chimney the hottest part of your dwelling.

This Furnace does away with the great number of pipes and angles for the radiation of heat, which are so liable to fill up and get out of order, thus simplifying, while it increases the surface of radiation.

These Furnaces consume all the coal, make no clinkers, the sifting of coal is entirely dispensed with, and they will save from 30 to 50 per cent. of fuel over common Furnaces.

For ease of management, economy and purity of air these Furnaces have no equal. They can be regulated so as to give any amount of heat required, and the fire may be kept the entire season without once going out.

They give entire satisfaction wherever used. We have in store the different sizes, Brick and Portable, to which we invite the attention of those in want of the best Furnace in the world,—and would refer them to the following named gentlemen, who have them now in use:

Samuel Cleaves, Esq.,	Albert R. Hatch, Esq.,

CHEROKEE INJECTION,

Compounded from Roots, Barks & Leaves.

CHEROKEE REMEDY, the great Indian Diuretic, cures all diseases of the urinary organs, such as Incontinence of the Urine, Inflammation of the Bladder, Inflammation of the Kidneys Stone in the Bladder, Strictures, Gravel, Gleet, Gonorrhœa, and is especially recommended in those cases of Fluor Albus or Whites in females) where all the old nauseous medicines have failed.

It is prepared in a highly concentrated form, the dose only being from one to two tablespoonfuls three times per day.

It is diuretic and alterative in its action; purifying and cleansing the blood, causing it to flow in all of its original purity and vigor; thus removing from the system all pernicious causes which have induced disease.

CHEROKEE INJECTION is intended as an ally or assistant to the CHEROKEE REMEDY, and should be used in conjunction with that medicine in all cases of Gonorrhœa, Gleet, Fluor Albus or Whites. CHEROKEE REMEDY

—AND—

CHEROKEE INJECTION,

Compounded from Roots, Barks & Leaves.

CHEROKEE REMEDY, the great Indian Diuretic, cures all diseases of the urinary organs, such as Incontinence of the Urine, Inflammation of the Bladder, Inflammation of the Kidneys Stone in the Bladder, Strictures, Gravel, Gleet, Gonorrhœa, and is especially recommended in those cases of Fluor Albus or Whites in females) where all the old nauseous medicines have failed.

It is prepared in a highly concentrated form, the dose only being from one to two tablespoonfuls three times per day.

It is diuretic and alterative in its action; purifying and cleansing the blood, causing it to flow in all of its original purity and vigor; thus removing from the system all pernicious causes which have induced disease.

CHEROKEE INJECTION is intended as an ally or assistant to the CHEROKEE REMEDY, and should be used in conjunction with that medicine in all cases of Gonorrhœa, Gleet, Fluor Albus or Whites. Its effects are healing, soothing and demulcent; removing all scalding, heat, chordee and pain, instead of the burning and almost unendurable pain that is experienced with nearly all the cheap quack injections.

☞ By the use of the CHEROKEE REMEDY and CHEROKEE INJECTION—the two medicines at the same time—all improper discharges are stopped, and the weakened organs are speedily restored to full vigor and strength.

For full particulars get our pamphlet from any drug store in the country, or write us and we will mail free, to any address, a full treatise.

Price—CHEROKEE REMEDY, $2 per bottle or three bottles for $5.

THE GREAT NATION OF THE WORLD. Our country is of such vast extent, and consequently of such various climate that we should be compared, not with this or that European country, but with all Europe. It is not between the United States and England or France that comparisons should be instituted, but America and Europe, the New World and the Old. The land that yet owns the sway of the stars and stripes is capable of supporting in ease and affluence at least ten times the number of people that now live in it. It could contain as many inhabitants as now dwell in the British Islands, in France, in Spain, in Italy, and in Germany, and yet not be full; and it would give to them all as various a climate as that which the leading European races now enjoy, from the land of snow and the birch and the fir to the land of sunshine and the orange and the palm. It could provide them all with pursuits as different and as profitable as those which they now follow, and under which they prosper. Whether they excel by sea or on land, here they could be perfectly at home, with ample room to multiply and increase.

If we descend to particulars, we find that there is enough to do here to command the minds and labors of countless millions. We have coal enough to feed the furnaces and the fires of the world; and we have scarcely broken through that coal's first crust. We have oil enough to light creation and to keep it in good working order,—a new interest, as yet in the nursery, having been called into being within a year or two. The cry for cotton is great, and, peace once restored, we shall be able to meet that cry with full supplies, and show that neither India nor any other land can become our successful rival. Men wish for food, and what soil exceeds ours in yielding food, either in quantity or diversity? Ships are called for to do the earth's commerce, and we not only have the raw materials from which ships are made, but the skill and the unwearying work that render those materials available. This is an age of manufacturing competition, and we have not been found unequal to the business of competing with lands that had become famous as seats of manufactures before the first house was built in the first American town.

Considering all these things,—considering, too, that under our free system all men are educated, and that the spirit of monopoly nowhere steps into prevent intellect and intelligence from having their just influence,—we are warranted in asserting that our resources are boundless; for what are resources but the results of the application of enterprising and enlightened labor to the means of a given land? Were our territory small and monotonous,—were we a Holland or even an England,—we might be excused for being somewhat alarmed because of the greatness of our obligations. But when we contemplate the vastness and variety of our territory, and the not less vast variety of that territory's productions, and the talent and ambition by which all things are here brought under human dominion and governance, we have every reason for the loftiest hopes, and none whatever for fears. America is yet in the bloom of her earliest youth. She has not even felt her first vigor. There is no imaginable burden to which she is not equal, and which she will not honorably sustain, let her enemies say what they please of her powers and of her intentions.—Com. Bulletin.

American and Foreign Patents.
R. H. EDDY,
SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,
Late Agent of U. S. Patent Office, Washington, (under the Act of 1857,)
76 State street, opposite Kilby street,
Boston.
After an extensive practice of upwards of twenty years, continues to secure Patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Bonds Assignments, and all Papers or Drawings for Patents, executed on liberal terms, and with dispatch. Researches made into American or Foreign works, to determine the validity or utility of patents or inventions—and legal or other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of Patents furnished by forwarding One Dollar. Assignments recorded at Washington.
The Agency is not only the largest in New England, but through it inventors have advantages for securing Patents, or ascertaining the patentability of inventions unsurpassed by, if not immeasurably superior to, any which can be offered them elsewhere. The Testimonials below given prove that none is MORE SUCCESSFUL AT THE PATENT OFFICE, (to quote the subject; and as SUCCESS IS THE BEST PROOF OF ADVANTAGES AND ABILITY, he would add that he has abundant reason to believe, he can prove, that at no other office of the kind are the charges for professional service so moderate.
The immense practice of the subscriber during twenty years past, has enabled him to accumulate a vast collection of specifications and official decisions relative to patents.
Hence, he has a more ample library of legal and mechanical works, and full accounts of patents granted in the United States and Europe, render him able, beyond question, to offer superior facilities for obtaining Patents.
All necessity of a journey to Washington, to procure a patent, and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.
TESTIMONIALS.
"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse."
CHARLES MASON,
Commissioner of Patents.
"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a person more competent and trustworthy, and more capable of putting their applications in form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office."
EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents
Mr. R. H. Eddy has made for me THIRTEEN applications, on all but ONE of which patents have been granted, and that is now pending. Such unanimity of success is of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend all inventors to apply to him to procure their patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases, and at very reasonable charges." JOHN TAGGART.
During eight months, the subscriber, in course of his large practice, made on seven Rejected applications SIXTEEN APPEALS, EVERY ONE of which was decided in his favor, by the Commissioner of Patents. R. H. EDDY.

Portsmouth, N. H.

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 19, 1864.

EXTENSIVE FORGERIES on banks in New York and neighboring cities have been discovered; but the only complaint yet made public is by the Bank of Commerce. A Check for $25,000, purporting to have been signed by Richard D. Larthrop, of the firm of Larthrop, Ludington & Co., and certified by the Mechanics' Bank, was presented at the Bank of Commerce, and the money drawn. This check was subsequently found to be forged. The detectives finally became convinced that the forgery had been perpetrated by Walter Patterson, Michael O'Brien, Ira Garadier, alias Garside, George F. Coughlin, Hugh McNellis, John St. Clair and Spencer Pettus. The first four were arrested, but the others are still at large.

Patterson is a native of Philadelphia, and is aged about forty years; for the past 25 years he has been known to the police as a most accomplished forger. He is a fine penman and possesses considerable knowledge of business. As a forger he is excelled by no one in this country, unless it may be the celebrated Col. Cross, at present serving out a term in the Eastern Penitentiary in Philadelphia. The prisoner has also served several terms in New York and Pennsylvania prisons. He is at present under indictment in N. York to answer the charge of having signed the name of Simon Draper, Collector of the Port, to a check for $1,000. O'Brien is in the habit of lounging about banks and hotels, and has the reputation among the Police of a thief. He is a brother of Honora Shepard, a notorious counterfeiter, who served several terms in the State Prison. The prisoner has also served one term. Garside has been several times arrested both in Philadelphia and Washington, but has never been convicted. Coughlin was formerly a clerk in the employ of a large firm in New York city. He understands the banking business thoroughly, and it was on account of this fact that his services were secured by the others. Spencer Pettus is well known as a burglar, pick pocket and thief. He was arrested and convicted of picking pockets in the Crystal Palace in London, England, and served out a term of years in an English prison for that offence. He is a very intelligent man, and repudiates the society of common thieves and burglars. McNellis and St. Clair have dealt almost altogether in forgeries.

The evidence before and since the arrest goes to show that extensive forgeries have been committed in Jersey City, Newark, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Washington, Scranton, Albany, Troy, and other cities. The following are a portion of the forgeries committed on some of the New York city banks, in addition to the $25,000 mentioned above. One check of $3,140 on the Mechanics' Bank; another for $14,000, and another for $9,000. This last check was deposited in the Sixth National Bank and the amount drawn. Another forged check, to the amount of $20,365.42, was deposited in the Ninth National Bank and the money drawn; another check on the Pacific Bank, for $3000, was presented and the money drawn.

The names and certifications on all these checks were forged. Probably a number of other forgeries will be developed. The entire amount, it is believed, will amount to at least $250,000. George F. Coughlin, one of the prisoners, has made a full confession.

☞ In a late speech, Sec. Seward spoke as follows:—

Our opponents say, the war is a failure. Without accepting their idea that it was waged only for the abolition of slavery, we may note, as evidences of its not being a failure, that in the first year of its existence the slave trade was abolished; in the second, the negro was brought up to the level of freedom, and slavery was abolished in the District of Columbia; and now, in the third year, Maryland has been made free. If they still think it a failure, they should have another proof to the contrary when the next Congress shall meet and abolish slavery, as they will certainly do.

REVENUE FRAUD.—The Revenue officers in the 9th District, New York City, have discovered a fraud of the most stupendous kind, by the proprietors of three of the largest breweries in the country. They have been arrested, and their establishments, valued at a million of dollars, seized. All will be confiscated, and one half go to the person discovering the fraud, if a case is made out. The parties have been distilling for a long time without license, without making returns, and without paying tax.

— The friends of Mr. Richard Hildreth, well-known in literary and artistic circles in the United States, will regret to hear that he has become hopelessly insane. Upon the accession of Mr. Lincoln, Mr. Hildreth—then in a very bad state of health, was appointed to the Consulate of Trieste, which position he still holds. His disease, softening of the brain, superinduced by excessive literary labor, has been gradually progressing for some years, until at length his intellect has been dethroned.

NOTES OF FORMER DAYS.

Collected and Collated — By UNCLE TOBY.

New Hampshire and Portsmouth in 1746. John Tufton Mason, who inherited the title to New Hampshire, had suffered a common recovery in the Courts of this province to dock the entail on that estate. He had offered it to the General Assembly, but could obtain no definite answer from them. On the 30th of January, he sold it for fifteen hundred pounds in fifteen shares to twelve purchasers, namely, Theodore Atkinson, Mark Hunting Wentworth, Richard Wibird, John Wentworth, George Jaffrey, Samuel Moore, Nathaniel Meserve, Thomas Packer, Thomas Wallingford, Jotham Odiorne, Joshua Peirce, and John Moffat, all of whom were inhabitants of this town, except Wallingford. Atkinson held three-fifteenths, M. H. Wentworth, two, and all the others one-fifteenth each. They immediately executed a deed, by which they released to all the towns, which had previously been settled or granted, the lands within their respective boundaries, excepting what they had heretofore held in such towns. Portsmouth was included in this grant, so that Mason's claim to any lands in this town became extinct.

The Rev. Jabez Fitch died of a nervous fever on the 22d day of November, in the 75th year of his age, and the 22d of his ministry in this place. He was distinguished for his literary acquirements, and cultivated with assiduity his taste for historical researches. He published four sermons after his settlement here. The first was delivered to his own parish the Sunday after the great earthquake, which happened October 29th, 1727. The second he preached at the ordination of the Rev. John Tucke, who was settled at the Isles of Shoals, July 26, 1732, from these words, "I will make you fishers of men." The other two were occasioned by the epidemic disorder, which proved so fatal in the year 1735, commonly called the throat distemper. He took pains to collect many historical facts, which he did not publish, but the historian of this province reaped the fruits of his labors by examining his manuscripts.

He was born at Norwich, Connecticut, in April, 1672, and was the fourth son, by a second marriage, of Reverend James Fitch. He was graduated at Harvard College, in 1694, and was both a tutor and a fellow of that seminary. From this circumstance it may be conjectured that he was a gentleman of distinguished talents and learning; and, especially, as he was called to a settlement at Ipswich, which, at that period, was one of the principal parishes in the country, and had been furnished with a series of ministers of the first reputation.

FRENCH WOMEN EMIGRATING. — The journals of Brest, France, announce the departure from that port of the frigate Sybille with a convoy of emigrants for the French colony of New Caledonia, in the Pacific. The Sybille has already made three voyages with emigrants, many of whom have since married young women brought up by public charity in France, and who had voluntarily gone out. These women receive dowries from the Empress, and are so well satisfied with their lot that several have written to Paris to induce their former companions to follow. Regular communications have been established between Port-de-France, the chief town of the colony, and Sydney in Australia.

— Another Rebel barbarity is reported in the case of Corporal James S. Bennett of the Second Michigan Cavalry, now in hospital at Winchester. He was captured on the 7th inst., with six of his comrades, by Mosby's men near Berryville. Three of them were hung immediately, by order of the Lieutenant commanding the guerillas, who ordered the remainder to be shot. One of the prisoners succeeded in escaping, but the others were shot and left for dead. Bennett, after being shot by a private through the shoulder, received a bullet from the Lieutenant's revolver in the head. He was not killed, and hopes are entertained that he will recover, with the loss of an eye.

— The Richmond correspondent of the London Times, writing October 8th, gives a gloomy picture of the Confederate position, and says Lee's army is almost worn out. There was nearly a panic at Richmond when Gen. Grant threatened an attack on the 29th of September, as Lee had only a handful of men to resist it. He thinks if General Sherman establishes himself in Georgia there will be reason for apprehension about Richmond during the winter, the like of which has never existed before.

— The plates of the new 50 cent fractional currency are nearly ready for printing. These notes will be of the same breadth as those now in circulation, but nearly twice as long. The new 5 cent notes will be of the same size as the old ones, while the 10 and 25 cent notes will be of lengths graduated between the highest and lowest denominations. It is probable that a 3 cent note will be issued for greater facility in making change.

— The Boston Sailors' Fair is to be continued through Monday and Tuesday.

THE REBELLION.

Gen. Burnside has arrived at Gen. Grant's headquarters.

A Nashville dispatch to the N. Y. Commercial states that Sherman has taken Augusta, Ga.

Dispatches from Gen. Curtis to Gen. Rosecrans report that Price has crossed to the south side of the Arkansas river. Several baggage wagons and the vehicle in which Price rode were captured by the Federal advance.

Sherman is intrenching, and is fully prepared to check any attempt on the part of the rebels to invade Maryland and to destroy the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad.

Richmond papers of Tuesday report that Gen. Sherman moved northward from Atlanta, though they doubtless mean by that eastward on a northerly line. Only such buildings as could be of use to the rebels were destroyed — manufactories, rolling-mills, stables, storehouses, etc. The rebels attacked our pickets while our troops were engaged in destroying property at Rome, but were driven off. On Tuesday last the outworks of Atlanta were attacked by 1500 rebel cavalry, who were driven off with little difficulty.

REBEL EXPECTATIONS.— The Richmond Dispatch, of last Saturday, after stating that they had not received any Yankee papers since the election, adds the following atrocious wish:—

"Though Lincoln is most probably elected by great majorities, the papers of the 9th may contain the announcement of civil strife and bloodshedding in the streets of the great cities of the Union. Heaven grant it may be so! This consummation were better than the defeat of the Illinois despot."

HALE'S
Honey of Horehound Tar,

For the cure of Coughs, Colds, Influenza, Hoarseness, Difficult Breathing, and all Affections of the Throat, Bronchial Tubes and Lungs, leading to Consumption.

This sovereign remedy is compounded from the favorite recipe of an illustrious Physician and Chemist, who for many years used it with the most complete success in his extensive private practice.

He had long been profoundly impressed with the wonderful virtue of the honey of the plant Horehound, in union with the Cleansing and Healing properties of Tar extracted from the Life Principle of the forest tree Abies Balsamea, or Balm of Gilead. For years he was baffled in his attempts to blend these great medicinal forces into such a union that the original power of each would be preserved, the disagreeable qualities of common tar removed, and the price of the compound be within the means of all. At last, after a long course of chemical experiments, he found that by adding to these five other ingredients, each one valuable in itself, he not only obtained the desired results but greatly increased the curative power of the compound. This having been thoroughly tested by practice, is now offered to the general public as a safe, pleasant and infallible remedy.

PRICE, 50 CENTS PER BOTTLE.

For sale by B. Hutchings, Portsmouth, and all Druggists.

"A Wonderful Discovery."

DR. TEBBETTS' "PHYSIOLOGICAL HAIR REGENERATOR" is compounded in strict accordance with the well known laws of Physiology and modern vegetable Chemistry. It is not a "Dye," and will not stain a particle. It will "RESTORE GRAY HAIR" in all cases to its original color. It promotes a luxuriant growth of new HAIR in all cases on BALD HEADS, when the glands or roots of the hair are not completely disorganized. It prevents the hair from falling off and removes all dandruff, heat, humors and itching from the scalp. It keeps the hair soft, moist and perfectly healthy, and gives it a glossy and beautiful appearance. It is highly perfumed, and as a Dressing it has no superior. The "REGENERATOR" is warranted to produce the above results in all cases, if not the money to be refunded. Will it every "GRAY HEAD" in New England can be restored in less than sixty days.

☞ One of the pleasantest little halls in the city is that of Laconia Engine Company, No. 2, on Court street. Since the entire building has been given up to their use the members of the company have manifested a most commendable zeal in re-arranging and re-fitting it, until it has become a credit to them and to the Fire Department of the city. The engine in the lower story is apparently kept in the most careful manner, the brass fittings being as bright and shining as rubbing can make them. In the second story is their hall; and here the company have expended their money most freely, yet judiciously. To it they have devoted not only the small sums which they have received from the city, but also large drafts on their private funds; and the result is a most pleasant and attractive hall.
